LITTLE WOODEN SHOES.

She was my Katrina,
This lovely maid so fair;
I was only a pleasant boy,
With heart as light as air,
When I first beheld her, Close by the farm yard gate, I looked into her saucy eyes,
And knew I'd met my fate.
I worked for many a day On her father's bit of land, Hoping there to earn enough To claim Katrina's hand.
When daily toil was over My sweetheart I'd amuse, And once I made for her Dear feet a pair of Wooden Shoes.

CHORUS.

Dear Little Wooden Shoes Clattering o'er the floor, My heart beating time to their patter; Oh, could I hear them once more;
So long as life shall last I'll never the memory lose Of those neat little feet as they Tripped down the street in Those dear Little Wooden Shoes.

One day my Katrina, Without a thought of harm, Left her father and lover true Upon the lonely farm;
Foolish little maiden,
So tired of country life, She left to seek a fortune grand Amid the city's strife; She found that satin slippers,
And silks and jewels rare, Would cost good name, and honor, too,
And all she held most dear,
And then she thought of home,
And of all she had to lose,
And started back before too late In those Little Wooden Shoes.

—Chorus.

Early in the evening, Before the sun went down, My Katrina came back to me In faded cotton gown, Vowing ne'er to leave me If I but would forgive, And take her to my heart again, Forever there to live;
Then in my arms I held her,
And kissed the tears away; Lovingly I pleaded that She'd name the wedding day; Then from her feet so weary,
And worn with many a bruise, With tender, loving care I took Those Little Wooden Shoes.

—Chorus.

LOCAL NEWS.

Relinquishments bought and sold by Riley Girthoffer, Shaniko, Oregon.

Henry Sachs made a flying trip to his earthly possessions one day last week.

The Hotel Polindexter of Prineville is the place to go for home-like comforts at popular prices.

Mrs. E. M. Mortimore, of the Little Plain, was doing business with our merchants recently.

Plowing is the order of the day, from which great big dollars will be very much in evidence next fall.

L. P. Paxton, who made an extended visit to the Valley, returned a short time ago, but not with the widow.

Eggs are bringing 22 per dozen; Butter, 25c to 35c per lb.; Cheese, 14 to 16c per lb., and chickens 12c to 14c per lb., on the Portland market.

Rock Robinson returned Saturday from Antelope and brought two work horses, preparatory to doing extensive work on his ranch.

George F. Cyrus, wife and child, of Prineville, were in Madras Friday to attend the funeral of Master Bernard Wilson, their nephew.

John Coulter, of the Big Plain, was a business visitor last Friday. He says that he expects to get in a good sized crop this spring.

J. O. Rose, who has a homestead one mile south of town, had three horses injured in a barb wire fence one day last week. He has built a barn and is now busy grubbing sage brush.

Fred Davis had one of his work horses almost ruined last Thursday afternoon. The animal while being worked to a scraper kicked it, striking it on its edge, nearly severing the leg from the body.

J. C. Tucker, of Oliver, was a pleasant visitor last week. He says that the country in his neighborhood is being rapidly settled up and the good government land near there is now about gone.

Wheat has touched the $1.20 mark in Chicago. From present indications prices will be lower this summer, large crops being harvested in Australia, with good prospects in other large wheat growing belts. It is now worth 87c in Portland.

Miss Ethyl Bell, formerly of Dufur, began to announce to the ladies of Madras and vicinity that she will put in a stock of millinery over T. J. Malloy & Co.'s store on or about the 1st of April. Before purchasing wait and see her stock.

A 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs.
William Pullan, of this city, had his leg broken Thursday afternoon. It appears that the boy was riding a pony along Main street, when the animal slipped and fell, catching the boy under his body with the above result.

Have you returned that borrowed neck yoke yet? We have not received ours.

Ed Mason is a farmer boy just now.
He is running the Shutt place adjoining town this year.

T. J. Malloy has invested in a farm and working equipment south of town.
Tom is not easy unless at work.

Miss B. Schooling and her friend, Miss McPherson, are more than glad that spring has come. Miss Schooling has a homestead on Agency Plains, and her old friend, Miss McPherson, is taking this opportunity of paying her an extended visit.

Some people say "you couldn't give me rye hay to feed my horses," while others say "rye hay is the only feed." We notice that the farm teams of J.
D. Mayes, Neil Jennings and others are good and fat—not in good working order—but just fat. These teams have been worked all winter. Mr. Jennings has plowed over 40 acres and has fed nothing but rye hay, neither has Mr. Mayes. We have noticed a number of such cases and am satisfied to have a few acres of rye ourselves.

TO OUR READERS.

Volume I, No. 26, of The Madras Pioneer appeared two weeks ago, which means that the baby weekly of the thriving city of Madras is now six months old. It is spoken of as a pretty husky youngster, keeping abreast of the growth of the town and is considered by our citizens as a great help in attracting the attention of the general public to the wonderful resources of Madras and vicinity.

We are indebted to the citizens of Madras in particular and to the people of Eastern Oregon in general who have made it possible for The Pioneer to assume its present proportions, as well as so large a circulation in so short a time.

It is generally conceded by our readers that The Pioneer is second to none in the amount of local news it publishes. This, however, could not be accomplished by its management alone. A splendid force of correspondents are at work all over the field, to whose untiring and intelligent efforts we are certainly greatly indebted and to whom we are exceedingly grateful. Others have sent in names of friends and asked that the paper be sent to them. This we have done, a number of whom have either paid or intimated that they would do so at the earliest opportunity. If, however, there are those who are now receiving The Pioneer who do not intend to pay for it, we shall be thankful if they will notify us so that we can stop it, for we do not want The Pioneer to go where it is not wanted.
We, however, do want every citizen of Crook county to read The Pioneer who is interested in the development of the county, and to them we would say if you want The Pioneer and haven't the money to pay for it send in your name anyway; you will doubtless be able to pay for it before the expiration of 1905. Wood at $3.00 per cord considered and accepted the same as cash.

It has been the aim of ye editor to make The Pioneer as newswy and as clean as possible and to give all the local news obtainable. Editorials have been ignored on this account. The world's news is obtained in the great weeklies, and the most of our people take at least one of these. Our motto for the coming six months will be Progress. We shall strive to give our readers the best to be had and with that end in view will ask that you assist us in building up the subscription list of The Pioneer, thereby enlarging the value of your own interests.

If you are not already a subscriber sign the blank to be found below and get your hand to do the same. But, above all things, send us all the local news of your neighborhood, and when you come to town hunt us up and say howdy; it will do us good and you too.
