

Arrivals at Madras.

A. W. Boyce was in town last Monday from the Haystack country.

Mrs. J. R. Mendenhall were in town Monday from the Culver country.

Wood was a visitor in town last Monday from his home near Crooked Creek.

H. J. Healy and son were in town Monday from their home near Haystack.

Farrell and his son, Ward, were in town Monday from the Lyle Gap.

Eddie Cleck of Prineville, who is a relative at Culver, was in Madras Monday.

Summers of Prineville has been in town several days this week, looking after his matters.

Harold Clark returned to his home in Madras last Friday, after spending several days in Madras.

Windom came down from Culver Monday and joined his wife and children who were attending the Baptist conference.

Paxton was in town Friday with his lumber from the Grizzle mill. He is building a granary and some other improvements at his place.

James Wood and two children of his are visiting at the home of Mr. J. T. Robinson in Madras. They came over with Miss Grace Robinson Sunday.

Robinson, who has been in town for a month or more, returned to Madras last Saturday evening, after some time prospecting in the Haystack district.

Rice of Haystack was in town Monday afternoon on his way home from prospecting reservation, where he made arrangements for range for the B. S. & L. Co.'s sheep.

Read returned to his home at Madras Thursday from Shaniko. He reports that the streets are full of big outfits loaded with wool, waiting to be turned out at the warehouse.

W. H. Snook returned Sunday from Portland where he has been enjoying the Rose Carnival. Mrs. Snook and children spent several days in Portland before going on to Pacific Grove, where they will spend the summer.

Mrs. Jim Read, Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Thomas Alderdyce are at the A. Y. P. Exposition. They left last week for Seattle and expect to spend about three weeks there.

Mrs. Read will also visit at Bellevue, Washington, and at Portland.

Boegli was in from the Cove Monday of the week. Visitors from the north are the fishing is extremely good. Boegli's are the finest hosts possible. They make everybody feel at home. It is a hard trip down into canyon country, but the average visitor would not make every day in the year.

Friday and his mother, Mrs. Friday, were in town the first of the season from their home at Cross Keys. The fishing season began yesterday at the ranch and they are now putting out the first crop of alfalfa. Mr. Friday will have a good crop of alfalfa though it will probably not be as good as they harvested last year.

Baldwin, cashier of the First National bank of Prineville, passed through town last Thursday, accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Baldwin. They were on their way to attend the Rose Festival in Portland and will go on to Seattle to see the Exposition. Mr. Baldwin, who is a prominent Mason, will also attend the Grand Lodge while he is in Seattle.

Surveyor Rice and Roadview-ender and Vandevort spent several days in this vicinity the latter part of the week. They are looking out new county roads. The proposed new roads which need out was a road in the Round Bay country and the road from Madras to Crooked Creek. It is understood that they will make a favorable report upon both of these roads.

Number of Prineville people came in last Sunday to see the oil prospect on the West slope of Grizzly, where the Oil & Gas Company is sinking a well. The party came down in two teams and spent some time looking over the prospect. Work on the well is progressing nicely, and the well is now down 100 feet. The drillers are somewhat disappointed by a surplus of water in the water rising 400 feet in the well. It is extremely difficult to drill with this handicap, however, the well is going down rapidly, as they are drilling into a soft shale formation.

McKenzie of Grizzly was a visitor in town Tuesday.

Sanford made a business visit to Madras last Friday, returning Sunday.

Elva Smith left Monday morning for Cross Keys, where she is visiting at the home of Mrs. Friday.

Vantassel has decided to engage in real estate business at Sisters, and to open up an office there Monday.

Nora Livingston left Monday morning for Vancouver, Wash., where she will make an extended visit with relatives.

Shook of Lamonta was a visitor in Madras Tuesday. Mr. Shook has a home in the Juniper Springs neighborhood.

Warren Smith, who has been in the barbering business at Prineville for a number of years, has moved down to Madras and taken charge of the shop at this place.

George Rodman and family of Culver were in town yesterday on their way to Hood River. They expect to drive through and will spend several weeks at Hood River.

J. E. Bedingfield and baby and Mrs. Laura Phillips returned last Friday from Monkland, Sherman county, where they visited for three weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Pinkham.

W. Bennett is building a dwelling house on his lots near the old Itham house. The lumber is on the ground for the house, which will be 26 by 30 feet in dimensions, and the carpenter work was started Tuesday.

Mrs. T. B. Tucker and her son, Pearl, and daughter, Hazel, returned yesterday from Portland, where they have been spending some time while Pearl received medical treatment. He has almost fully recovered from his long siege of illness.

A party of Klamath Falls business men were in Madras last Saturday on their way to Shaniko, returning Monday. They were traveling in a large touring car. The roads between this place and Klamath Falls are said to be good now for automobile driving.

Albert Moore of Lamonta was in town last Thursday presenting the testimony in his contest against the homestead entry of George W. Thompson. The defendant did not appear to defend his entry. A. R. Mishler and Dan McDade were witnesses for Mr. Moore.

Don P. Rea, secretary of the townsite company, left yesterday morning for his home in Portland. Mr. Rea has been in Madras since last October looking after townsite matters, and this is his first visit home in eight months. He says he will probably not return to Madras before Fall.

William H. Langford was in town Tuesday from the Culver country. Mr. Langford's brother and his family from the North Yakima country recently visited him for a week. They had disposed of their interests in the Yakima country and were moving through to California, where they will locate. Mr. Langford says that some of the crops in the Culver country are looking fine, but others are badly damaged by the long drouth.

Farmers down from Agency Plains yesterday reported that more rain had fallen there than in Madras. The soil was wet down three inches or more, and crops were undoubtedly much benefited.

There was more rain Wednesday afternoon and as it is still cloudy the indications are that the rain is not yet over with.

In an item in last week's paper regarding the irrigation project which J. G. Houston is promoting, the land to be reclaimed was referred to as being on the West side of the Deschutes, which was in part an error. Mr. Houston's original project included 2000 acres on the West side of the Deschutes, but this project has been extended so as to take in about 5000 acres more lying between the Deschutes and Crooked River on what is known as "the peninsula." Mr. Houston says that he is meeting with very encouraging success in the promotion of his project.
