Racy Metaphor.

The Archbishop of Canterbury is a great example of a ready wit, according to the Pathfinder. He was going with a number of clergymen in to a luncheon, after some ecclesiastical function one day, when some dignitary observed:
"Now to put a bridle on our appetites!"
Quick as lightning the archbishop retorted, "Say, rather, now to put a bit between our teeth."

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

A Vegetable Cameo.

Spain is the land of the onion—a fact which tempted Mr. Shaw, the author of "Spain of To-day," to fall into the appended easy verse:
All returned travelers are sure to appreciate it for its feeling for truth rather than its resemblance to the form of "The Ancient Mariner."

The Difference.
"Father," said little Rollo, "what is the difference between farming and agriculture?"
"Well, my son, for farming you need a plow and a harrow and a lot of other implements, and for agriculture all you need is a pencil and a piece of paper."—Washington Star.

Some people suffer continually with tired, aching and swollen feet. Little do they know how soothing is Hamlin's Wizard Oil. Rub it in at night and have thankful, happy feet in the morning.

Objective Reform.
The defendant had been found guilty of habitually getting drunk and beating his wife.
"You'll not be guilty of indulging in the 'lick her' habit during the next two years, anyhow, you sorry specimen of manhood," said the judge. "Or else, remove the prisoner."

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.
Seventeen Years the Standard.
Prescribed and recommended for women's ailments—a scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all drug stores.

As Exemplified.
"Man's inhumanity to man," chuckled the backer of the winning pugilist who had pounded the other chap to a jelly, "makes countless thousands cheerfully pay their good money to see it working."

A flavoring used the same as lemon or vanilla. By dissolving granulated sugar in water and adding Mapleine, a delicious syrup is made and a syrup better than maple. Mapleine is sold by grocers. If not sent for 2 oz. bottle and Crescent Mfg. Co., Seattle, Wa. recipe booklet.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Makes the blood of the right quality and quantity—normal in red and white corpuscles and all other constituents. It builds up the whole system.
In a liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs. 100 Doses $1.

The word "Vermont" on a can of maple syrup has always raised that brand about one hundred per cent in the estimation of the buyer. A few years ago, however, a method was discovered of imparting this same delicious flavor to preparations without the use of real maple syrup. This flavoring extract is called Mapleine.

If a dish of syrup made with mapleine and the real Green Mountain kind is placed before a Vermont, he would not be able to tell the difference between the two. This is largely due to the absolute purity of the ingredients and the great care used in the manufacture.

Mapleine is purely vegetable and makes a syrup that is equal to any and superior to most brands of maple syrup that are placed on the market.

To make delicious flavorings for cakes, ice cream and sauces, nothing is required but a little granulated sugar and water with a few drops of mapleine dissolved therein. Housewives find it a great convenience in preparing puddings out of leftovers.

A little booklet, with the title of "Mapleine Dainties", is published by the Crescent Manufacturing company, who are the makers of Mapleine. The booklet will be sent free to anyone who asks for it. Nearly every grocer carries Mapleine. Try some today and you will say the same that thousands of others have, that here is a flavor with the real maple taste. This little suggestion for a sauce for puddings: Whites of two eggs, one and a half cups of granulated sugar, one cup of milk, one teaspoonful of mapleine. Mapleine is to be used anywhere that another flavoring could be used.

PILE S
"I have suffered with piles for thirty-six years. One year ago last April I began taking Cascarets for constipation. In the course of a week I noticed the piles began to disappear and at the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. Cascarets have done wonders for me. I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Kryder, Napoleon, O.

