Lieutenant Martin Martenson, who while looking after property interests here, was stricken with rheumatism and stomach trouble and has been receiving treatment at the Soldiers' Home hospital, we note is able to be about town again. He is laying plans for the building of a cottage on his tract of land in the Riverside addition in September. He says a bridge is badly needed across the river connecting the populous Soldiers' Home community with the Riverside and Edgewater additions. He states that even a cable foot bridge would be of inestimable advantage to the people and school children of those localities. He says West Roseburg should wake up to its interests.

WILLIAMSON JURY IS STILL OUT

Looks as Though the Second Trial Would Result as the First.

Just as we go to press a telegram from Portland states that the Williamson jury is still out and that it is generally predicted that the second trial of the Congressman and his partner will result as did the first—with a hung jury. There are those, however, who are optimistic enough to predict a verdict finally for acquittal, although no tidings have been received from the jury room.

The jury retired for deliberation on a verdict Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

TWO YONCALLA GIRLS

Twins That Look Alike, Dress Alike and Deceive Everybody.

Two girls who look so much alike that their own mother can hardly tell them apart and that strangers can see absolutely no point of difference between them, are visiting the exposition. They are Eva and Evva Applegate, twins, whose home is at Yoncalla. The girls are exactly the same height and size, have eyes and hair of the same color, and have every feature the same, and to add to their striking natural similarity of appearance they always dress exactly alike. The girls formerly attended the Oregon Agricultural college and many amusing incidents are told of their school days in Corvallis. If an instructor asked Miss Eva a question she didn't happen to know, Miss Evva might answer it and the professor never knew the difference. If Evva had an appointment to go to a function and wanted to remain at home Evva could take her place and her escort never be any the wiser. Thus it went all the girls' college days, and they were a mystery to professors and students alike. Often some young man who had met one would begin a conversation with the other or recall some incident of an evening spent with the other, but the girls always knew how to appreciate such a difficulty. It was great fun for them to take advantage of such situations and the inability of people to tell them apart was an amusing source of amusement.—Salem Journal.

Bank Directors Should Assume the Responsibility of Management

By WILLIAM BARRETT RIDGELY, Comptroller of the Currency

THE ruin of a bank is practically always the result of fraud or the use of its funds in undue and unlawful amount BY ITS OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS. This money is sometimes lost in legitimate enterprises, through bad judgment and mismanagement, but far the most frequent cause for actual stealing or defalcations in banks is speculation. IT IS SPECULATION, WHICH IS THE CURSE OF THE DAY, which tempts so many men beyond their endurance. In the last few years, eight or ten at the most, it has become much more common. Where it was formerly confined to a few large cities it now extends to almost every little country town, tempting and corrupting all whom it touches and bringing with it ruin and sorrow and disgrace.

There is probably not a man who does not know personally some good man who has become involved by it, some man who had had the highest reputation, perhaps justly earned by an honorable and blameless life and a business career of unswerving rectitude, who has been tempted into the use of other people's money TO SAVE HIMSELF. No one knows until he tries it how great that temptation is or can be sure he can resist it. The only safe way is to avoid it. No man who assumes the responsibility of the custody of funds belonging to others should take the risk of subjecting himself to this temptation or allow others with whom he divides such a trust to do so. We have entirely too much of the bankers using their banks for their PRIVATE gain.

I want to say a few words about the duties and responsibilities of bank directors, those duties which are so plain IN THEORY and are so often badly neglected in practice. In many cases of failure the directors are as much surprised as any one, simply because they have not exercised their rights and performed their duties AS THEY HAVE SWORN TO DO. In such cases they are more to blame than any one. If all boards of bank directors would do their FULL duty, bank failures would almost come to an end. We would very seldom have such sudden and sensational failures of banks, looted from the inside by men who have stood high in their communities and thought to be models of honesty and trustworthiness.

The point I wish to emphasize is that the responsibility for bank management is by law placed UPON THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS. By accepting a place on a bank board and taking the oath of office a man accepts this responsibility and swears he will diligently and honestly administer the affairs of the association.

HE IS UNDER EVERY MORAL AND LEGAL OBLIGATION TO PERFORM THIS DUTY FULLY AND COMPLETELY. IT IS CERTAINLY NOT ASKING TOO MUCH OF MEN WHO ACCEPT SUCH TRUSTS THAT THEY SIMPLY DO THEIR PLAIN SWORN DUTY AND OBEY THE LAWS.
