They regard the Secretary's action as hasty, while on the other hand he says that it is merely experimental, and by no means conclusive. In view of the change, and the fact that the Canadians have already commenced to absorb our immense sugar export trade, the Secretary of the Treasury has insisted that the Colceed without delay to organize a commission of experts for the purpose of making tests that will show with exactness the loss of weights on raw sugars in the process of refining. It was represented the Secretary that the old drawbacks allowance involved a bounty of one-hal cent per pound to the refiner, hence the reduction of the drawback. bonds will have fifteen years from the date

Thinking a short description of this part of the country will be interesting ton Territory are the most northwest erly State and Territory in the Union Oregon is bounded on the west by the Pacific ocean, north by Washington Territory and the Columbia river, on the east by Idaho Territory and Snake river, on the south by California and Nevada. Washington Territory is bounded on the west by the Pacific, on the north by British Columbia, on the east by Idaho, and on the south by Oregon and the Columbia river.— The Columbia river is large and deep enough for ocean steamships as far up as the Cascade Falls, say one hundred and fifty miles. The Williamette is large enough for steamships as far up as the falls, at Oregon City, twentyfive miles from its mouth. There is a canal and three locks on the Willamette at Oregon City falls, and boats pass up that river one hundred and the value of the sittings-the result being fifty miles, by the river channel, to that after paying for the erection of the the city or town of Eugene. The Yam-hill river empties into the Willamette or fifty thousand dollars. and the Tualatin river into the same, above the falls, and the Santiam river above Salem. They are all navigable rivers a shert distance, say from 20 to 50 miles, by small steamboats. Steambeats are run above the Cascades on the Columbia and Snake rivers for many miles up both streams.

The State is divided by two ranges of mountains, or nearly so; the Coast range beginning at Astoria, on the Columbia river, and continuing south along the coast, interspersed with beautiful and rich little valleys, with streams of clear, cold water running into the ocean, plenty of overflowed tide lands for pasturage, and rich up-lands along the mountain sides; and elk, deer, bear, cougars, and other wild game, abound. This part of the State embraces Clatsop, Tillamook, and a portion of Benton county. Still further south there are many rivers and fine bays, harbors and inlets, and plenty of tall timber of various kinds, together with coal, iron, and minerals of all classes. The next other man was respectable " range of mountains is the Cascade range, beginning at the fails on the Columbia river, and continuing south through the entire State. From the Galveston News. A gentleman living up the bay says a negro man, his wife, and four children were forced to take a tree to save them-selves during the late storm. The tree swayed to and fro with the violence of the wind, and threatened to fall with heavy burden. The old couple concluded that some one must be sacrificed to save the rest. After a consultation the old wo-man said she was not prepared to die, and urged the old man to drop himself into eternity. But he, too, wasn't ready, and the matter was compromised by launching the two youngest children into the surging waters. A few hours after they were resened, and the old negro told the story himself to those who saved him. A reporter being called to account for the statement that a certain meeting "was one other person besides himself was pres-ent, insisted that his report was literally other man was respectable."
