Business men of The Dalles are making a strong effort to have the Columbia Southern train which now runs between Shaniko and Biggs, run on into The Dalles in tead of stopping at Biggs. Certainly no more disagreeable stopping place ever existed than at Biggs, where the wind always blows and the sand fills the air. To add to the disagreeableness of it, the west bound train on the O. R. & N. is generally from two to six hours late and this time must be spent at Biggs. It will delicious luncheon was served after the pertainly be a great boon to the traveling people of this section of the state, most of whom go west from Biggs, if the train should run on into The Dalles and permit them to spend the long hours of waiting at that place.

The Shaniko Bee is the latest vessel to launch on the tempestnous waters of journalism. Les. N. Kelsay, late of the Central (Silver Lake) Oregonian, is at the helm. Long may she sail and prosper.

A SHORTAGE OF SHEEP

Telegram.

C. J. Millis, livestock agent for the O. R. & N., says that never before in the history of the stockraising industry in Oregon have sheep been valued so highly as now. Mutton is selling on the hoof from $3.75 to $4. The ruling quotation for years has been $2.50, but in the opinion of Mr. Millis, mutton will not soon decline to that level, owing to the conditions now influencing the Eastern markets.

20,000,000 sheep in the United States," remarked Mr. Millis today. "Conditions appear favorable for a continuation of the prevailing high prices, because so much land has been taken up in the past four years, diminishing the grazing area and many persons who formerly dealt in sheep have retired Oregon has a less percentage of the shortage than most states. and as a result the number of Body that we are qualified electors of Crook sheep owned within its borders County and the State of Oregon, residing in is increasing. Wool has taken with the Sw 1-4 Sw 1-4 of section an upward move, many contracts having been closed in Idaho for the 1906 clip at 24 cents, which means that every sheep sheared in Oregon will turn off its back $2 worth of wool, though up to date I have not heard of contracting being carried on for the new clip.

"Shipments of sheep to the principal Eastern markets have been very heavy, and it is safe to say every available animal in the Northwest has either been placed in transit or is sold to be shipped, for there is a strong demand. Conditions are better now for the sheepmen than ever before, and the outlook is promising unless the speculators repeat the disastrous performance of a few days ago."
