Tarmer Had no Trouble in Recalling Young Lad He Befriended Fifteen Years Previously.

"By the way," said the man who had stopped at a farmhouse to water his horse, "fifteen years ago a poor boy came this way and you took him in." "Yes?" queried the farmer, somewhat surprised. "You were kind to him," went on the stranger. "You fed him, gave him words of encouragement and an old suit of clothes, put money in his pocket, and sent him on his way refolcing. He told you at the time that he never would forget your kindness. Am I right ?"

"Yes, you are," replied the farmer. "He said that if he prospered he would see that you never had oocasion to regret your kindness to a poor, struggling lad." "Gracious!" exclaimed the farmer's wife, excitedly. "It sounds almost like a fairy tale, don't it? Why, you must have seen him." "I have," said the stranger, "and he sent a message to you." "What is it?" they both asked, expectantly.

"He told me to tell you that he is still poor." As the stranger drove away the farmer went out and kicked the pump viciously, while his wife threw a rolling-pin at the chickens.

Wouldn't Go That Far. "I read in one of the papers the other day," said Mr. Henpeck, "that trial marriages are rapidly increasing in France." "Oh, you did, did you?" his wife replied. "And I suppose you think we ought to have that kind of marriages in this country?"

"No, dear," he replied, edging toward the door, "I shouldn't even go as far as trial marriages."

By the use of the telephone he succeeded in re-establishing friendly relations with her.

Olive Oil to Remove Cinder.

The man with the cinder in his eye was suffering great pain. Every one had a different method of relief to suggost, but nothing had the desired effoot. At length one of the bystanders procured a little olive of from the hunch room. This was poured into the eye and relief was instant. "I learned that method of dealing with cinders while abroad," said the bystander, "and I guess it is about as effective as anything after all."
