Barbers Ages Ago.

The first barbers of whom there is any record plied their trade in Greece in the fifth century B. C. In Rome the first barbers operated in the third century B. C. In olden times in England the barber and the physician were identical. Thus, a king's barber was also his chief medical adviser.

In the time of Henry VIII. of England, laws were made concerning barbers, of which the following is an extract: "No person occupying a shaving or barbery in London shall use any surgery, leating of blood or other matter, except the drawing of teeth."

The coffins of the ancient Egyptlans were made of marble and stone. The Romans used similar receptacies for their dead, and Alexander the Great is said to have been buried in a coffin of solid gold. In parts of England glass coffins have been found.

The Athenian heroes were buried in coffins made of cedar, owing to its aromatic and incorruptible qualities, while the first record of wooden coffins in England dates back to the days of King Arthur. This monarch was supposed to have been buried in the hollowed trunk of a gigantic oak. Patent coffins were invented in 1796, and metallic air tight coffins were advertised at Birmingham in 1861.

Salt is the latest device for laying dust on roads in the country. The author of the new departure is M. The list of these, while bringing out the weak side of the new system, possesses considerable interest as showing it to possess real possibilities of utility.
