The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the cause of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The process has been so much talked of in its various stages that it is a cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Consoling! "Poor John! He was a kind and forbearing husband," sobbed the widow on her return from the funeral.

"Yes," said a sympathizing neighbor; "but it's all for the best. You must try and comfort yourself, my dear, with the thought that your husband is at peace at last."—Sketchy Bits.

Familiar Sign. Church—I see the public service commission has recommended side doors on the railroad cars.

Gotham—And will they expect to have the words "family entrance" over them?—Yonkers Statesman.

Floored. "You say there's no such thing as a meter? Then there is no such thing as a gas meter. Yet you are paying out your good money for 8,000 feet of gas registered by a machine that doesn't exist."

"Certainly! There is no such thing as money."

GREATEST PORT IN FRANCE.

Commerce of Paris Has Annually Been Growing in Importance. Paris will soon be the greatest port in France. Work which was begun thirty-seven years ago is now nearing completion and when this is done the gay capital will have many miles of wharves capable of handling thousands of tons of merchandise daily.

Shortly after the war of 1870 the Paris Municipal Council decided to establish wharves along the river banks so that boat traffic could be more rapidly developed. A vast plan of improvement was then laid out. The river was dredged. Locks were established both above and below the city, so as to maintain the river at a nearly constant level. Then a series of docks was established, some of which were large enough to take Channel steamers of moderate tonnage.

The chief feature of the shipping which has Paris as its home port is stone, plaster and other building material. Huge quantities of cereals and wine are also handled. Among the things which Paris ships to the provinces by way of the Seine is refuse derived from old buildings which have been torn down, and such unattractive material as chemical manures and so forth.

During the year 1906 almost 13,000,000 tons were shipped from Paris. Last year's record surpassed this by another half million. When the present improvements are completed it is believed that the annual tonnage will be almost doubled. Practically all the ground removed in excavating for the city's new underground railroad was carried away by Seine boats. All the material used in its construction came by the same route.

The only port which at present surpasses Paris in annual tonnage is Marseilles, and within the next few months even Marseilles will have to take second place.

Humane Work That Is Practical.

Other tender-hearted women have attempted to lighten the burden of draught horses with varying degrees of success, but it has remained for Mrs. Theodore Thomas, wife of the great orchestra leader, to hit on a practical remedy for the evil. She is taking steps to submit to the city council of Chicago a mammoth petition for an ordinance regulating the tonnage a horse may be required to draw. It is her hope that the full legal penalty may be attached to the measure, and that it will be enforced. She realizes that, while a good many owners of horses might be influenced by arguments based on sentiment, there are hundreds who can be reached only through their pockets. If she can make it expensive for an owner to overload a wagon, she thinks she will be able to save the four-footed animals many a weary task.

Mrs. Thomas does not content herself with having her petition signed by leading citizens. She goes every day among the teamsters themselves and, by simple reasoning, induces them to add their names to the plea. Her argument is that it is to the teamster's interest to see that his horse is not overtasked, because he then will be able to do his own work much more quickly and so, in time, command higher wages. Many hundreds of teamsters have given their signatures to the earnest woman, and she expects to have the names of a fair proportion of the owners on the sheet before she takes it to the council.

An Old-Fashioned Tanner.

A Pleasure Foregone. "Have you studied political economy?" "No, sir," answered Senator Sorghum. "I'd like to, but I'm afraid my constituents would think I was amusing myself reading books instead of hustling for pensions and appropriations."—Washington Star.

Helpful Hint.

"What would be a good motto for a young author?" asked the youth with dreams. "First, be sure you typewrite and then go ahead," replied the reader from Puntagon's publishing house.—Kansas City Times.

One thing may be said to the credit of the parrot: He never makes anything worse in repeating it.

Madge—Why did you refuse him if he is such a prudent man? Dolly—He said he thought if he got married he could save more money.—Puck.

First M. P.—And do most of your constituents think as you do on this question? Second M. P.—Well, most of them think as they think I do.

Ethel—Have you heard of Jack's engagement to Eleanor? Harold—Dear me! No. Then Jack has finally succeeded? Ethel—No; succumbed.—London Tatler.

Patience—Don't you think great pianists are born? Patrice—Well, I don't believe any child is born with as much hair as a pianist has to have!—Yonkers Statesman.

She—I hear Miss Chatter is talking of getting married again. He—Didn't know she was ever married. She—She wasn't; I said she was talking of it again.—Comic Cuts.

Tommy (hampered with a conscience and home from an afternoon party)—Mamma, darling, I've a great favor to ask of you. Please don't ask me how I behaved!

