ROSEBURG OREGON

WORKING FOR ALL PARTS OF OREGON

Prominent Editor of the State Pulling Hard for This Very Object.

The Plaindealer was favored with a pleasant call, Friday morning from Hon. E. Hofer, the well-known editor of the Salem Daily Journal. Mr. Hofer, accompanied by his estimable wife, has just been making an extensive tour of this part of the state, in company with Hon. Walter L. Tooze, of Woodburn, who is an aspirant for congressional honors in this district.

"We have had a most successful and encouraging trip," remarked Mr. Hofer enthusiastically to the reporter. "At four different cities and towns they gave us rousing meetings, where we addressed them on the interests of this part of this great state. And they are all enthusiastically pulling together. We found conditions very favorable for a rapid and substantial growth and development of all that section. The coming of the new railroad into the Coos Bay country, is going to make things fairly hum over that way. And say, by the way, we want another railroad from Roseburg into that rich section, and it is going to come. The people over there want it and they feel certain that it is going to be built sooner or later. Such a line would tap a very rich section and would be a splendid investment for those who back it."

Speaking along the line of politics Mr. Hofer said: "Mr. Tooze's candidacy is meeting with general favor. The people are recognizing in him an exceptionally strong candidate and one who, if elected, (as he most certainly will be, should he receive the party nomination,) would be a credit to the entire state. A man who has convictions and who has the courage of his convictions. Yes, Mr. Tooze is undoubtedly a very strong man and everything points to his landing the nomination. As to the gubernatorial situation, Dr. James Withycombe, of the state agricultural college, is coming right to the front and he is regarded as one of the finest men in this great state. His long residence and his associations with the agricultural interests of the state, make him one of the people. He has the interests of the farmer at heart, and by his honest, candid manners, he has made hosts of friends all over the state. He is one of the best men who could be named for this important office and if the party names him, he will prove to be a vote getter, sure."

"By the way," continued Editor Hofer, "the next United States Senator should be from the interior of the state. This is a growing sentiment and is becoming stronger every day. The people of the interior feel that they need a man in that place who would be thoroughly in touch with their interests and there are plenty of good men who could fill the position. Our Willamette Development Association has taken this up and it is going to win out, we hope at the next election. We are laboring for anything and everything that will advance the interests of Western Oregon. We realize that what will benefit one part of the state will help all. So I repeat, let every part of the state pull together, and Oregon will go forward by leaps and bounds, and this promising commonwealth will soon take its place in the foremost ranks of progress and prosperity. One of these days you Douglas county people will find that your resources are beginning to be recognized and then you will see your city and county experiencing such a boom as has never been dreamed of by the oldest inhabitant."

Mr. and Mrs. Hofer spent the most of Friday at the Soldiers' Home as guests of their old-time friends, Commandant and Mrs. Elder, who were formerly Marion county residents.

SHEEPMEN TO MAKE VERY GOOD PROFITS

"There is no question in my mind that wool prices are going to be better next year than they were this season," said a sheepman yesterday. The speaker, who is well informed on present conditions, continued as follows:

"The output of wool this season was considerably short of the last few years and the indications are that the product will be no greater next year. The elimination of many bands of sheep in different parts of the country, which has been going on quietly for some time, is having its effect on the annual output of wool and the large herds in the East are beginning to realize the true situation. The result is that there is a brisk demand for wool right now and in order to insure sufficient supply for early next season, many contracts for next year's clips are being made now. Representatives from Boston and other Eastern cities have been in the West for several months for the purpose of making contracts in advance and many deals have been closed. A few contracts have been made in this county but the bulk of them seems to be in Baker and Wallowa counties in this state and the several sheepraising counties in Southern Idaho.

"As far as prices are concerned they will be better than ever. Already I know of contracts at 20 cents a pound and a few at 22 cents. Next year will be another money-maker for the sheepmen of this state."

IT PAID HIM TO BE USEFUL

An interesting story is told in connection with the appointment of Justice C. E. Wolverton to the federal bench. Soon after the death of Judge Bellinger, Justice Bean of the state supreme court became a candidate for the vacant position and his friends made a canvass of the bench and bar of the state to secure endorsements for him. Both of his colleagues on the supreme bench—Justice Moore and Justice Wolverton—were asked for letters in his behalf and both responded with cordial recommendations that he be appointed.

