The principal excitements connect-Gov. Grover has made himself, now, ed with the Legislative session being more infamous than ever. Two years ago, he conspired with A. B. Hallock, are turning their attention seriously to Jas. H. Lappens and others of Portthe Presidential campaign. Mr. W. land, to distranchise the people of that city in respect to their local Police regulations. Men who were elected by the people, filling unexpired terms, J. F. Gazley entered upon his work in were by that conspiracy legislated out of office, and Gov. Grover, was enabled to occupy the place of Chief of ing his appointments for Eastern Orethe Police establishment, and to appoint his own creatures to subordinate laces. It was an outrage which all men with notions of common deceney then and ever since condemned unqualifiedly. It was one of the lafaous measures of 1870 which had to do largely with the loss to the Democracy of the State, by nearly a thousand najority and the city of Portland by ne hundred-the latter, a majority apprecedented in the history of the city. That act alone was an infamy, and an act of usurpation which no in-

But the Hallock-Lapens ring came here in force to again thwart the will of the cople and to keep the grasp of Grover firm upon their throats. What means they used to persuade the Governor is not known to the world; perhans no megus or persuasion were needed. The love of power and patronage is one of Grover's weaknesses. To him, it was a glorious thing to throttle the people of an entire city and hold them at his mercy. Such power has more attractions to his vain, weak mind, than the respect of men. He vetoed the repealing bill, and Portand still is captive, bound hand and foot and helpless, at the feet of Grover and the Hallock-Lappeus ring. The people of that city have no redress and no means of escape from maladministration though their musters might enact any act of despotism. The reasons which the Governor renders for his veto are a direct and gross islation.
