

Price of Ivory Increasing.
Ivory continues to make rapid gains in price and may sooner or later be in class with gold. At the sales in London the tremendous demand has driven up the price. The allotment for each sale seems to be the same, and with a gaining consumption it is difficult to expect a price advance. This will continue until a substitute is discovered or ivory is secured in greater quantities. Although there are great many tusks for piano and use the very latest method of cutting and bleaching, the margin of profit in finished key ivory is exceedingly small. With the best of methods in blocking the waste is enormous and there are many other devices in connection with key ivory manufacture that require time and money.

What She Needed.
At the busy hour in the evening on the "L," a woman rushed into the station. She had just come to buy a copy of Life and her train.

There was another customer at the stand when she got there, and, impatient, she waved her tongue in the air and said to the clerk in a frenzied tone: "Give me quick! Give me Life," then she stepped in her tracks when the clerk asked to wait on the first customer. "I want Life," she repeated.

How to String Beads.
Stringing any precious beads, pearls especially, never use a wax. Simply wax the end of the string to pass it through the hole. Knotting is also an important part. It must be large enough to pass the bead, but not large enough to strain the string. Pearls stringers use an intricate knot of their own, and that is the best, on the whole, better to have expensive jewels strung by a professional. When there is a color or something of the sort to be strung, this is absolutely necessary.

POINTS IN POLITICAL GAME

Ambitious Young Man is Told First Lesson in Politics is to Know "Star-Spangled Banner."

Having decided to go into politics a young man applied to a district leader for some points in the game. The boss handed him "The Star-Spangled Banner," words and music.

"Know that?" he asked. The young man confessed that he did not, except the first few lines. "Then," said the district leader, "the first thing you've got to do is to learn it by heart, every word and every note. Go home and practice till you can sing it with as much voice and musical feeling as you have. It will carry you over many a strip of thin ice. Every successful politician in the land has been saved from defeat at some critical moment by his ability to sing 'The Star-Spangled Banner.' If the fellows who have failed had known how to sing it, maybe they wouldn't have fallen with such a thud.

"Later I may have a few more useful hints to impart, but make no mistake, the A B C of the political game is a working knowledge of 'The Star-Spangled Banner.'"—New York Sun.

Getting His Money's Worth.

"Yes," drawled the vernal postmaster of Bacon Ridge, "when Silas Shanks was up in Chicago he rode about in a taxicab and they charged him $4 an hour. It almost broke his heart."

"That so!" commented the molasses salesman. "Yes, but Silas got even. He bought a second-hand taxicab at an auction sale and now he rides around all day and every hour he calculates that he's saved $4."

HER PREFERENCE.

Flossie—Would you rather be a marchioness or a countess?
Bessie—I think I'd rather be a countess.
Flossie—A marchioness is higher than a countess.
Bessie—Yes, but a countess is easier to spell.

Demise Uncertain.

There was a new play to be given by the stock company and the heavy villain was starting off for rehearsal. "And, by the way, Julius," asked his wife, "what time will you be home for supper—8, 9 or 10 o'clock?" "I can't tell you now, Bedelia," responded the Thespian, as he slipped on his $1,000 overcoat. "I have forgotten which act I die in."

Too Close Now.

Subbubs—I don't know anybody that my wife hates more than the Jenkinsons.
Citman—Why, she used to think pretty well of them.
Subbubs—Yes, but that was before they moved in next door to us.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Might Get the Hook.

"Why don't you write a rhyme about bank embezzlers?" some one asked a busy bard.
"I would do so," he answered, "if I thought it were safe to rhyme 'lawyer' with 'paranoia.'"

Belated Popularity.

Askitt—Was Skinner what you would call a popular man?
Knott—Well, he never had much of a following while alive, but he had a big funeral.

A Stock Phrase.

"I fear he isn't a finished political orator."
"Why not?"
"Because he never refers to the voter's 'inalienable right.'"

GOOD USE FOR WASTE MILK

Skimmed Article Mixed With Phosphate of Lime Produces a Most Efficient Phosphate.

A new and exceedingly profitable use has been discovered for the waste milk produced in such abundance by all creameries. There are sections of the country where this waste is used by the farmers who sell their cream to fatten pigs, but then again, there are districts where the milk, thoroughly skimmed and watery in character, is allowed to drain away. It has been found, however, that by mixing the milk with phosphate of lime a most efficient phosphate is produced.

The phosphate of lime is placed in a hollow heap on the floor, the waste milk is run into the hollow, and a handful of yeast is added. In course of time the whole is turned and thoroughly mixed after the fashion of mortar. After it has dried and is broken up it is a most efficient fertilizer, containing about 72.30 per cent. of phosphate and a little more than 1 per cent. of nitrogen. Unlike the manufacture of most phosphates, this process is not attended by any of the disagreeable smells and other nuisances so closely associated with the ordinary fertilizer factory.

SIX MEALS A DAY IN NORWAY.

Final Luncheon at 11 O'clock Fortifies Nature for Long Night.
"We came to know typical Norwegian households, with their wholesome, serene atmosphere," writes Caroline Thurber in a pleasant narrative of "A Motor Invasion of Norway," in the Century.

"Long evenings were spent among musicians, lovers of Grieg, who interpreted his strange music for us as only Norwegians can. We learned much of the intimate and personal side of Ibsen and Bjornson from their own friends, and were made familiar with the artists who are making a name for the young northern school of painting.

"From the children in these homes we had glowing descriptions of the famed winter sports—ski jumping and coasting down the mountain side and through the forests about Christiania, under electric lights, when, at the hour for eating, the snow about the quaint log hotel at Holmenkollen is planted so close with skis stuck up right in the snow as to look like some new kind of colossal porcupine.

"Among the well-to-do in Norway the frequency of meals and lighter refreshments is something startling, at least to the average American—breakfast at 9, dinner at 3, coffee at half past 3, regular tea with many dishes in English style at half-past 4, supper at 7, and at 11 nature is finally fortified with further nutriment for the long, radiant night.

"These long, radiant nights, by the way, are a constant peril to Christiania. They encourage many forms of dissipation and immortality, such as the long winter brings in its train a certain sordid depression, both mental and physical.

The Way of Life.

It is being said of an elderly man in business in Atchison: "He can't stand punishment as he formerly could." And there is punishment to be endured in making a living; don't forget it. Look over your own experience and you will detect punishment every hour of the day. If it isn't at home it is on the street or on the road. How many ways there are to punish a man who tries his best to get along and behave himself! And after a man gets old it is more evident every year that the poor fellow can't stand punishment as he could when he was younger.

The Biographer's Art.

Even in the hands of a master it is difficult for a biography to escape being tedious at times; but the deadly dullness of the volumes put forth at the present day might be avoided. Critics frequently deplore the tendency to hero-worship in modern biographers—one would not surely quarrel with them for suppressing any fatuous adulation—but the fact remains that hero-worship is the feature of the great biographies of the world.

When She "Primps."

She walks in beauty like the night, as some romantic singer said; her eyes give forth a starry light, her lips are of a cherry red; across the floor she seems to float; she seems to me beyond compare a being perfect—till I note the way she has done up her hair. She must have toiled through half a day to build that large, unwieldy mass; she must have used a bale of hay, and strips of tin, and wire of brass; her sisters must have helped to braid, her mother wrought and tinkered there, and butler, cook and chambermaid all helped to wrestle with her hair. And after all the grinding toil, and all the braiding and the fuss, the one effect is just to spoil her beauty and make other people cuss. She walks in beauty like the night where nights are most serene; fair; but, Julius Caesar! she's a sight when she's got on her Sunday hair!
