aching by the Free Methodist er, A. S. Wright, on the first and third Sundays of each month. Sun- school every Sunday.

H. Pinkerton, a former resident of Agency Plains, but now of Pendleton, is in Madras Tuesday evening and remain in this vicinity for some time after business interests.

Merrill Van Tassel, John W. Saxton and W. C. Barber were business visitors in yesterday, having completed the right of way to the Oregon Trunk

M. Roberts and Bert Roberts of ham were in town Monday, being on way to Laidlaw. These gentlemen looking over Central Oregon lands with the expectation of investing.

A. Taylor and John A. Coulter left day for Walla Walla where they as delegates to the Inter-State An- nual Convention of the Farmers' Union. The convention holds a three days' ses- sion.

O. Lear of Goldendale, Wash., ar- rived in town last Saturday and has ac- cepted a position with the Madras Trading Company of this place. Mr. Lear bringing his family to Madras as soon as the weather is settled in the Spring.

the sale of the U. S. Cows property on the Deschutes river, in the vicinity of Warm Spring Ferry, has been made by the Oregon Trunk Railway, who have decided that as their right of way passes through the entire property, it would be to the interest of all persons concerned, to buy over the entire tract. The sale amounts to about $17,000.

The Central Oregon Mercantile Com- pany, successors to J. G. & M. A. Rob- ertson, opened their doors for business today, with F. L. Rice as bookkeeper, Louis Falkenhagen, C. W. E. Foote, and Miss Susie Brogan as assistants. The business will be conducted along the same lines as heretofore and perfect satis- faction is guaranteed to all patrons.

number of the ladies of Madras met yesterday and organized a Womens' Christian Temperance Union. The fol- lowing officers were elected: President, M. E. Percival; vice president, Mrs. Moorhead; secretary, Mrs. B. S. ; treasurer, Miss Laura Phillips. The Union was organized with 11 mem- bers. The next meeting will be held Monday, February 3.

Monday morning William Gain, recent- ly the employ of the Oregon Trunk Railway, dropped dead in the near beer en- joyment of William McGinnis, opposite the Madras Hotel. The county officials were notified, but it was not deemed necessary for them to be present and J. C. Robin- son was authorized to hold an inquest, which was done Sunday afternoon. A verdict was brought in that death was of natural causes, superinduced by alcohol failure. Interment was held Mon- day in the Madras cemetery. It is under- stood that the deceased had relatives in Was- hington City, and the authorities have un- der- taken to notify them.

Dave Rogers of Opal Prairie had his back quite badly injured Monday of last week by a water tank falling upon him. He was lifting the tank from a wagon when the icy ground caused him to slip with the result that nearly the entire weight of the tank came upon him. While Mr. Rogers' injuries are not considered serious, they are very painful and it will be a week or two before he is about again.

The Farmers' Union of Crook County, held its regular meeting at Madras, Wed- nesday, Jan. 12. Five local unions were represented at the meeting. The fol- lowing officers were elected for the coming year: President, H. J. Branstetter, Vice- President, J. A. Coulter; Sec. Treasurer, W. J. Stebbins, Conductor W. H. Stone- hocker, Door keeper T. A. Taylor, Chap- lain H. N. Gard, County organizer H. N. Gard; Trustees P. N. Vibbert, Wm. Brownhill and D. F. Arensmier.

A large gray wolf, with headquarters about 20 miles up Crooked River, has been destroying yearlings to such an extent lately that the stockmen have become desperate. A subscription paper has been circulated and now carries a purse of $90 for the huntsman who is lucky enough to kill the nuisance. Some stockmen put in as much as $20 to the fund. It seems a big price to pay, but cattle are cattle these.—Prineville Re- view.

Tilman Reuter, one of the specialist "dry farmers" of this section, was a busi- ness visitor in Madras Tuesday. Mr. Reuter expects to make another exhibit at the county fair next Fall, but he says the merit of his showing will depend con- siderable upon weather conditions. But, notwithstanding the weather, it is pretty certain that Mr. Reuter will have a very creditable crop of grains and vegetables, as at present he has won more premiums for "dry farming" than any other farmer in the Madras country.

CALLOWAY-BROWN WEDDING

A very pretty wedding took place Sun- day, January 16, 1910, at the home of the home of the bride's parents, when Miss Vesta Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brown, pioneer residents of the Haystack country, was united in mar- riage to Mr. Robert E. Galloway, a thrifty young farmer who lives Southwest of Madras. The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. D. Brown of this place. A large gathering of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present to witness the happy event.

A sumptuous dinner was served to the wedding party and their guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brown, which was made the scene of much merriment, with congratulations and best wishes for the future welfare of the bride and groom. The happy couple were the recipients of many tokens of esteem and remembrance from their many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Galloway will reside upon the bride's homestead Southwest of Madras.

COULTER-HILL WEDDING

A quiet home wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley D. Hill on Agency Plains, when their daughter, Miss Lorena May, was united to marriage to Mr. William V. Coulter of Sweet Home, Linn County, Oregon. Rev. G. R. Moorhead of this city officiated at the ceremony.

These young people are well and favor- ably known in this section and are very highly esteemed by their many friends. It is understood the happy couple will make their home at Sweet Home, where the groom has a profitable farm.