Justice Wolverton's endorsement of his fellow jurist was particularly earnest and his letter was so well couched that it drew the attention of the attorney-general to the writer and led to inquiry about him. When a special emissary was sent to Oregon last September to inquire into the fitness of the various candidates for the appointment he asked many questions about Justice Wolverton, who, though not then a candidate, often had been mentioned as the right man for the place. The report submitted to the attorney-general strongly confirmed the favorable impression created by the letter which Wolverton had written in behalf of his friend and associate. The final result was the appointment of Wolverton to the federal bench.

If he had been less cordial and less earnest in his efforts to secure the appointment of Justice Bean his own merits might have been wholly overlooked.

OUR CRACK COMPANY MAKING A RECORD

Some Interesting Information Regarding the Fine Showing Made by Co. D.

From the Annual Target Report of Co. D, First Separate Battalion O. N. G., for the year ending Oct. 31, 1905, which has just been completed, we note the following:

Corporal Geo. E. Houck heads the list of Expert Riflemen with a total score of 417 out of a possible 450, an average of 92 2/3 per cent.

In the Marksmen's Course Sgt. F. G. Stewart heads with a total of 139 out of a possible 150, also an average of 92 2/3 per cent.

Some very good skirmish work was done during the season. Among the highest scores are Jackson, 96; Houck, 95; Hamlin, 90; Stewart, 82; Johnson, 79; Hedgpeth, 78; Threlkeld, 76; Webb, 75; Long, 74; Harpham, 71.

Six are classified as Expert Riflemen. They are: Corporal Houck, Iri Jackson, Capt. Hamlin, Sgt. Stewart, Pri. Johnson and Sgt. Threlkeld.

Eight completed the Sharpshooter's Course, including: Pri. Harpham, Sgt. Webb, Pri. Long, Pri. Hedgpeth, Private Wilson, Cor. Stewart, Cor. Bitzman and Sgt. Wright.

Of the remainder, 35 completed the Marksmen's Course, making 98 points or more out of a possible 150, at the three ranges, 200, 300 and 500 yards. Pri. Ira Cole heads this list with a score of 124.

One first class man, two second class men and six third class men complete the list of those who took part in the target practice of the Company, a total of 58 men.

Co. D made an excellent record in her target work in 1904, winning 5 of the 9 sharpshooter's badges awarded in the state. The Oregon Rifle Team, which represented the state in the national contest at New Jersey contained 4 Co. D men, who won their places on the team in a series of tryouts.

In the national contest, at Sea Girt, Oregon was 21st of the 39 contesting teams. In the individual contest the Oregon team was led by Dr. Houck and in the team shoot the highest score was made by C. S. Jackson, both of Roseburg.

The Company figure of merit in 1904 was 42; this year, 1905, it is 99 and the boys expect to do even better in 1906.

BIG ASCENSION NEXT SATURDAY

Professor Davis is in the City, arranging to give one of his grand balloon ascensions in this city next Saturday, from what is known as the "Maccabees lot," corner of Cass and Pine streets. He will make an ascent at Cottage Grove Thanksgiving day. His wife is also an expert in making flights through the air and she had a rather thrilling experience at Woodburn, the "Independent" report it as follows:

A large crowd witnessed the hot-air balloon ascension and parachute drop by Mrs. Stella Davis last Saturday afternoon. Just before the balloon went up it caught fire and Professor Davis, who superintended the affair, recognized that his wife was in great danger, yet he permitted the balloon to go up 2100 feet before he fired his revolver as a signal for her to make the descent. She dropped 300 feet before the parachute opened up and even then she came down swifter than usual. The collapsed balloon lighted on a building. Prof. Davis also gave a pretty exhibition of tight-rope walking. Both were well worth seeing and fully earned their money.

Prof. Davis informed the Plaindealer that he made from 1,000 to 10,000 feet into the air, owing to the condition of the wind. He has a record for going up 12,552 feet, which was at Hardington, Neb., in 1902. The performance is given under auspices of the business men of the city and will take place about half-past two o'clock in the afternoon.
