MILLIONAIRES CAN NOW DRAW PENSIONS

Word comes from Washington, D. C. that pensions for millionaires is one of the new developments under the Executive order of last year making age the only disability necessary for the granting of a service pension.

According to Commissioner of Pensions Warren, the application of a millionaire for a pension has been recently favorably passed upon. He does not want the pension, according to the Commissioner, on account of the money it carried with it, but simply to perfect his record of honorable service in the Civil War.

This view of the age disability order is being taken by many well-to-do veterans who would not otherwise apply for pensions. The fact that they are eligible and performed the service stipulated in behalf of the Government, and that the Government is willing to recognize this service by a pension and the accompanying records of the same make the service pension a desirable addition to family records.

The Commissioner does not look upon these claims for pensions as an undesirable burden for the Government to bear. He takes the view that the money distributed is used by the applicant to relieve want. In the case of the millionaire pension, he has knowledge that the recipient has just made a bequest of $100,000 for benevolent purposes.

PRESIDENT ISSUES PROCLAMATION

Washington, Nov. 3.—President Roosevelt has issued his proclamation naming Thursday, November 30, as a day of thanksgiving as follows:
By the president of the United States of America,
A proclamation.

When, nearly three centuries ago the first settlers came to the country which has now become this great republic, they faced not only hardship and privation but terrible risks of their lives. In those grim years the custom grew of setting apart one day in each year for a special service thanksgiving to the Almighty for preserving the people through the changing seasons. The custom has now become national and hallowed by immemorial usage.

PROGRESS TIMES COPY
We live in easier and more plentiful times than our forefathers, the men who with rugged strength faced the rugged days, and yet the dangers to national life are quite as great now as at any previous time in our history. It is eminently fitting that once a year our people should set apart a day for praise and thanksgiving to the giver of the good, and at the same time they express their thankfulness for the abundant mercies received, should manfully acknowledge their shortcomings and pledge themselves solemnly and in good faith to strive to overcome them. During the past year we have been blessed with bountiful crops. Our business prosperity has been great. No other people has ever stood on an as high level of material wellbeing as ours now stands. We are not threatened by foes from without. The foes from whom we should pray to be delivered are our passions, appetites and follies; and against these there is always need that we should war.

Therefore, I now set apart Thursday, the 30th day of this November as a day of Thanksgiving for the past and of prayer for the future, and on that day I ask that throughout the nation the people gather in their homes and places of worship and in rendering thanks unto the most high for the manifold blessings of this past year, consecrate themselves to a life of cleanliness, honor and wisdom, so that this nation may do its allotted work on earth in a manner worthy of those who founded it and of those who preserved it.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this second day of November in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Five and of the Independence of the United States the One Hundred and Thirtieth.

COSTS MONEY TO CHANGE TO OIL

The Southern Pacific Railway Company will soon commence the erection of several large oil tanks along the main line in Oregon to supply oil for the oil-burning locomotives with which the road will be equipped. One at Roseburg with a capacity of 50,000 barrels; Grants Pass, 30,000; Junction, 20,000; Albany, 5,000.

Estimates showing the cost of substituting oil for coal as fuel on the locomotives of the O. R. & N. and the Southern Pacific Company's lines in Oregon place it at $125,000, and it is understood the executive board of the Harriman system has authorized the expenditure for the betterment of the service. It has been better known for some time that the Harriman lines in this territory would adopt the liquid fuel, not entirely because of its cheapness, but owing to its advantages from the standpoint of cleanliness.

The change will probably be warmly welcomed by the passenger department, for it has been proven that with the use of oil traveling is made more comfortable, and it means less work for the men in the shops. To the fireman it is a boon.

The reason railroads give for failure to adopt oil earlier was the fear that the supply might become exhausted or fall off to such an extent that the price would become prohibitive.

In the early experiments there was but slight knowledge of the substance as fuel, which resulted in the speedy burning out of crown sheets. The use of oil on locomotives was introduced as early as 1855 on two locomotives on the Southern Pacific system in California, which were operated successfully with much the same style of burners as are in use now, but the fuel cost $2 a barrel, and even at that price was regarded more valuable for refining. So in view of its cost and in the belief that the supply was limited and would not warrant the expense of establishing tanks along the line, the engines were changed back to coal burners.

So much attention is given to oil in the Northwest by the railroads that all reports of discoveries of the fuel in any of the districts are investigated. While oil can be landed here from California points on a basis that makes it decidedly cheaper to burn than coal, it will still prove an expensive fuel for the O. R. & N., owing to the necessity of the long haul from Portland to points of distribution in Eastern Oregon and Washington.

GLOBE TROTTER WAS KILLED

Gustave Laurent, who with his companion, Louis Avernil, was in Roseburg ten days ago on a walking tour of the world, was murdered at Red Bluff, Cal., Tuesday. Tramps, stealing free rides in a freight car, along with the two Frenchmen did the deed. Laurent (erratically) displayed a few dollars, which aroused the hobos' capacity, and his murder followed. The country round about is being searched for the men who committed the crime.

Laurent, the dead man, was a traveler well known the entire length of this country. In company with Avernil, he had worked his way to the Pacific coast from France, and when killed was bound for San Francisco, there to take ship for the Orient, and continue his wanderings.

The two Frenchmen excited the notice of many people while in this city. They were dressed in serviceable walking costume, broad red bands about their hats, proclaiming the fact that they were "globe-trotters." Under their arms they carried huge volumes, filled with autograph letters from every city in the United States and Europe, testifying in every conceivable way to the fact that the Frenchmen were not hoboes working a novel graft, but sinuous-pure globe-trotters.

Avernil, the surviving member of the pair, is held at Red Bluff as a witness. It is extremely doubtful whether he will continue his tour alone.

The Daily News of Denver.

On December 29, 1896, says: "It is rarely, indeed, that Denver is favored with such vocal execution and instrumental as well. When it is said that the work of the Quartette is beyond criticism and the other performances the work of professionals, the truth is told. It was a rare privilege, thoroughly appreciated by the audience, to listen to the wonderful voices of the Quartette in their harmonious blending and surprising range, and there was not a number on the program but secured an encore." You can enjoy the same treat that Denver did at the Opera House on November 2nd.

Cured Consumption.

Mrs. W. B. Evans, Clearwater, Kas., writes: "My husband lay sick for three months. The doctors said that he had quick consumption. He procured a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup and it cured him. That was six years ago. Since then we have always kept a bottle in the house. We cannot do without it. For coughs and colds has no equal." 25c, 50c and $1. Sold by A. C. Marsters & Co.