Mamma—Helen, you know that I whip you because I love you and wish you to grow up a good girl. Helen—Well, mamma, I wish you didn't think quite so much of me.

"The office should seek the man, you know." "That's all right," replied the avowed aspirant, "but I gave it a fair chance, and it seemed diffident."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"And do you mean to say you prefer Chollie? You told me that you always fell so perfectly at home with Algie." "So I do, but with Chollie I feel as if I were at a restaurant."—Harper's Bazar.

Mrs. Benham—Why don't you see him and ask him for the money he owes you? Benham—You don't know what a plausible talker he is, my dear; if I should meet him, he would borrow more of me.

Reporter—I suppose you don't know what the Senator thinks about this tariff reform business? Senator's Private Secretary—No; no more than you do. I only know what he says about it.—Chicago Tribune.

Tom (at the musicale)—Don't you think Miss Screecher sings with considerable feeling? Jack—Not so I can notice it. If she had any feeling for the rest of us she wouldn't sing at all.—Chicago Daily News.

Mistress—Jane, I saw the milkman kiss you this morning. In the future I will take the milk in. Jane—"I wouldn't be no use, mum. He's promised never to kiss anybody but me."—London Illustrated Bits.

The teacher had been talking about a hen sitting on eggs, and with the incubator in mind, asked if eggs could be hatched in any other way. "Yes, sir," said an experienced person of nine. "Put 'em under a duck."

Madame (to the nursemaid, who has just brought home her four children from a walk)—Dear me, Anna, how changed the children look since I last saw them! Are you quite sure they are the right ones?—Flegende Blatter.

"Pardon me, sir," began the portly person in the railroad train to the man who sat next to him, "but what would you say if I sat on your hat?" "Suppose you sit on it and then ask me," suggested the other. "I did," admitted the portly person, calmly.—Harper's Weekly.

"Things look rather run down around here," remarked the man who had returned after many years to his native village. "Run down? I should say so," replied the friend of his youth. "There's an automobile comes through here about every three minutes."—Philadelphia Record.

Mother—Elsie, you mustn't make such a noise on the stairs. Now, just go right up to the top and come down quietly like a good girl. (After the descent.) You see? I never even heard you that time. Elsie—All right, mother, I will always slide down the banisters in the future.

Harvey—You should have seen Hot-ayre swell up at that mind-reading seance the other night when the blindfolded lady actually told him the number of his automobile. Beetle—But he has no auto. Harvey—Of course not. But he looked astounded and acknowledged she was right.—Puck.

"Well," said the young lawyer, after he had heard his new client's story, "your case appears to be good. I think we can secure a verdict without much trouble." "That's what I told my wife," said the man, "and yet she insisted at first that we ought to engage a first-class lawyer."—Philadelphia Press.

Lazy Lewis—I was told that de farmer wot lives on dat hill paid his hands just de same whedder dey worked er not, so I went an' hired 'em. Tired Thomas—Den youse played off sick, I reckon? Lazy Lewis—Yep, an' at de end of de month I found dat he never paid nobody nothin' nohow.—Chicago Daily News.

From the Altruistic Point of View. He—So your marriage was a failure? She—Oh, I don't know.

He—Why, I thought you had secured a divorce? She—I did.

He—Well, don't you call that a complete failure? She—Hardly. You see, my partner made an assignment and I received a very neat sum as a preferred creditor.

He—Oh—um—er—I beg your pardon!—Judge.

Side Lights on Mythology. Vulcan had just put four new horse shoes on the feet of the Centaur.

"Easiest job I ever did," he said to the bystanders. "He stood perfectly still, and when I lashed him the fly brush he kept the flies away himself."

Habitual Constipation

May be permanently overcome by proper personal efforts with the assistance of the one truly beneficial laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, which enables one to form regular habits daily so that assistance to nature may be gradually dispensed with when no longer needed as the best of remedies, when required, are to assist nature and not to supplant the natural functions, which must depend ultimately upon proper nourishment, proper efforts, and right living generally.

To get its beneficial effects, always by the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. ONLY SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS one size only, regular price 50¢ per Bottle.

Do Good While You May. It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness or speaking a true word or making a friend.—John Ruskin.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Poisonous substances are then absorbed into the blood, instead of being removed from the body daily as nature intended. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills, liver pills. All vegetable.

The Higher Mathematics. Nibbs—Do you suppose it's ever possible to come anywhere near the size of a man's income?

Diggs—Yes; just take the figure he gives to the assessor, add to it the figure he tells his friends and then divide the result by two and you'll have it near enough.—Illustrated Bits.