REMINDED.
After She Had Heard the Story Miss Cordelia Wanted to Telephone.
"We're all upset here this morning," said the young woman who was showing ready-made suits to Miss Cordelia Grant. "One of the girls in our department lost her mother very suddenly. I've been trying to get together some black things for her to wear."
Miss Cordelia looked disturbed. She had suddenly remembered a hurt expression on her own mother's face. It had been just before she left the house that morning. Then, with a murmur of sympathy, she gave her attention once more to deciding between the gray stripe and the small brown check.
Half an hour later, when she had chosen her suit and was waiting for the fitter in a small mirror-lined room, the saleswoman, who was waiting, too, spoke again of the matter that was filling her heart.
"One of our girls lost her mother last night," she said, quite forgetting that she had told it. "I had just finished getting together some black things for her when you came in."
"Yes; you were telling me," Miss Cordelia answered, with the same troubled look that had come before.
"Was I? Well, I can't think of much else. It was so terribly sudden. Her mother had supper all ready, just as usual,—they two lived together,—and then she dropped dead, a few minutes before the girl got home."
"Oh!"
"Wasn't it terrible? Heart failure, I suppose. And Frances was telling me only yesterday she didn't know how she could ever live without her mother—they were so wrapped up in each other. Wasn't it strange that should happen on the very day? One good thing, though. She told me that if either one of 'em should be taken, there'd be nothing but sweetness for the other to remember—no hard words, ever. I'm glad of that." She wiped her eyes. "What is it, madam? Something missing?"
"No," said Miss Cordelia, who had been searching through her bag. "Only I must get a nickel somewhere and send a telephone message."
"I have one right here. Yes, and welcome. I tell you, as soon as I heard of Frances' trouble, I couldn't do a thing till I got a dime changed and called up my mother, just to make sure she was safe. All I could think was what if a certain remark I made before I left the house should be the last word I'd ever have a chance to speak to her. When I got to the telephone, there I found two other girls waiting to do the same thing."
A gleam of sisterhood lighted Miss Cordelia's face. "It's exactly what I want of this nickel," she confessed, as she took it.—Youth's Companion.

SQUIRREL AND THE PLAGUE
Rodent Is Shown to Be an Incubator of the Black Death.
One hot day in the summer of 1903 a German blacksmith in the country town of Pacheco, Cal., wanted a mess of ground squirrel for his dinner. He banded his forge, hung up his leather apron, took the old shotgun from its pegs on the wall and had an excellent afternoon's sport in a nearby field. That evening he feasted on fat, tender broiled squirrels. Three days later he was taken violently ill—so ill, in fact, that the physician who was called sent him to the German hospital in San Francisco. The doctor, a man of keen intelligence and acute observation, realized that he was dealing with a disease which he had never met before and the exact identity of which he was unable to determine.
At this time bubonic plague existed in Chinatown, San Francisco, and the task of eradicating it had been assigned to a young officer of the public health and marine hospital service who was afterward to take foremost rank among the world's authorities on that disease. His ability was already recognized by the medical profession, and he was called to diagnose the strange disease which had attacked the country blacksmith. He saw at once that the patient was suffering from bubonic plague—the black death—and was able to prove this bacteriologically after the death of the man.
Passed Assistant Surgeon George W. McCoy of the federal laboratory in San Francisco, whose bacteriological work on the ground squirrel marks an advance in plague investigation, finds that many of the ground squirrels sent in for examination have the disease in light form or are recovering from a severe attack. William Colby Rucker says in Harper's Weekly. Usually when the germs from such a case are injected into rats or guinea pigs they die quite as rapidly as if they had been given a dose of the most virulent plague bacteria known. In other words, although the disease does not seem to kill off all of the squirrels after it has traveled through several generations, it regains its virulence when injected into another species. The squirrel, then, is the animal in which the disease is kept alive, a sort of natural living incubator, as it were, and when plague leaves the squirrels for another species widespread death and suffering follow in its train. Dr. Blue's officers and men have scoured the city of San Francisco and ridden it of plague. The present movement looks to the eradication of this outside focus, the extermination of the disease from California.
It keeps the State legislatures busy making new laws as fast as the old ones are broken.
The man who makes a specialty of looking wise usually isn't.
