MEMORABILIA

It is a good thing that the editor of the Madras Pioneer is of a pleasant disposition, and inclined to hold his temper, for it might have been awfully ruffled after reading the article which appeared in the last issue of the "Citizen's Call." However, the source of the article is considered, and we opine that the writer must feel greatly relieved after having been able to partially divest himself of the extraordinarily bad "pill" which seems to have found lodgment in his brain.

While the cause that Mr. Hoffman is trying to bring before the people is right, and the reform which he is trying to bring to the commonwealth of Crook county through the columns of the "Citizen's Call" is respected, it is the advice of the editor of the Madras Pioneer, as well as mayor of the city of Madras, to handle the truth with more respect than he has in that article, to read more carefully the opinions which appear in the Pioneer, so as to interpret their full meaning, and to investigate the records in the recorder's office before jumping at conclusions so quickly. He should remember this if he would be successful in furthering the cause of good citizenship, or making a success at newspaper work, as he does not seem to have been at anything else.

WATER SYSTEM ON THE STEINKE PLACE

That a complete water system is to be installed on the tract which Jesse Hobson and his associates purchased from Wm. Steinke has just been made public by Mr. Hobson, who further states that the pump and engine are now on the road from Portland, and will be installed some time during the month. The engine is of the Foss make and will develop six horse power, the pump being rated to throw at least thirty gallons per minute.

Mr. Hobson further states that if their well, which is about 350 feet deep, will furnish enough water after testing, that they would make some arrangements with the people in Railroad and Depot Additions to furnish water for them.

CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF

Crook County is to have another candidate for Sheriff at the coming election, November 8th, 1910 John McTaggart makes the announcement that he will be a candidate on the Independent Ticket, and petitions are being circulated, as required by law, to have his name placed on the General Election Ballot.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

There are so many who run to the haymow for that nice clover hay chaff for brooder bedding and turn their newly hatched chicks on to it, and they rejoice to see those pretty birdies eat the tender, dried four leaf clovers that are so good "to build up bone and tissue." But the dry stuff kills many of them, as do also the lice the sparrows left in the hay.

Farmers do waste a lot of time, labor and money on wornout fields. How much easier and cheaper and quicker they might get that ground back into condition by scattering plane box colony houses over it and allowing the growing chickens to fertilize the ground! Just think of the big poultry profit at a small cost.

When two rubberneck drakes get to fighting just turn in a few more ducks and see them quiet down. The female is a wonder in every department of life.

"Not much in oats for feed!" exclaims a pretended poultry authority. Dear brother, did you ever watch two big draft horses pull a tremendous load over cobblestones with ease? They had a bucket of water and a few quarts of oats for dinner.

There are two things certain incubator firms should do—get back to nature and give their customers a square deal. Let them investigate the sitting hen and when they have found out what transpires under her build machines on the same principles instead of palming off as bona fide natural wonders the four legged fire traps with which they swindle the public.

We have set hens on the same eggs on the ground and in tight, dry boxes overhead and found the eggs hatched about the same. By weight from 9 to 12 per cent of an egg evaporates during incubation, and about all the supplied moisture comes from the hen, not from the air, the earth or a piece of sod in the bottom of the nest.

Setting hens in cellars often causes the hen's death. The cold, damp floor causes an intestinal cold, and the hen often dies suddenly on the nest.

If you are buying cold storage chickens refuse those fowls that are not frozen stiff. Tell your dealer that you prefer to thaw out the bird yourself and do not want the carcass he has thawed to pass off on some one for fresh killed stock.

The day is past when exhibitors at country fairs will expose their fowls to any Tom, Dick or Harry of a judge, and no competent judge will accept a mere pittance or a dinner ticket for the work either.

The Armour Packing company is making offers to the large plants to take their whole output of eggs. So far they have been turned down, as they ought to be by every egg farmer.

Chicken showers instead of postal showers are now the vogue for preachers' birthdays. While waterfowl are most appropriate for the Baptist brethren, rotten egg showers for politicians have been prescribed by the muckrakers four hundred.
