Madras Precinct No. 31.—Voting place, city hall. Judges—A. C. Sanford, F. J. Brooks, S. E. Gray. Clerks—R. S. Moorehouse, H. W. Turner, C. E. Roush.

Kutcher Precinct No. 23.—Voting place, Mt. View schoolhouse. Judges—J. E. Campbell, W. H. Ramsey, W. H. Stonehocker. Clerks—Geo. Branstetter, J. A. Coulter, Ernest Doty.

Warm Springs Precinct No. 26.—Voting place, Agency. Judges—Carl Webster, Ben Wilson, W. McCorkie. Clerks—C. C. Covey, Robt. Smith, Harry Miller.

In selecting voting places for the coming election, the Court found that in several instances new voting places were made necessary because of various reasons, and the meager information at hand to aid the court in choosing new polling places, made a choice difficult, and the best place apparently was chosen.

In one instance, Redmond, which is now being incorporated cannot hold an election in the proposed corporate limits at this time and it may be necessary for the voters to go to a distance of nearly three miles to the Tethrow schoolhouse to vote, unless a more convenient place can be secured. The same conditions prevail in the Kutcher Precinct.

If a more suitable place than the one designated by the court can be agreed upon by the voters, the court will be pleased to consider it at the regular July term.

CROOKED RIVER INJUNCTION DISSOLVED

The injunction against the 25 Crooked river farmers has been dissolved by the plaintiffs, The Prineville Flouring Mills, under the stipulation that the case will be tried out before a referee at the October term of court, says the Prineville Review. The issue, who owns the water, still remains to be settled, finally, it is presumed, before the state board of water control. There are more than 150 ranchers using water from upper Crooked river and its tributaries, and the plaintiffs conclude it would be useless to enjoin 25 of them and allow the others to proceed unmolested.

Ten or fifteen of the defendants were down the first of the week to consult with their attorney, W. A. Bell, and a great sigh of relief went up when they were informed that the engineering of the law would not assist in ruining what was left of their crops. They have gone back home to get what little water they can from the drouth struck river and continue irrigation.

LAND BOARD DEFERS ACTION ON D. I. & P. CO.

Action regarding the proposed cancellation of the state's Carey act contracts with the Deschutes Irrigation & Power Company was postponed yesterday at a meeting of the Desert Land Board in Salem until the next meeting of the board which will be about the middle of July.

As attorney for the receiver, L. A. Adams asserted yesterday that the company has complied with its contract, in spite of the difficulties under which it has been laboring. Acting Governor Bowerman took the position that the first duty of the state was to protect the settlers who are trying to make homes under the ditches made by the company.

Yesterday, Attorneys Jesse Stearns, representing the company, A. King Willson, for the Eastern bondholders, and C. M. Redfield, receiver, rushed to Salem to be present at the hearing they expected the Land Board to give the case.

There are 215,000 acres of land involved in the reclamation scheme, and it was obtained from the state under two contracts, dated June 17, 1907, and January 5, 1909. The lands, when the system of irrigation shall be completed, are estimated to be worth several million dollars. Water has been made available for 65,000 acres, which have been sold, while this receiver is ready to place 13,000 additional acres as fast as settlers can be secured.

All of the lands have been sold on the installment plan, and the annual payments are used in a measure to keep up the ditches and dams through which water is conveyed to the settlers.

Should the Land Board proceed with the fulfillment of its order to revert the lands to the state the entire investment would be torn down. With that point in view, Judge Bean yesterday sent Receiver Redfield to Salem armed with a request that the Land Board refrain from action until the pending litigation shall be disposed of.

The receiver was obtained through petition of bondholders of the Deschutes Irrigation Company residing at Columbus, O., who purchased the securities to the extent of $359,000, and were additionally secured by a first mortgage on the property. The loan was made for the purpose of building the irrigation system, but proved insufficient, and a second mortgage was placed on the property. Money received for the sale of the lands was intended by officers of the company for the payment of the second mortgage, but the Ohio people stepped in and asked that the fund be applied to redemption of their bonds. Upon the showing, the company was declared insolvent and a suit is now pending to foreclose the mortgage.

Should the mortgage be foreclosed the state would be protected, as the only way the Eastern bondholders, or the irrigation company can get its money back is to complete the works and sell the land.—Oregonian.
