The Hemisphere Seasons, Since the earth is much farther from the sun when it is summer in the northern hemisphere and winter in the southern than when the seasons are reversed, it might be supposed that the climate would be more extreme in the southern half of the earth than it is in the northern. The actual difference is made slight by the fact that the proportion of land to water is much greater in the northern hemisphere.

Photographing the Eye.

Various semi-sensational accounts have been printed of attempts to secure by photography the picture of an image that had been fixed on the retina of the eye. An incident of that kind was widely exploited some time ago, in which it was sought to identify a murderer by photographing the eye of the victim, the notion being that the retina had retained the image of the murderer's face. Nothing definite has been shown in the matter, however, until a comparatively recent date, when an experimenter succeeded in getting a clear picture of an object from the retina of his own eye. First, he looked at a coin intently in ordinary daylight for about one minute. Then, drawing a yellow screen over the window of his room to exclude all actinic light, he fixed his eyes on a photographic plate, allowing his mind to think of nothing but the coin. After looking at the plate for forty-three minutes he developed it and found that the outline of the coin was clearly shown. Another experiment was even more interesting, and this was the face. made in the presence of three friends. Instead of a coin, he looked at a postducing an image on a sensitized plate.

Atlanta, Ga., U. S. A., boasts of some ingenious and ambitious boys, since two lads of that place, the older but 14 and and free, and now in the evening when the younger 11, have designed and constructed a clock that is a wonder of painstaking work.

It contains over 300 pieces of wood, all of them cut from boards with a small foot-power scroll saw, and afterward sandpapered and put together with screws and mucliage.

The clock represents a cathedral, from the dome of which a bell peals building the columns and statuary of a cathedral are reproduced in wood.

The clock is fifty-one inches high and twenty-one inches wide at the base, and the contrast in colors is decidedly pretty, the wood used being maple, white holly and walnut.

The figures on the dial were cut from walnut with a pocketknife, and look attractive on the white holly, Rabbit's Foot Luck.

There is an old superstition among the colored people of the South that a rabbit's foot brings good luck to any person that carries it around with him. A certain young man was in the South on a visit last winter, and one day he met an old colored man named Eph.

"Uncle Eph," said he, "do you believe in that story about the rabbit's foot's bringing good luck?"

"Yas, sah, I does, an' I can prove it right now, sah." Then he brought from his pocket a pretty specimen of a velvety paw and said that the rabbit it had belonged to was even then stewing in his kitchen.

"An' of rabbit stew ain't luck, what is? Tell me dat!"

Making a Happy Morning.

Here is an infallible recipe for making a happy summer morning at the seashore: Two children; two little shovels, of either wood or metal. One sen; one sandy beach, with not too many pebbles. One dozen clam shells, more or less. One sun; two sunbonnets or wide-brimmed hats. Mix the shovels with the sandy beach and season well with starfish. Add the sunbonnets or the broad-brimmed hats to the children, and when thoroughly united add the wooden pails. Spread the sun and the sea on the beach, and sprinkle well with clam shells. Add the children, mix thoroughly and bake as long as advisable. Don't add the mother or the nurse except when absolutely necessary.

LAST OF THE PASCAGOULAS.

An Indian Legend from the Shores of the Gulf of Mexico.

An Indian legend of the Pascagoulas is told by the fishermen and oystermen down on the shores of the Gulf of Mexico, says the New York Post.

"You know dem Pascagool?" asks Francois. "You wait, I tell neem you": and "you know-a da Pascagoula?" usks Costello, "You hear-a da music, si?"

A point reaches out into the gult, near the mouth of the Pascagoula River. The pine trees on it come almost to the water's edge, and between lies a strip of white sand. Across a marsh, a border of light green swaying and rustling grasses, and beyond a gray cypress swamp, the hanging moss of the trees swaying in the wind. To the south the blue waters of the gulf stretch away, with little waves lapping on the chalk-white clam shells of the shore.

