

First Shipment of Stock to Portland Stock Yards

The first shipment of stock or other freight left Madras Friday morning it being four carloads of sheep billed for the Portland stock yards.

Frank Cox, of Prineville, brought to Madras of last week a band of 1000 head of sheep for shipment over the Oregon Trunk Line but on reaching here found the track had not yet reached Madras, but if he would wait a few days, cars would be brought to this point for the shipment of his sheep soon after the rails were laid, and this he decided to do.

While the Stevens party were here last Wednesday, arrangements were made for a special train, and this arrived Friday morning. A temporary yard was built just above the Madras Union Warehouse so that they could be easily loaded, the train leaving here at 10 A. M.

As stated above this was the first shipment of livestock to be sent to the Portland market, or any other from this section by rail transportation, and is only the commencement for many more that will follow in a few weeks. As stated in the interview with President Stevens and Mr. Colman, General Freight Agent, permanent stock yards will be established at Madras, preparations are now under way to carry out that plan.

During the trip down the canyon one of the cars jumped the track, but was soon placed on the rails again and the train proceeded to its destination, and the shipment arrived in Portland early the next morning. Special arrangements had been made at Clark's, on the Columbia River, for the shipment over the North Bank Road.

P. F. Harding Traveling Freight and Passenger agent of the North Bank Road, who accompanied the Stevens party last week, remained a few days and had charge of this shipment, so that no delays would be encountered.

GOES BY ALCOHOL ROUTE

At an early hour Saturday morning at the camp of the city water works just south of town, was found the body of David Mathers who had died some time during the night.

In the night some of those sleeping in the tent heard a man come up to the tent who finally found his way nearly around to the door, when he fell over, and they thinking that he had gotten up and gone away did not go out to investigate, but in the morning his body was found a short distance from the door, lying as it had undoubtedly fallen the night before. The coroner was notified and an inquest was held over the remains, and upon investigating found the circumstances and the effects of the deed, a bottle that had contained pure alcohol was found, and the conclusion was drawn that he had purchased the pure stuff the night before and drinking it had caused heart failure, which was the verdict of the jury.

No trace of relatives could be found other than some correspondence from some one in North Yakima, Wash. This person has been communicated with.

Interment was had at the Mays cemetery Saturday morning.

CULVER JUNCTION NEWS

Messrs. Stewart and Rice of Prineville are at the Cove Orchard making the survey for the Cove Power plant.

The survey for the pipe line from Opal Springs to Culver Junction has been completed and soon this place will have a city water system that will be second to none, meantime the deep well will furnish water to all.

At a mass meeting of the farmers and business men here it was determined to erect a warehouse and the name of the company will be the Culver Warehouse Company. Work on the building will be begun right away.

The batchelors of Culver Junction entertained the batchelor girls at a dinner Monday evening, the dinner being prepared by the gents. Turkey and other good things were served and a number of after-dinner talks were made. All very much enjoyed the dinner and voted that the batchelors, both boys and girls, need not remain batchelors any longer if they would only get enough courage to propose.

Culver Junction is to have a newspaper, The Deschutes Valley Tribune, machinery and equipment for which is on the way from Portland. Messrs. Young and Chandler will be editors and publishers.

A celebration consisting of a fish barbecue, old settlers reunion and railroad day will be held in Culver Junction upon the arrival of the rails of the Deschutes Railroad here. All are invited and especially the old settlers of the Central Oregon country.

There will be a meeting in Culver Saturday night to organize a band. About 20 instruments will be represented.
