THE BRIDGE PROBLEM.

The narrow escape from drowning of Joe Jennings, son of N. S. Jennings, in Willow Creek, last Monday, is a problem that invokes serious consideration. The lad was on horseback on Fifth street the water was so high that it took horse and rider down stream, narrowly escaping serious wounds from the barb wire fence which is stretched across the creek at that point. Several others have been delayed considerably on account of the Traglio, pastor. Sunday school at 9.30 large volume of water. This calls to a. m., John Hoffman, Sr., superintendmind the many narrow escapes of a year ago.

It was then that the pullic became Everyone welcome. aroused at the danger of crossing the creek without a bridge. Numerous requests were sent to the County Court for the construction of a bridge across this stream. These requests were verbally allowed, but the county failed to comply with its promise.
