RICHES IN SANDS
 A new industry is developing at Hood River, already famous as the place that raised apples which pleased William Jennings Bryan. It has been discovered that the sands of the bar north of Hood River contain iron and gold, and experiments will be made to ascertain if they exist in paying quantities. A company has been organized and the necessary equipment secured for making the tests, which will be by a recently discovered process for separating the particles of mineral from the sand by magnetic attraction. This process will be employed by the promoters, who hope with it to wrest riches from the shifting sands of the Columbia.
