'FRISCO GRAND JURY IS AFTER HENEY

Legal Light Who Has Been Running Down Supposed Oregon Land Grabbers Nonplussed

One of the San Francisco papers has this bit of decidedly interesting news regarding some experiences which Attorney Henev, who has been so zealous in prosecuting Oregonians, is having in that city:

"Attorney Francis J. Henev appeared before the grand jury yesterday morning in response to a summons from the District Attorney's office calling upon him to substantiate by evidence his statement in Mechanics' Pavilion last Saturday night. 'I personally know Abe Ruef to be corrupt and will prove it at any time the people want me to.'

"When before the Grand Jury Henev failed to make good his words. He had no direct charge to make against Ruef. The best he could do was to tell a hear-say story about a corrupt proposition alleged to have been made by Ruef to United States Senator Perkins and Collector of the Port Stratton relative to the illegal importation of Chinese. Henev said he had received this information from some one else, whose name he declined to divulge and who had heard it from a third party. At the conclusion of the inquiry Henev was allowed to depart for the east, promising to communicate with the Grand Jury at once in the event of his acquiring any more definite information.

"Collector of Port Stratton denies emphatically that Ruef ever approached him with any corrupt or unworthy proposition. Senator Perkins is equally direct in branding Henev's story as false.

The grand jury session was held at an early hour in order to accommodate Henev, who was anxious to get away on the overland. When he entered the grand jury room, there being a quorum present, he was examined by District Attorney Byington, who asked him if he had any proofs of crime alleged to have been committed by Ruef.

"I know of no crime he has committed," was Henev's answer. "I said I personally knew him to be corrupt. That is different."

"Yes," said Byington, "but you are reported to have stated that you knew of offenses committed by Ruef which I, as District Attorney, could follow up."

"I didn't say you," retorted Henev. "I said I could if I were District Attorney."

"Nothing daunted Byington pressed his questions until Henev admitted he had no proof of anything at all against Ruef, but had based his assertions upon hearsay and upon newspaper statements. Asked to specify Henev made this declaration:

"Well, I know he made a corrupt proposition to United States Senator George C. Perkins and Collector of the Port Fred S. Stratton, concerning the unlawful importation of Chinese to these shores."

"Did either Senator Perkins or Mr. Stratton tell you that?" inquired Byington.

"No," replied Henev. "It was a friend." Further questioned Henev declined to give the friend's name, who, he said, had received his information upon reliable authority from a third person.

"That ended the inquiry. Before leaving the grand jury room, Henev said: 'There are other lines the District Attorney might follow to advantage.'

"After the session Collector Stratton was interviewed upon the statements made by Henev. Mr. Stratton said: 'Mr. Ruef never in his life approached me with any corrupt or unworthy proposition. If Mr. Henev has said that Mr. Ruef ever approached me directly or indirectly with any dishonorable proposition, whether it affected the admission of Chinese or any other matter, he states what is not true. No such thing ever occurred and could not occur, and furthermore, nobody ever said it had occurred.'

"Henev's statement is absolutely false," said Senator Perkins yesterday. 'I never talked with Mr. Ruef about any such matter. I would never have permitted him to approach me with any dishonorable proposition, and I believe he is incapable of doing such a thing.'

"Abe Ruef had this to say last evening:

"I knew that Henev could not substantiate a single one of the statements he so rashly made. He probably earned a good fee for his dastardly attack, but the outcome not only means the exit of Henev from the stage of political life, but I believe it must compass the downfall of the legal reputation he has so recently acquired.

"With reference to the statement accredited to Henev as the foundation of his charges, namely, that some one had told him that another person had said that United States Senator Perkins and Collector of the Port Stratton had intended to bring before the grand jury a corrupt proposition alleged to have been made by me to them relative to the importation of Chinese. Let me say that the suggestion was a contemptible lie. I have never in all my practice or otherwise, had anything whatever to do in Chinese immigration cases. I never in my life spoke either to Senator Perkins or Stratton about any such matter, even by the faintest allusion. The suggestion is not only an insult to each of these men, but is as well an impugning of my own common sense.

