

A CHANGE OF FRONT.

The Patron Got Funny, and the Little Waiter Exploded.

Fire Commissioner Waldo and his secretary, Winifred Sheehan, dropped into Shanley's restaurant one day for dinner. Hickey, the little old waiter, had their table.

"The celery is very fine, commissioner," Hickey remarked.

"Let's see. What'll we have, Winnie?" said the head of the fire department, picking up the menu.

"Some celery?" said Hickey, the waiter, ingratiatingly. "It's the finest, tenderest, crispiest we ever had here."

"No, thanks," said Waldo carelessly. "Bring us some Blue Points on the half shell. Want any soup, Winnie?"

"Let me have some cream of celery made for ye fresh," urged the waiter.

"Don't think I care for any soup."

"Pick out a couple of nice double English mutton chops," said the fire commissioner.

"And a portion of celery?" asked Hickey, with pencil poised.

"No," roared Waldo. "No celery."

"Shall we have a salad?" asked Secretary Sheehan.

"Make you a nice celery salad, gentlemen?" said the wheedling Hickey.

The fire commissioner rose in his wrath. "Look here, Hickey!" he said.

"For the last time, no celery. I do not want it raw, baked, broiled or fried. I do not want it as a dessert or a drink, for if you allude to celery tonic you shall be slain where you stand. You've done your duty and tried to get us to take celery by entreaty, threat and force. If you ask me to have the national flower of Kalamazoo again I'll hit you in the nose!"

Hickey mumbled something under his breath and went up stage. He served the ordered items with silent alacrity and then, after the coffee and the check, kept at a respectful distance.

At this juncture Shanley, the proprietor, came by and greeted the fire commissioner and his secretary.

"Look here, Mr. Shanley," said the big commissioner grimly. "I've been coming here a good many years."

"Why, Mr. Commissioner, is there anything wrong?" asked Mr. Shanley quickly.

"Wrong?" roared the fire commissioner. "Wrong? I should say there was! Will you tell me why a customer of this place can't get any celery?"

"Mr. Butler! Mr. Kane! Mike! Larry! Pat! Who's waiting at this table?"

"Hickey!" cried a dozen voices.

"Hickey!" said Shanley scornfully. "Ask the commissioner if he'll have some celery!"

The fire commissioner burst all bounds. Facing the boss with a purple face, he replied hoarsely:

"Ask him yourself and go to h—!"

It took every effort of strength and diplomacy on the part of the convulsed commissioner and his secretary to save the badgered Hickey twice—first his life and second his job.—New York World.

Had a Relapse.

A negro who suffered severe burns upon the face by accident in performance of his work was treated by a physician, who, in default of other material, swathed his features in absorbent cotton. The patient soon felt better and proceeded to roll and light a cigarette, whereupon the cotton caught fire, and the second conflagration was worse than the first. The physician was called in again and gave aid to the injured. "Say, boss," exclaimed the negro, "don't go and tell about this misfortunate accident. Jes' say I had a relapse."

Eloquent Silence.

Two golfers at Pinehurst, one of them an amateur who had been runner up in several big tournaments, were starting out, and a friend from Chicago, who was leaving that afternoon and had packed his clubs, started to walk around with them. "You can go," said the classy amateur. "If you won't talk, you've got to keep quiet."

"They started. The tournament player booked his drive into the high grass off the first tee, had a lot of trouble

"I KNOW YOU HAVEN'T SAID ANYTHING," getting it out, made a bad putt when he did not reach the green and, all in all, looked a fearful duffer. He topped his ball on the second tee, and it rolled off a few feet. The friend from Chicago was standing by. He had not said a word. "Dod gawt you!" shouted the unlucky amateur. "I know you haven't said anything, but stop your confounded thinking!"—Saturday Evening Post.

NOMINATION HELD UP

Washington, Jan. 23.—By a vote of 8 to 5 the Senate judiciary committee today voted not to report favorably the confirmation of Judge William H. Hunt now serving as a member of the Court of Customs appeals, and promoted to a Circuit Judgeship for assignment to the new Commerce Court.

