Public Exercises. Prise Declas, About six weeks ago the Faculty of the above named University offered a gold and silver medal as prizes to be awarded for the best declamation to be delivered during the public examination at the close of the term. The school, by ballet, elected three young ladies and three young gentlemen as the most suitable ones to complete for the prizes. They each selected their own pieces and learned them at their leisure.

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Was the time set for the purpose of awarding these prizes to the successful competi tor. The chagel was well filled, owing to outside interest in the contest. Printed programmes had been prepared, giving the names of the students competing for the prizes and the ambject of their pieces. Miss Libble Woodward fare had a piece of instrumental music as an overture in a com mendable marger. The six competitor then took their places upon the platform and the interesting part of the ceremonies began.

J. W. JORY

Stepped to the front of the stage and deliv ered an oration entitled " The Corsican not Content," being a condensed history of the life of Napoleon Bonaparte. It was delivered in an able manner, the only objection that could be raised, being the lack of energy shown and the want of variation in the tone of the voice.

MISS EVA L. WILSON.

Being called out, rendered in an admirable manner a poem entitled, " The Red Jack et " It was descriptive of a conflagration and the heroic act of a fireman in saving the life of a little child. So perfect was her representation of the scene one could al most imagine himself present at the scene Her gestures were appropriate and her it tonations without a fault. She was rap turously applauded at its close.

P. H. D'ABCY Then stapped forward and delivered an oration entitled, "The Dying Alchemist." This was perhaps the most difficult piece of any to speak in the manner it merits. Bu he did well on it and showed very plainly that he had studied his part attentively and understood the manner in which it should be spoken.

MISS LYDIA E. CHAMBERLAIN

Was the next one on the programme. She had chosen for her piece, "The Soldier's Reprieve." It was an incident of the late rebellion and it came vividly home to the hearts of many. It was rendered in a very touching and sympathetic manner and drew tears to the eyes of many in the house. She literally carried her hearers with her and won the sympathy of all by the feeling manner in which she rendered the piece Her very heart seemed in the story she was relating and when she took her seat it was amid a well merited applause. MISS LIBBLE BROWN

Then resited a neem entitled "Abram

As for the Society paper entitled "The Hes perian Review," edited by E. W. Hammoud, it was entirely beyond our comprebension, and even then we fear it was not up to the expectation of the audience. The address by Henry H. Gilfrey was well rendered. We cannot speak too highly of th excellent orchestra music furnished or this occasion by Prof. A. L. We should imagine he made rather a poor selection but he rendered it in as commendatory a style as could be expected. His gestures were graceful and his articulation distinct. He could no doubt have succeeded much better with some other selection. THE AWARDING COMMITTEE.

Consisting of Rev. W. R. Stewart, C. A. Reed and Rev. L. L. Rowland, with but little hesitation awarded the first prize, a gold medal, appropriately engraved, to Miss Eva L. Wilson. After a long consultation, the second prize, a silver medal, was awarded to Miss Lydia E. Chamberlain. Rev. W. R. Stewart presented the medals to the young ladies with appropriate remarks, and the audience was then dismissed with the Benediction.

LACK OF INTEREST .- It is astonishing how little interest is taken by the public in the present examinations at the University. Unless a competition of some kind is on hand the attendance of spectators is very slim. This is no doubt embarrassing to the Faculty, who, during the past year, have done all in their power toward the advancement of the school ; and now, at the close of the term, when they desire to have the public know the result of their labors, there seems to be no disposition on the part of the patrons to visit the school and witness its success. The school has never been in a more prosperous condition than it is at present, and the Faculty are of course desirous to show the patrons of the school and the public generally the result of their labors. Some of the Trustees, even, have been quite negligent in their attendance, and it places the teachers in an unpleasant position. What is the use of a public examination unless the public attend ? We trust that our readers will show by their attendance during the balance of the examination exercises their appreciation of this institution of learning. The Faculty of the school are always pleased to have the publie attend, and will do all in their power to make the exercises interesting.

"THE GREAT REPUBLIC"-A NEW BOOK -Messrs. A. L. Baneroft & Co., of San Francisco, have recently issued and have just put in this market a new book bearing the title of "The Great Republic." As its title would indicate, it is a book designed to give a comprehensive view of the whole country. It treats of every material feature of every State in the Union, its matter being historical, statistical and descriptive. It is just that sort of book which is likely to be useful, any day in the year, to almost any literary or business man, of whatever class he may be. Some idea of its value may be gained when we say it is a book of over 1100 pages, and literally crammed with concise history, and statistics of almost every conceivable sort, relating to the United States. It is also finely illustrated and elegantly bound, making it a desirable volume for either library or centre-table. It is sold only by subscription. Mrs. Ellen Oakshett, of Portland, is about to canvass Salem for subscribers.

Parag Mapara-We have just been shown the medals awarded to the successful competitors at the University yesterday afternson.
