RUMBLINGS FROM THE RAILROAD

Mrs. A. B. Griggs died at Albany, Oregon, Nov. 9th, aged 71 years, of pneumonia. She was an aunt of Chief Dispatcher, C. C. Morris, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Morris left on last night's train for Albany to attend the funeral.

A special passenger train from Portland to San Francisco left Portland at midnight last night to carry several slow companies to California. The train will be a regular institution to enable companies to complete their Portland engagements and leave at once for the bay city.

Conductor Ed. Tynan was taken critically ill while his passenger train was enroute to Astland Sunday morning. The cause of his ailment was pronounced gastroenteric and he was taken to his home at Roseburg on the afternoon train.—Astland Valley Record.

Although the passenger business has fallen off somewhat, since the big Portland fair came to a close, yet the freight traffic is keeping up at a remarkable rate. It is regarded as heavier than at any time for many years past.

Work on the "high line" by which is meant the apparatus for handling coal for the engines, has again been resumed. This is the third time the job has been undertaken anew. It was thought that, owing to the plan to erect a 55,000-gallon oil tank here that this coal arrangement would be discontinued, but evidently the "powers that be" have other plans for the undertaking has been taken up again. The original cost of the "high line" was about $12,000.

but knowing ones think that it has reached all of $20,000.

Work on the new roof of the house is progressing nicely and Foreman Mahoney hopes to have the work completed in the course of a week or so. The foundation is being well laid and nothing will be lacking to make it a structure which will stand for years to come. It will greatly increase the capacity of the local yards and means Roseburg more of a railroad point than ever.

Al. Westbroff, one of the leading repairmen, knows how to sympathize with the "bug" for he has been having a number of his "comforters" in the back of his neck, for the past year, so far medical aid has not succeeded in taking away the pain.

Through an oversight, the reporter failed to mention the exciting time which William Anderson, the merchant, had on in the Olalla country while he was looking for a new home. He ran across a skunk which proved to be the most interesting subject he had looked for many a day. Mr. Anderson tells some interesting things as to this unpopular animal.

This part of the Southern Pacific is now regarded by the traveling public as one of the best in the state of Oregon. New 30-pound steel rails have been laid all the way from Sigmaw to Cottage Grove, taking the place of the old 62-pound ones. In addition to this the road bed has been thoroughly rebalanced and everything has been put in shape for safe and rapid travel. Already the effect of this is being noticed in the regularity with which the trains arrive on time.

Trainmaster O. W. Taylor, who has charge of all the lines in Oregon for the S. P., was in the city, Thursday, looking up matters of interest to his department and hobnobbing with the local representatives.

The overland trains are not running as many coaches as formerly, and one standard sleeper is sufficient to accommodate the through travel on the regular train. The diner is still on the run, but is expected to be taken off soon.

W. H. Bond was at the county seat Saturday, attending to some business matters.

J. D. Wiley and N. M. Estey, who are extensively interested in the mines of Myrtle Creek, favored the Plaindealer with a pleasant call Saturday.

"Permanent cures" is the verdict of those who have tried Osteopathy.

J. O. Singleton, who has been doing duty at the Lewis and Clark fair, as a guard, has returned home and says that the other guards will be here by the middle of the month.

Chas. Watson, who has been reading Douglas county news from the Plaindealer, for the past three years, is spending a few days looking in on his friends in this city.

Roscoe Green leaves today for Seattle, where he expects to locate.

J. J. Poole was in from Days Creek Saturday, looking after some business.

If you have ever heard adverse reports in regard to Osteopathy, investigate for yourself. You will find such reports to be false.

T. C. Bloomer transacted business at Albany Saturday.

S. J. Jon-8 returned home Saturday, from a two week's business trip to Tillamook and Drew.

J. H. Everts, one of Peck's representative citizens, was at the county seat Saturday, transacting business.

Attorney J. A. Buchanan went to try a case in the justice court at Olalla, today.

Aug. Menzel and D. A. Owen are late arrivals from Tigertown, Wis. The latter will remain and make this section his home, while Mr. Menzel goes back east to arrange his affairs so he can come here later on to live. They report that many persons back there are expecting to come to Douglas county to reside.

J. E. Sawyer, lawyer and notary public, office upstairs in Douglas County Bank Building.

Mrs. T. W. Peters, who recently resided in this city, but who now lives in Portland, has been the guest of G. W. Wilbur and family. She left Friday for Oquema to visit her mother, before returning home to Portland.

