

MADRAS And The Madras Country

Every Read of Culver was in town Tuesday.

McCree of Lamont was a visitor Tuesday.

O Lee was in town Tuesday from near Culver.

Mendenhall was a visitor in Madras Saturday from Culver.

From the wife of Glenn Loucks, Friday, October 29, a daughter.

Mrs. Orval Davis of Haycreek was a visitor in Madras the first of the month.

Thomas Alderlyce and wife were in town Saturday from their ranch near Madras.

Mrs. Warren Smith went to Lamont Tuesday for an extended visit with her mother.

Mrs. George Osborn and her daughter, Mrs. Lulu, were in town from their home near Culver yesterday.

W. Robinson, who has been spending the past two days in the Lamont country, returned home Tuesday.

Mrs. J. C. Robinson are expected home today from Portland, where they have been spending the past two days.

W. Culp had the misfortune to lose the axle of a wagon he was repairing on his foot yesterday, breaking the bones and bruising the foot badly.

Mrs. E. N. Strong came over from Prineville Sunday and are spending the week in Madras. Mr. Strong is representative of the Oregon Life insurance company.

C. C. Covey, superintendent of the Lamont Reservation, was a visitor in Madras from the agency Tuesday. He was accompanied by W. H. Cook, one of the men employed at the agency.

G. Springer, who was a delegate from Madras County to the Dry Farming Convention at Billings, Montana, arrived in Madras Monday evening and spent a few days in town while on the way his to see at Culver.

Tom Calahan, one of the contractors on the Deschutes Railroad, was in town Tuesday. Calahan Brothers have the contract from Trout Creek to Porter canyon, and have one of the heaviest pieces of work on this end of the line. They have already completed several miles of grade.

Mr. Ethna B. Wood returned Tuesday from Alberta, Canada, where she spent some time looking over that country. She says that she was very much pleased with the section and while there purchased a section of land. Mrs. Wood expects to return to the Alberta country in the near future.

A. M. Drake, who is interested in a water project at Bend, was in town Tuesday on his way to Portland. Mr. Drake is holding a large dam across the Deschutes River at Bend which will be used for developing power for lighting and manufacturing purposes at that place. It says the wave of railroad enthusiasm has permeated Bend, which has experienced a brisk revival of trade in consequence.

W. H. Taylor, who recently purchased the Gray tract adjoining the townsite on south, returned Tuesday to his home in Madras. Mr. Taylor is perfecting his plans for plating the property purchased by him, and will probably return to Madras in the next two weeks for the purpose of constructing these plans. His property is very advantageously located and promises to become one of the attractive districts of the town.

Bishop Robert L. Paddock of the Episcopal diocese of Eastern Oregon held services in Madras last Thursday evening, and there was a large congregation of the people out to hear him. Bishop Paddock is a fluent speaker and a finely educated gentleman, and those who attend his services are always rewarded by carrying home rich treasures for thought, of which the bishop is always liberally provided. Bishop Paddock was upon his regular visit to this section.

Singing evangelists Lewtas and Reed, who will be in Madras to conduct special services next week at the M. E. church, are highly recommended by the clergy and pass for their splendid singing and effective speaking. Mr. Lewtas is an extensive traveler, having crossed the Atlantic five times, and has conducted successful meetings in England, Ireland and Wales, during the past two years. He has also traveled through France, Switzerland, Italy, Turkey, Greece, Syria, the Holy Land and Egypt. Mr. Reed is a distinguished baritone singer and has traveled with Dr. Lewtas in British Columbia, Washington, Idaho, on tana and also in Oregon.

PRINEVILLE JOURNAL
Mr. and Mrs. George Osborn, O. G. Collier and Walter Mendenhall were in town Monday from their homes at Culver attending to business. They state that it is all railroad now with the people there and you can't find a resident that will talk anything else.

Duncan McLeod and Guy Allingham made a business trip to Madras last Tuesday in Guy Lafollett's car. E. M. Orth, of the Lumbermans National Bank of Portland, was also a passenger with them.

D. W. Barrett, the Madras real estate dealer, was in Prineville yesterday. He reports business booming at Madras, hotels overflowing and property values away up.

S. D. Percival and family and Mrs. M. E. Percival were in town Madras the last of the week attending the fair. Mr. Percival is foreman of the Madras Pioneer.

Gillis Woodard, B. F. Johnson, W. J. Nichols and Douglas Ingram went out to Madras last Sunday in the Hodson car. The gentlemen claim they were out to buy real estate—Prineville Review.

Give Him High License
One of the absurd things small towns do is to place an almost prohibitive license upon traveling entertainments, thus depriving its citizens of amusement, except the local shows given by home talent. The city officials should be careful of licensing all honest occupations and turn their attention to the idle human parasites who inhabit most towns and live off of the weaknesses of others. Some towns we know of license the drayman and the blacksmith, but the curb stone loafer serenely sits around all day and cracks jokes with the town marshal. By all means license the loafer.—Redmond Hub.
