James T. Robinson, of Culver, who was in the city Saturday, says he is among those who wanted county division, but qualifies his remark by stating that he thought the movement somewhat premature. Mr. Robinson wanted Jefferson county created and was not sorry that Nesmith county was killed in the Senate.—Review.

H. F. Dietzel of Madras was in Bend the first of the week looking up business for the Madras Milling Company. Mr. Dietzel says that on account of the heavy rains and snowfall a bumper crop is expected in the Madras country this year and that the milling company are laying plans to take care of their share of it.—Bulletin.

Dr. T. A. Long was at Heister on professional business, last Saturday. He says that while there he saw a big four-horse load of delayed mail for Prineville passing through. A. L. Goodwillie, mayor of Bend, was in town last Saturday morning, on his way home from Portland. Mr. Goodwillie was a passenger on the first Columbia Southern train into Shaniko in over four weeks. The train did not reach Shaniko Wednesday evening as reported, but got in for the first time in over four weeks, on Friday night, hauling in a number of passengers who had been waiting for the resumption of travel over the railroad before returning to their homes in Central Oregon. The first train in brought quite a lot of mail, the other mail received here on Thursday having come through in the stage sent out by Howell and Cornett from Shaniko.

F. W. Woolley, representative of the Portland branch of the Marshall-Wells Company, was in town last Tuesday. He was a passenger on the Bend stage which was up-set at Hanging Rock, and narrowly escaped injury as several hundred pounds of freight piled inside the stage, where he was riding, toppled over on him when the accident occurred. He extricated himself, however, and crawled through the top of the stage, and when he took an inventory of himself was pleased to find that he was all there.

THE RAZOR BACK OF ARKANSAS

An esteemed contemporary is responsible for the following story:

Arkansas has a greater variety of hogs and less pork than any state in the union. An average hog in Arkansas weighs about fourteen pounds dressed with its head on and about six pounds and a half with its head off. It can out-run a greyhound jump a rail fence, climb like a parrot and live on grass-roots and rabbit tracks. It hasn't much tail or bristle, but plenty of gall. It will lick a wolf or a bear in a fair fight. It is called razorback because it is shaped like a sun-fish. In hunting a razorback it is always shot at sideways, for there is not the ghost of a show to hit it otherwise, any more than to shoot at a split shingle.

It can drink milk out of a quart jar on account of its long, thin head. This type of razorback is known as the stone hog because its head is so heavy and its nose is so long that it balances up behind. The owner of this type of hogs usually ties a stone to its tail to keep it from overbalancing and breaking its neck while running. If the stone is too heavy, it will pull the skin over its eyes, and will go blind.

The large safe which was bought by L. M. Hahn from the Madras Milling Company has at last been opened, so that its owner can use it. At the time the safe was bought the combination was in the keeping of S. P. Conroy, who refused to divulge it to anyone. Mr. Conroy was gone for a year or more, and upon his recent return to this place agreed to open the safe for ten dollars, which proposition was accepted by the owner as it was entirely useless with its doors securely closed. At one time it was proposed to have an expert come in and open the safe but the expense would have been so great that this plan was abandoned.