The goods purchased of J. T. Bryan, the jeweler, will be engraved, from 10 to 25c.

A box of blankets in one of the trunks at Bullwacker's, big store, was found to be infested with fleas. It is a very disagreeable affliction and reflects much credit upon the originator of the display. It contains numbers of all kinds and sizes and is interesting to behold.

Fire Insurance!

FULLERTON & RICHARDSON

The fact has been brought out by testimony before the New York state insurance investigating committee that one of the big companies has persistently stated that it owned no stocks or speculative securities when it actually did own such property to a considerable extent. The reason given for the misrepresentation was that it had to be done in order to comply with the requirements of the Prussian government. This in itself would indicate that the methods of the high financiers are not entirely above reproach.

An earthquake that wipes out twenty-five villages, kills upward of 400 people, wounds 600 more and leaves thousands of persons destitute is something of a disturbance. The country in which such things are common at least is quite sure that something is liable to happen almost any time. Italy enjoys the distinction, but we have not heard that any of the powers are trying to rob her of it.

M. Witte declared at Portsmouth that the mass of the Russian people were not aware of the fact that the nation was at war. Probably they were too busy trying to raise taxes to read the papers and find out what was going on beyond their township lines. And, alas, millions of them never see a newspaper.

Admiral Togo's flagship, the Mikasa, survived the terrible battle of the sea of Japan to be blown up after peace had been declared. Another demonstration of the well known truth that it is the unexpected that happens.

It is estimated that the whole number of visitors to Yellowstone park during the season of 1905 will aggregate 20,000. This is one of Uncle Sam's most popular and most beautiful playgrounds.

Mr. Rockefeller's assertion that he is tired of seeing his name in print may tempt those "society editors" to arrange a feud and family proposition that will suit his case.

Plumpton, the busy astronomer, has declared the eclipse of the sun in 1905 pleased him, and the sun, greatly pleased, has voted itself a success.

Appropos of the recent life insurance revelations, as a topic of conversation "freed finished" is rapidly giving way to "freed financiers."

Robert Finson, New York's new member of President Roosevelt's cabinet, holding the position of assistant secretary of state, is an athlete, a horseman, a hunter, a clubman and a blowhard. His training should make citizenship easy.

However strong in diplomacy the Japanese delegates to the peace conference may have been, the Russians would stand against them strongly in their treatment of newspaper men. The press representatives were much the better off.

Medical science now declares that the juice of vegetables is a sure cure for pulmonary diseases. The W. C. F. U. should take notice that the inflated price for this juice is a profitable and powerful alcohol from the juice of potatoes.

This is the season for the slimy pure American scoundrel to show "Horrific for money" and "Horrific for men" and to show that he has no feeling for the power which have cut off vaccination.

It is a pity for the epidemic against the Jews has been full of such a fearful thing. It is a pity for the epidemic against the Jews has been full of such a fearful thing. It is a pity for the epidemic against the Jews has been full of such a fearful thing.

A Chance For Local Arbitration.
The extension of free postal delivery and the agitation for a parcel post, together with the activity of our merchants in pushing their mail order business, give promise of breeding a perpetual war between the consumer and the town and country merchant. The farmer, for instance, will cling to his "right to buy goods where he pleases," which means where he can get just what he wants for the least money. It is a right which no merchant can dispute, however much it grieves his own pocket to see things going that way.

But there is in this the broad question of policy in crushing out the local merchant. The country store becomes the nucleus of the village, and the village grows to be a town, and the town ends in a city. Local markets to sell in as well as to buy in help the producer in the long run. It is simply a question of retarding home industry or standing aloof and letting it go down or die out altogether. A frank understanding by consumers that might remedy this. The farmer has his side, and the merchant has his, but at bottom both want the same thing, local prosperity. Instead of standing off and scolding at one another the sensible thing would be to compare notes and contrive some plan fair to all concerned to keep good money at home.

It is strange that no one has called attention to the fact that the members of the naval board in St. Petersburg who are dismissing commanders for surrendering their ships in the battle of the sea of Japan are the very fellows who were in the seat of the Japanese who were whipped and they started their powerful hands to get them back to the Russian capital as soon as possible.

Mr. Battling Nelson, the athletic pugilist who recently fought with James Edward Best, that champion of the world, was in the crowd when the prize money was being divided. The prize money was being divided. The prize money was being divided.
