COMMENDABLE CO-OPERATION

The promptness and unanimity with which the farmers in the south-western portion of this road district responded to the notice to clean their lands of noxious weeds shows a commendable spirit, and will greatly facilitate the work of ridding the district of these troublesome plants.

The weeds have not yet become so numerous in this section as to be a present menace to the farming industry, but the work of extermination is timely in order to prevent their further spreading, and to avoid the condition existing in several counties of Eastern Washington and Eastern Oregon, where much valuable wheat land has been rendered worthless by the weed pest.

EXAMINE CROOK COUNTY COAL

It is reported that coal experts in the employ of the O. R. & N. Co. visited the Crook County coal discovery east of Haycreek, during the past week, and made a careful examination of the coal, both as to quantity and quality.

ROLANDO PARRISH DEAD

Passes Away at Portland on Monday - Funeral at Haycreek Tomorrow

Rolando Parrish, a prominent farmer and stockman residing two miles north of Haycreek, died at Portland last Monday afternoon, after a brief illness.

Mr. Parrish was an old resident of the Haycreek locality, his home on the Prineville road having afforded hospitality to many who travel that road, for years.

Mr. Parrish had a large number of friends at this place, many of whom will go to Haycreek tomorrow to pay a last tribute of honor and respect.

THE COVE ORCHARD

William Boegli's fruit ranch, the Cove Orchard, is one of the most remarkable little ranches in Crook County. Hidden down in Crooked River Gorge, between precipitous walls reaching up nearly 1100 feet, one's first thought upon driving down the grade and discovering the little ranch nestling below is "How did they ever find it?"

Mr. Boegli markets most of his fruit at Prineville and Bend. He does not make regular trips to Madras because this market is supplied by nearer fruit-growers; but he sells considerable fruit at the orchard to people from this locality.
