Second public wool sales day for the county has been postponed until July 8, which will be more than a million pounds of wool to be disposed of.

May Jackson left Thursday afternoon for The Dalles, from which place she will leave the first of the week for a visit at Spokane.

Max Luedemann returned Saturday morning from Moscow, Idaho, where he has been visiting at her old home during the month past.

Walton and Jack Patterson, decorators from Prineville, returned last Friday, looking after the work which they have at this place.

Boegli was up from the Cove Tuesday with a load of Crook County produce, peaches, apples and pears.

W. H. Sook is making arrangements to build a six-room cottage on the recently purchased by him and his wife from A. S. Phillips. He expects to have the cottage completed by occupancy by September 1.

Wendy, manager of the Bend Stage Co., was in town last Friday during the week. While he was in town he bought two good horses for his business at Bend, one of them from Butler and the other from Emil.

O'Donnell was in town the week from his ranch on the river. Mr. O'Donnell has one of the best locations on the river, if the survey passes as projected, as the survey passes his land.

Smith and wife were in town last Monday from the Irvine ranch at the Bend. Mr. Smith has a fine fruit farm, which is being planted into a fruit farm. Recently he had 800 trees set out, and they are showing a very satisfactory crop. The trees are of mixed varieties, including apples, pears and peaches.

Taylor got in last Monday with his Holt combined harvester which he recently purchased through A. C. This is the first combined harvester ever brought into Crook County and it attracted considerable interest when it was brought through Madras. The harvester has 26 horses to operate one and was bought by Mr. Taylor.

Taylor, his sister, Miss Minnie B. and Mrs. Nellie E. Grigsby were in town last Monday from Hay Creek, the named filing upon homesteads in the county. Miss Taylor and Mrs. Grigsby are both from Birmingham, Ala., although the former has for years past been teaching school in the county. They expect to make their home on their ranches near Hay Creek.

W. Brown was in town from last Saturday. Mr. Brown says he is right in the midst of the hay crop at their ranch on Hay Creek, and that Saturday's rain caught them with a lot of hay down. He didn't feel over the rain as he would have a later, although he recognizes the benefits to the grain crop. The man has a hard time pleasing his wife.

Marmach has returned from a trip to the Alberta country in the Northwest, where he spent the month prospecting for a location. Impressions of that country are reported to have been as favorable as expected, and it is not yet known whether he has decided to locate there. Alberta country is unquestionably a farming district, but it has its drawbacks in other sections. The severity of the winter season is the greatest handicap which that section suffers.

The next morning some of the plants, early corn, cucumbers, melons, potatoes, and so on, looked badly wilted, but most of us concluded to "buck up" and not be discouraged. The corn will come out again.

of the potato tops were so large they are not all killed, and the rest will come from the tuber. Then we will have some more tomato plants to take the place of those that were not covered over everything will be running again. Rye and the jumpers through all right so we still have to be thankful for.—Redmond cor.

and Bulletin.

There have been a number of timber seekers through Madras, going to the Matoles country to look at this timber before it is opened for entry. Settlement on the land cannot begin before July 27.

Fred Waymire of Colfax, Wash., is visiting his brother, J. C. Waymire, at this place. He says crops are looking good in the Palouse country, and there is promise of a big yield. Mr. Waymire is farming quite extensively in the Palouse country, having charge of about 1100 acres of land. He came down to spend a couple of weeks of leisure time which he has on his hands before harvest.

John Hammond arrived here from Portland yesterday, and expects to spend several days in this locality. He has recently returned from Klamath Falls, where he had a position on one of the large Government ditch contracts. Mr. Hammond says that John Palmeho, original owner of the land upon which the Madras townsite is located, is now living at Portland.

On last Sunday afternoon Gottfried Kampfer, a sheepman living on Trout Creek, met with a very painful accident which will put him on the retired list for some time. He was kicked on the leg above the ankle by a vicious horse and both bones were broken. Dr. A. E. King was telephoned for, and reduced the fracture. Aside from being painful, the accident lays Mr. Kampfer up at a very busy season, when his sheep must be looked after, harvesting must be done, and hands are scarce.—Antelope Herald.

J. F. and W. C. Blanchard have purchased from Conrad Strasser, Henry Grob and Chris Harry, the complete threshing outfit owned by them and which has been operated by them for the past two seasons in the Methodist Hill and Opal Prairie localities. The machine is as good as new, and Blanchard Brothers expect to operate it the coming season, beginning about August 1. Both of them have had nearly twenty years' experience in operating threshers. They will begin threshing this season from the headers, and later on threshing from the stacks, in which manner they get an early start and a long run during the season.
