Boise, Sept. 5 .- Vice President L. W. Shurtliffe, of Ogden, presided at of the National Irrigation congress, Senator Carter having returned to Montana. Governor Albert E. Mead, of Washington, later was called to the chair and Governor Chamberlain, of Oregon, presided a part of the day.

William K. McAllister, of Denver, the first speaker, dealt with the immibe followed urged the methods of the of Utah and adjoining states. Under the methods of the Mormon church these immigrants had been drawn from the agricultural classes of Northern Europe, from the best of the hard working peasants. Hon. John P. Irish, of California, asked the congress if it would not be better to close the country's gates to the more than 1,000,000 of foreign immigrants who were coming annually and give the youth of our own land a higher opportunity. The Californian declared that the immigration today parasitic immigration nection with that and other plots, successful and unsuccessful, to rob the United States of its lands.

By his testimony he implicated, not only in the Blue Mountain case, but in others similar, some of the most prominent politicians and public men of the state of Oregon, and furnished to the the opening of this morning's session last and strongest link in the chain of evidence against Franklin Pierce Mays, Willard N. Jones, George Sorenson, ex-Commissioner of the General Land Office Hermann, ex-Congressman Williamson and the late Senator Mitchell, against whom the indictment in the case now on trial was returned.

United States Senator Carter, of Montana, the presiding officer, gave a brief outline of the legislation enacted by congress giving to the president of the United States the extraordinary authority to exercise his discretion in setting apart such reservations. He made the declaration that it could be set down as the definite purpose of the national congress not only to stop furthree or four years of dairying on ther destruction of the forests, but to set aside reserves on which new timber may grow and where the headwaters of farmers in Polk are raising more than the streams may be conserved. 30 bushels of wheat to the acre on such

Mr. Pinchot stated that the policy of President Roosevelt was "to give every part of the public lands their very best use." The problem he said, was one of the most difficult, and one in which the forest service "had made lots of mistakes." Probably it would continue to make mistakes, he said, but the effort was to study, in connection with the people, the question of method by which all parts of the public reserve can be put to the best use. These reserves to a certain extent control the stock business of the West, he said, for the chief summer range is in the reserve. The stockmen could not be kept off entirely at the demand of the irrigationists, nor could the service let them have free run of the reserves. "So you see," said Mr. Pinchot, "that the forester stands in the middle and he gets it coming and going." The speaker stated that some reserves were practically without trees and one in Kansas was without a single tree-facts which had been the subject of much criticism-but it was the purpose to put trees there and to restore the grass on the range. The service, he said, had the biggest job of tree planting on the face of the earth.

Mr. Pinchot gave the number of rangers in the service as 1,137 and the supervisors as numbering 105. Under the laws of Prussia, he said, the same reserves would be controlled by 110,000 rangers and 12,000 supervisors.

Senator Heyburn was called to the platform and immediately launched into a bitter attack on the administra-tion's forestry policy. Some of the delegates were with Heyburn; a far larger element stood by Roosevelt and Pinchot. Once, when Heyburn made a particularly unjust criticism of the president, he was hissed from all parts of the convention hall and forced to suspend.

When the hissing began to subside, Heyburn, mad through and through, and waving his arms furiously, roared at the audience:

"Hiss, you geese, hiss." The hissing was renewed, and when should consent to this is out again subsided. Heyburn "Don't try that on me. I am too old a stager to be scared. You will listen to what say."

REVOLUTION CONTINUES.

Two Thirds of People Said to Sympathize With Insurgents.

Havana, Sept. 5 .- As days and weeks pass with no appreciable diminution of the revolution, apprehension increases. The most conservative testimony from the country district of the provinces of Pinar del Rio, Havana and Santa Clara is to the effect that two-thirds of the people in the country and small towns of these three provinces are insurgents in sentiment if not in fact. It is generally believed that the government ultimately will subdue the insurrection, 7.50; grain hay, $7; alfalfa, $10; but in the meantime the crops cannot be developed, and it is a grave question whether the rebellious spirit even then can be actually quelled to the extent of restoring the country to a normal self governing status.

A realization of this is the cause of the renewal of efforts for the restoration of peace. General Mario Menocal, whom the people trust as one capable of bringing the warring factions together, if such a thing is possible, came to Havana today and held two conferences with President Palma. General Menocal after the conference absolutely relused to make any statement.