"I will leave it to Senator Perkins and Mr. Stratton to say whether I ever spoke to them about such a matter or whether either of them ever said he knew anything to my detriment in any respect whatever.

"I wish to make a further statement to show how amazed I am at such an attack coming from Henev. Some months ago, while the Andrews grand jury was in session, I met Henev on the street. We got to talking about the grand jury's boasted intention to proceed against the admission of Chinese and its grafters, and I asked Henev why he did not take up the case for the grand jury. He replied: 'I don't care to. I don't want to hurt you fellows.'

"Oh, you won't hurt us," I replied with a smile.

"Well, there's nothing in it," said Henev.

"Ah, that's a better excuse from a legal standpoint," I said. "However, don't let that bother you. I am willing and anxious that an investigation shall be made, and I will deposit all the necessary expenses it may require to enable you to prosecute the case. Then you may go ahead and hew right down to the line."

MINES OF RIDDLE SHOWING VERY GOOD

Many Properties are Coming Right to the Front and Are Attracting Much Attention

With the famous "Levnes Ledge" gold mine in sight of town, it is no wonder that the average citizen takes a very lively interest in the apparently well-founded rumor that the owners of that property are really expecting to "strike it rich," almost any day. Night and day shifts are grinding away, and the prospects seem to grow brighter every day, that ere long the famous old ledge, where years ago the "pocket" worth $20,000 was discovered, and which made things pretty lively in this neck of the woods. A tunnel has been run in about three hundred feet and work is being pushed by a good force of experienced workmen. Portland parties are the principal owners and they are putting in much time and money to bring out the desired metal. It is regarded as one of the worthy quartz claims.

The "Crackerjack" placer mine located in Cow Creek canyon, some 15 miles away, will soon be operated by its fortunate owner, Mr. J. B. Riddle, who will place a crew at work soon. For the past six years, Mr. Riddle has been reaping a nice little sum from this property and he regards it as one of his very best investments and will not be in a hurry to part with it.

It now begins to look very much as though the "Wizzard," Thomas A. Edison, would take hold of the now famous "Oregon Nickel Mine," which is located about five miles from this place, on the "Nickel Mountain." Word has just been recently received at Riddle that just such negotiations were pending and there seems to be something more than mere gossip. Owing to the fact that there is no duty on nickel and that the Canadian mines have made such an industry rather poor investment in the U. S. this Oregon Nickel mine has not been developed. Now, if Mr. Edison takes hold of the property, there is every reason to believe that there will soon be "something doing," hereabouts. One of the most promising placer mines in this district is the "Victor," which is owned and operated by eastern capitalists. They will soon have a force of men on the work for the winter's run and the showing made is very encouraging.

In the mining district on the South Umpqua, the "Rainbow" copper mine is showing up finely. Harry Banfield, one of the owners and also the superintendent, has things moving along in good shape. A fine ten-foot vein has been struck and the owners are greatly pleased over the findings.

Riddle is the supply point for a large scope of mining territory and the merchants find that the grade in that direction is one of the best sources of income. They also find that the volume of business is growing right along, which, in itself, is a pretty good indication.

Horace T. Jones, special agent for the interior department attached to the Roseburg land office, was in the city yesterday afternoon and went to Corvallis on the bay train for a short business visit.

Tramps are traveling southward now and making only short stops in the cities along the railroad. Thanksgiving will see most of the gentry out of this section of the country.

Mrs. L. S. Pengra and daughter, Mrs. Olsen, of Roseburg, accompanied by the latter's little son, Robert, arrived here today to visit friends. They are on their way home from a visit at Junction.

These must be "dry" times at Eugene, for the Guard says: "The dust on Willamette street had become so thick and disagreeable that the sprinkling wagon was brought forth this afternoon for the first time in several weeks."

C. M. Hermann and family moved to Roseburg, this week, Mr. Hermann having purchased a small farm adjoining that city. He has leased his farm adjoining town to Clay Dement.—Myrtle Point Enterprise.

Mrs. A. C. Carty has just received the sad intelligence that her sister, Mrs. P. D. Atkinson, of White Bird, Idaho, is very ill with typhoid fever. Her mother, Mrs. W. Pilkington, went to her bedside about two weeks ago.