There in the evening during the short twillight one hears soft music, as if it were the notes of a violin, insistent, changing, sweet. It is the song of the Pascagoulas. Long years before the Pascagoula Indians had lived upon this point. The white men, the Spaniards, came in numbers, and with them the hostile warriors of other tribes, to make war and to drive the Pascagoulas out of the country. Coming from the inland, the enemy took away all chance of flight and hedged them in on the point. The Pascagoulas fought for days and nights in the dark pine woods against outnumbering foes. Then they saw that all was useless; that they could not overcome and starvation stared them in

The Pascagoulas called a council of the tribe and talked long together. To age stamp for one minute in a strong give themselves up meant lives of slalight, and then fixed his eyes on a plate very or death and to fight to the last for twenty minutes. On developing the man was to leave the women and chilplate he found some of the details of dren to the mercy of the white men into the waters behind them, singing. Not one faltered. They died with their Portland Business College faces toward their enemies, bravely the wind blows over the marshes the pines and grasses sing the song of the Pascagoulas.

Small Bonds Needed.

In making what it calls a plea for small bonds a writer says that for several years the heads of railroad and other corporations have been doing everything to attract investors "except forth the hours of day. Inside the to wrap up their goods in small enough packages."

He compares them to a butcher who would not sell small cuts but would compel customers to buy a whole hog or beef, in which case most people would have to take to poultry or fish.

"Many bond and brokerage bonses, as well as some magazines and newspapers," says this writer, "are making strenuous efforts to educate the people as to the investment merits of bonds. tools used, the boys have succeeded in Their efforts are largely wasted because $1,000 bonds are out of the reach

"The average savings bank deposit is ess than $1,000, even less than $500 in ing its construction.—The Boys' World. many sections of the country. However attractive railroad and other bonds may look to the owners of our $3,500,-000,000 of savings bank deposits, the majority of the owners of this immense fund can not buy bonds.

> "The only investment fruit that he permitted to grow within their reach is the stocks of railroads, industrial and mining corporations. This is frequently poor in quality and often bitter. The people eat it because they can get no other."-Moody's Magazine.

A Delicate Task. "The newspapers," said the orator, solemnly, "do not tell the truth." "Perhaps not," answered the editor, regretfully. "We do our best; but, you know, there is nothing more difficult than to tell the truth in a way that won't put it up to some one to challenge your veracity."-Washington Star. His Ambitton. "To think," said the visitor, "that you will have to go through life an ex-convict!" "Well, miss," replied Crowbar Claude. "to tell you the truth, just at present there ain't nothing I'd like more to be."

A girl's idea of a beau is a young man she doesn't want any other girl to John Has Become a Sightseer,

"John Chinaman, as a race, has become fired with municipal zeal," said a New Yorker who likes to watch the sightseeing wagons, "Also John has became financially reckless. Several times this spring I have seen 'rubbernecks' go by with two or more Chinamen among the passengers. I don't remember ever to have seen that phenomenon until this senson, except, of course, in the case of traveling Orientals. But the sightseeing Chinese that I have noticed lately are residents of New York out for the first time in their lives probably to see something of the town they live in."

Conscientions About It. "Mr. Glizzard," asked the caller, "are you carrying all the life insurance you can afford?"

"No," answered the man at the desk. "I can afford more, and I had expected to take out more, but from a note I got from my employer this morning I have begun to suspect that I'm carrying a good deal more than I am worth."

KASPARILLA

This sterling household remedy is most successfully prescribed for a "world or troubles." For derangements of the digestive organs it is a natural corrective, operating directly upon the liver and ali mentary canal, gently but persistently stimulating a healthful activity. Its beneficial influence extends, however, to every portion of the system, aiding in the processes of digestion and assimilation of food, promoting a wholesome, natural appetite, correcting sour stomach, bad breath, irregularities of the bowels, constipation and the long list of troubles directly traceable to those unwholesome conditions. Kasparilla dispels drowsiness, headache, backache and despondency due to inactivity of the liver, kidneys and digestive tract. It is a strengthening tonic of the highest value.
