The lecture of Dr. John Lewtas Monday night, which was illustrated by a large number of stereopticon views, was largely attended and held the rapt attention of the audience for over two hours. The views were superb and the most select assortment ever seen in this locality. Those pertaining to Greece, the Holy Land, Egypt, and other ancient countries, including scenes in many modern lands, were particularly instructive and entertaining and as an educational exhibit is not easily surpassed. Drs. Lewtas and Reed's singing was also a pleasant feature. Dr. Lewtas has a masterly delivery, and his descriptions of the views were unique, humorous and impressive.

Huston, chief promoter for the Odio Falls irrigation and Opal City townsite projects, was in town last Friday, having in charge a party of surveyors, who were enroute to Opal City to survey the electric line from that place to Prineville, which is being engineered by Mr. Huston. The proposed electric line will pass through the Culver and Lamonia districts and thence over the large flat country on Crooked River to Prineville. This is a rich farming and stockraising district and also at the boundary of an extensive lumbering area and near the oil prospect on Grizzly Mountain, and the electric line which will penetrate it will prove a valuable feeder for the railway lines centering at Opal City.

PRESIDENT SIKES WILL ADDRESS THE PUBLIC

President F. A. Sikes of the Oregon Farmers Educational and Co-operative Union will be in Madras Tuesday, Nov. 30 and address the farmers of this section along the lines of Successful Farming. This meeting will be open to everyone and all tillers of the soil should make it a point to be present.

President Sikes is a farmer of considerable prominence and is not only successful as a raiser of crops but is proficient at the market end of the problem. His talk will probably not only handle and explain the best methods of tilling the soil, cultivation of crops and of harvesting, but will likely deal with the best means of keeping in touch with the markets and how to secure the top price for products.

Rail transportation for this section will not only make a large demand for farming products, but will cause a heavy influx of farmers to this section, with the result that competition will be steady and keen in the production of farm products and the farmer who successfully tills his land by labor-saving methods and economically markets his crops will be the winner in the race for agricultural success. President Sikes' address will consider many topics along these lines from actual experience.

He was engaged in station work and had a force of men working under him who were at this time hauling out a load of rock, and who, seeing the rock crumbling, hallooed to Mr. Legin to give him warning, but before he could get out of the way was caught and his head crushed to a pulp.

Sheriff Elkins and County Physician Rosenberg were called to the camp and took charge of the body. Interment will be had in the Madras cemetery today.