The subcommittee that has been hearing the charges in regard to Hunt's rulings in the Williamson trial and in case of the "smoke farmers" of Montana against the smelter trust were of sufficient gravity to warrant the rejection of his nomination as a member of the Commerce Court. There were five absent members today.

Soon after the appointment of Judge Hunt was sent to the Senate, charges were filed against him by Montana land owners, who alleged that while serving on the Federal district bench there he had aided smelting interests by delaying court proceedings.

CULVER JUNCTION NEWS

Messrs. W. C. Wilkes, Assistant General Freight and Passenger Agent and R. H. Crozier, Advertising Agent of the Hill Lines in the Pacific Northwest spent a portion of last Sunday afternoon and Monday morning at Culver Junction. These gentlemen were making a thorough investigation of the tonnage and passenger possibilities of the towns along the Oregon Trunk and were highly pleased with the future outlook of Culver Junction.

Miss Jessie L. Hill entertained a few of her friends at the White House hotel last Saturday evening and all report a most enjoyable evening. Miss Hill is a teacher of extraordinary ability and is giving us a splendid school this winter.

J. P. Hahn of Madras will begin the erection of a store building in Culver Junction next Monday and expects to have a stock of goods installed in a very short time. He expects to erect a concrete block building soon and will use the one now being built for warehouse purposes.

Post Master O. G. Colliver has his new building almost completed and will have the post office and store installed here by February 1st.

John W. Lewis, the Grizzly merchant was the latest to purchase two business lots and will begin hauling lumber for a building at once.

Miss Luella Evans has gone to Prineville for medical treatment as she has been in poor health for the past few weeks.

The Central Oregon Well Company of this place has made application for warehouse frontage here and will handle pumps, machinery and other commodities.

Mr. Hedlund, the Madras photo man, was here a few days ago taking photographs. He took photos of the Opal Springs and of the mountain view from here. He says this is the finest general mountain view he has ever seen.

MOST BEAUTIFUL WORDS

A contest to decide the most beautiful words in the English language conducted by the West Fifty-street branch of the Y. M. C. A. of New York, was won by John Shea, Jr. The prize was a flexible dictionary.

Twenty-one of the 25 words selected by Shea were accepted. The accepted were:

Melody, splendor, adoration, grace, virtue, innocence, nobility, faith, honor, radiance, nobility, pathy, heaven, love, divine, hope, money, happiness, purity and hope.

Three of the words rejected were: grace, justice and truth. The former were stricken out, it was explained because of the harshness of the word grace and the "j" in justice. The word truth was eliminated because its metallic sound.

Guess Now

On the time that first railroad engine reaches
Culver Junction

If your guess wins the first prize you get a check for $300 00. If you win the second prize you get a check for $200.00; 3d prize is $100.00; 4th and 5th prizes $50.00, and twelve $25.00 prizes. These checks are good for the amount mentioned but must be used in purchase of lots in CULVER JUNCTION. We want you to study the railroad situation in Central Oregon and learn the location of Culver Junction on the railroad map. You will then know that this town will be reached by the railroads within a very few weeks. (In January 1911 the Oregon Trunk was completed to within 27 miles of our town and the Harriman line was about the same distance. When you investigate Culver Junction you will find that this town will serve the largest developed agricultural section along the new line. Also that the railroad company recognizes the fact and have laid out the largest warehouse frontage for the handling of tonnage of any of the towns in Central Oregon.

Culver Junction

Is a wide-awake, progressive town; now a lumber yard, good hotel, public school, two general merchandise stores will be in operation Feb. 1, also livery barn, feed stable and blacksmith shop. A machine shop, post office, real estate office and is also headquarters for the Central Oregon Well Company.

Read conditions of contest as outlined in preceding advertisement and cut out coupon below and forward to us with your application for lot.
