ALPHONSE DE ROTHSCHILD AND THE RUSSIAN LOAN.

Education as a Balance Wheel

By Professor HENRY VAN DYKE
of Princeton University

IT is to education that we look for protection against the spirit of raw haste, half sister to delay; against the blind and reckless temper of universal gambling, against the stupid idolatry of mere riches. Education is to clarify public opinion, to calm popular excitability, to tranquillize American energy, to dispel sectional prejudice, to bind together ALL PARTS of our common country. There is a method of bringing out the resources of the earth by working it for the largest immediate returns in the market. Is this a TRUE type of education? There is also a method of bringing out the possibilities of a living plant by culture. You have seen this method used in California in a way that seems almost miraculous. Is THIS a true type of education? These methods of bringing this out represent in picture the main educational ideals which men have followed. What should be the guiding star of education in a democracy—the decorative ideal, the marketable ideal or the CREATIVE ideal?

The decorative ideal, strangely enough, is likely to take precedence in order of time, and certainly it is pre-eminent IN WORTHLESSNESS. Barbarous races prefer ornament to decency and comfort in dress. It is a desire to have something in the way of intellectual or social adornment which seems to have been the earliest conception of education.

At the opposite extreme of the decorative ideal lies the marketable ideal of education. It aims simply to bring out a man's natural abilities to get the largest return IN MONEY for his work. Nothing is of value according to this ideal which is not of direct utility in business or a profession. The influence of this CASH VALUE theory of culture may be seen in our common school system. It is far too mechanical. Children are crammed with rules and definitions. Their imagination is intrusted to a weekly story paper, their moral nature to chance. Teachers are not at fault, but the system—the stupid mechanical, parsimonious cash value system. It would be a good thing if we could sweep away half of the branches that are now taught, make an end of COMPETITIONS AND PRIZES and come down to the plain work of teaching children to read, write and cipher—the foundation of a solid education.

This marketable ideal can be seen in some of the higher institutions of learning, where boys are cultivated not as men, but as journalists, surveyors, chemists, lawyers, physicians, painters, musicians, manufacturers, mining engineers, sellers of wet and dry goods, bankers, accountants and what not. We have institutes of everything, from stenography to farriery. It remains only to add a few more—an academy of mesmerism and college of mind healing and a chiropractic university—to round out the encyclopedia according to the commercial ideal.

It seems to me the real object of education is not merely to decorate a man with rare accomplishments, not merely to train him for a fixed function in the vast mechanism of industry and commerce, BUT TO CREATE OUT OF THE RAW STUFF THAT IS HIDDEN IN THE BOY a finer, stronger, broader, nobler type of man. I am not dealing in glittering generalities. The man who is honored with an invitation to speak owes it to himself and his audience to have a distinct idea at the center of his address. There is such an idea here. It has four definite marks and qualities—the power to see clearly, the power to imagine vividly, the power to think independently and the power to WILL nobly. If a man has these four powers—clear sight, quick imagination, sound reason and right, strong will—I call him an educated man.

THE POWER TO USE THE IMAGINATION AND THE SENSES TO THEIR FULL CAPACITY DOES NOT COME BY NATURE. IT IS A HABIT, THE RESULT OF INSTRUCTION, APPLIED TO THE OPENING OF BLIND EYES AND THE UNSEALING OF DEAF EARS.

The mere pursuit of knowledge is not NECESSARILY an emancipating thing. There is a kind of reading which is as passive as massage. There is a kind of study which fattens the mind for examination like a prize pig for a country fair. No doubt the beginning of instruction must be chiefly exercises of perception and memory, but at a certain point the reason AND THE JUDGMENT must be awakened and brought into VOLUNTARY play. As a teacher I would rather have a pupil give an incorrect answer in a way which showed that he had really been THINKING about the subject than a literally correct answer in a way which showed that he had merely swallowed what I had told him and regurgitated on the examination paper.

What we need at present is not new colleges with a power of conferring degrees, but more power in the existing colleges TO MAKE MEN. To this end let them have a richer endowment, a fuller equipment, but, above all, a revival of the CREATIVE ideal. And let everything be done to bring together the high school, the normal school, the grammar school, the primary school, in the harmony of this ideal.

The university shall still stand in the place of honor, if you will, but only because it bears the cleanest and most steadfast witness that the end of education is to create men who can see clearly, imagine nobly, think steadily and will bravely.
