Madras, Oregon, January 17th, 1911.
Mr. A. B. Combs, Manager, National Life Ins. Co., U. S. A.

Dear Mr. Combs:

We hereby acknowledge receipt of your draft for $1940.48 which together with our son's note attached and marked paid amounting to $59.52 makes a total of $2000.00 which is in full settlement of our son's Wallace H. Williams, claim against your company. Wallace's policy was dated November 8th, 1910 and he was accidentally shot and killed on December 4th, 1910, the policy being in force less than one month and the claim was allowed by your company on December 28th.

We wish to thank you very much for the prompt payment of this claim, considering the fact that the policy was not even paid for.

Assuring you of our heartiest endorsements of your manner in doing business and the promptness in which your company pays it's claims, we remain,

Very sincerely yours,
Walter S. Williams.
Ellen Williams.

Parents and beneficiaries of Wallace H. Williams, deceased.

Forty-three years ago the United States government gave a charter to the National Life Insurance Company (the only one). Since then the National has paid in cash to its living policy-holders millions of dollars of matured claims, enabling many a man and woman to enjoy a comfortable and independent old age, instead of being a burden to their friends and relatives. Thousands of homes have been saved, and families kept together by the money distributed to the widows and orphans, by the National Life Insurance Company of The United States of America.
