MOUNTAINEER'S SAVINGS.

Mostly in Gold, and Some of It Has Been Buried for Fifty Years.

The First National Bank of Logan, W. Va., has received a deposit to-day which has an interesting story behind it, the Roanoke correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says. The amount is $6,020, of which $5,000 is in gold coin, some of which is fifty years old. Twenty dollars is in silver and there are fifty $20 bills. The money had been accumulated by Milton Mullens and represents the savings of a lifetime.

Mullens began hoarding his savings when a young man. This was before the civil war. All his surplus he converted into gold, which he buried in the yard. A few years ago, when gold coin was scarce and almost out of circulation, Mullens began to exchange his smaller money for $20 bills.

These were hidden in a safe place in his barn. It was believed for many years that he was hoarding his money and on numerous occasions marauders have endeavored to force him to reveal its hiding place, but without success.

A few days ago his wife died and believing that he would not live long he called his grandson, J. M. Perry, and told him where to search for the treasure. The young man, after digging for some time, found the treasure, and this snug little fortune went into the bank to the credit of the now aged and infirm mountaineer.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Short Breath.

Respiration in health and under normal conditions of rest or moderate exercise is an unconscious act, almost as much so as digestion or the beating of the heart, but it is very easily disturbed, even in health, and in certain diseases its disturbance is often one of the most distressing symptoms. The short breath following violent exertion, such as running or hill-climbing, is familiar to every one. It is due to the increased call for oxygenation of the blood and the temporary inability of the heart to pump the blood in sufficient volume through the lungs.

When shortness of breath is brought about by moderate exercise or mental excitement, it is due to some abnormal condition, such as anemia, obesity, a weak heart or indigestion. This tendency is relieved by attention to the weak point, whatever it may be, and a judicious system of exercises—a sort of modified training.

Permanent shortness of breath, or dyspnea, as it is technically called, is a more serious affair, and is usually due to some actual disease. What the disease is of which this dyspnea is a symptom can often be discovered only by a careful and thorough medical examination of all the organs of the body.

It is often called asthma, and treated at home by inhaling the fumes of burning niter paper or by some other of the ordinary remedies. But asthma is a distinct disease, although its true nature is not yet definitely determined. It occurs in paroxysms, usually at night, in the intervals of which the breathing is generally easy and quiet. Permanent dyspnea is another matter, and is an indication of something wrong.

It may be due to a great variety of causes, only a few of which can be mentioned here.
Anemia, or poverty of blood, may give rise to permanent dyspnea, as well as to shortness of breath on exertion. The symptom is a regular accompaniment of diminished lung capacity, either through consolidation of more or less of the lung tissue in tuberculosis or pneumonia, or through compression of the lungs by an accumulation of fluid or air in the chest.

Anything that interferes with the free action of the heart, such as weakness of the cardiac muscle or disease of the valves of the heart, pressure by fatty deposits, an enlarged liver, or "as in the stomach, will produce shortness of breath.

Short breath in children is commonly the result of obstruction in the air passages, caused by enlarged tonsils, the presence of glandular tissue in the pharynx, called adenoids, or a swollen condition of the mucous membrane of the larynx.

Persistent shortness of breath is a symptom that should not be neglected.

Buddha.

The origin of Buddhism, which ranks in numbers among the great religions of the world, is wrapped in much uncertainty, and the personality of its founder is more or less obscure. It is generally believed that Buddha was a prince of a petty Indian nation and that he was born about the beginning of the fifth century before Christ. He was named Siddhartha and was also known as Sakya, his family name. The title of Buddha, which was given him, means "the enlightened." He spent many years in study and solitary meditation and finally evolved the philosophy which he preached for over forty years in northern India. He was about eighty when he died.—Youth's Companion.

Voice of the People.

"Colonel, what will be the overshadowing issues of the next campaign?"
"Well, I can't tell you about that, if course, until a few of us have got together and had our little conference."

No matter how long your neck may be or how sore your throat, Hamline Wizard Oil will cure it surely and quickly. It drives out all soreness and inflammation.

A Secret Society.

Carrie—I've got a dandy idea for a girls' secret society. Belle—A secret society! Do you think it would be practical? Carrie—Surely. We wouldn't keep secrets; we'd swap them.—Puck.

One Distinction.

Editor—Well, what's the difference?
Irate Caller—The difference? About $500!

Output.

Truth Seeker—What are the issues in the coming campaign?
Ward Heeler—Well, we haven't issued anything yet but a loud call for money.
Nipped by a Late Frost.
"Pulchritia, I've been coming to see you for several years, and I think it's high time for me to—"
"Quit and give some other young man a chance, Mr. Slocum? Thanks; so do I. Don't stumble over the rug in the hall as you go, Mr. Slocum."—Chicago Tribune.
