OREGON TRUNK DEPOT IS NOW OCCUPIED

R. E. Michael Now Agent--Corett Goes to Opal City

The new Oregon Trunk depot was moved into by the local station force last Tuesday, and arrangements there are assuming an order and system much more comfortable and convenient than has been possible in the cramped quarters of the temporary depot which has done service since trains began running regularly.

J. M. Corbett who has been agent at Madras, has been transferred to Opal City, and A. E. Michael of Portland, is now agent at this place.

Three cottages that are being built by the Oregon Trunk as quarters for the employes, just south of the depot are receiving the finishing touches this week. This company's improvements are of neat and substantial type, and add much to the appearance of the city.

Harriman Trains Nearer

The whistles of the Harriman locomotives can now be heard in Madras daily, track laying having progressed to a point south of the G. L. Paxton ranch, about 10 miles away. Just when trains will reach the Madras depot grounds cannot be learned, although it seems probable that it will be about the middle of next month.

Water for Vanora

The water supply for Vanora townsite was put into operation last Saturday, the source being the Deschutes river and the water being forced on the property by means of a gasoline pumping outfit. Several new buildings are completed there and more are in course of construction.

Fishing Licenses Received

A supply of fishing license blanks have been received from County Clerk Warren Brown by Justice J. H. Jackson, and can be had from him at his office in the Pioneer building. D. W. Barnett has received the blanks for the hunting licenses. Since the opening of the fishing season there has been quite a demand for the licenses, but no blanks were available, and a considerable number of applications have been filed and receipt issued for fee, armed with which the fishermen have gone forth to try their luck.

Uncle Sam Won't Pay

The city authorities of Leavenworth, Kan., levied a paving assessment against the federal building in that city. They were surprised to find later that a federal building site is a government reservation, the sovereignty over which has been ceded by the state, and is therefore not taxable. A special appropriation by congress is necessary to pay for the paving, if it is to be paid.

A Serious Conflagration

The morning after the firemen's picnic Hogan, the pipe man, was in a bad way. "Howly shmoke," he groaned, "me insides is burnin' up, Honora!" "Do ye think, Mike, that ye could git th' fire under conthrol wid a bottle o' beer?" asked Mrs. Hogan. "I dunno," said Hogan, "but anyway it would help to wet down th' rulus." --Puck.

A Wonder

Junior Partner--I see you have engaged a new clerk. Is he a good salesman? Senior Partner--Good salesman? Great Scott, I had to send for the police to prevent him from talking me into taking him into the firm.--Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Dr. Syntax.

On the English coast, at Land's End, there stands a curiously formed bowlder with a profile resembling that of a human face. It is supposed that once the rocky head was held proudly erect and could look out over the blue sea, but during some period of disturbance the huge bowlder was thrown forward, so that now the forehead of the man rests against a neighboring rock. All these rugged and massive pieces bordering the coast are fine granite. Locally the curious bowlder is known as Dr. Syntax.

A Better Campaigner

Two candidates for the same office came into a certain town one day. The one called at a house, where a little girl came to the door. Said he, "Sissie, will you please bring me a glass of water?" Having brought the water, he gave her some candy and asked, "Did the man ahead of me give you candy?" "Yes, sir." Then he gave her a nickel and said, "Did he give you money?" "Yes, sir; he gave me 10 cents." Then he picked her up, he kissed her and said, "Did he kiss you?" "Yes, sir, and he kissed mamma too!"--National Monthly.

The Bird and the Man.

A country stable keeper was driving a salesman from one town to another when, in passing through a wooded section, the salesman seized the lines and brought the horse to a halt.

"What is that noise?" he queried, listening to a peculiar sound coming from the woods.

"That? Oh, that's a partridge drumming," replied the driver.

"Well," mused the salesman, letting go the lines, "I hope he's had better luck than I have today."--Boston Herald.

Sharp and Bright!

Two street urchins were arguing about the high cost of living or something at Sixth and Sanson streets, and soon logic was exhausted and they began to call names.

"You're a bonehead!" one grimy kid informed the other.

"G'wan, I'm so sharp me old man tried to lick me the other day and cut his hand. You're the lowbrow of the party."

"Is that so? Well, if you want to know anything, I'm so bright my mother calls me sun."--Philadelphia Times.

Paper Money in Mexico.

In Mexico and other Latin American countries there is no law against the reproduction of the paper money of the country for use as advertising, but in the United States this is a felony, and any one so doing would be prosecuted under the laws of the land for counterfeiting the national currency. In Mexico imitation bills can be seen at all times used for advertising purposes, and, strange to say, they deceive no one, and the users of them do not intend any deceit, though it would seem to be an easy matter to pass them on unlettered persons. Can it be that Mexicans are more intelligent or simply that few of the illiterate ever gain possession of paper money? --Argonaut.

John Wesley's Wife.

John Wesley married a widow, Mrs. Vizelle, who grew tired of his restlessly laborious life and complained. He paid no attention, and from complaint she went on to jealousy, thence to fury. He rebuked her sternly: "Do not any longer contend for mastery, for power, money or praise. Be content to be a private, insignificant person. Of what importance is your character to man kind? If you were buried just now or had never lived, what loss would it be to the cause of God?" She left him, taking with her a large number of his private papers, and he dismissed the subject by writing in his journal: "I did not forsake her. I did not dismiss her. I shall not call her back."

NOBILITY OF PURPOSE.

If either man or woman would realize the full power of personal beauty it must be by cherishing noble thoughts and hopes and purposes, by having something to do and something to live for that is worthy of humanity and which by expending the capacities of the soul gives expansion and symmetry to the body which contains it.--Up-ham.

AN INCUBATOR CAVE.

My brother, did you ever run an incubator in the house, smoke the white ceiling, the snowy curtains and the counterpane and get henpecked for it? Alas, yes!

Well you deserved it and a good lickin' to boot. Have you yearned for an incubator all these years, but been deprived of hatchin' chicks by the bar'l because Marlar had a gropla' fear that it would bust and blow up the whole shebang?

Alas, yes!

Brother, there is hope!

Our picture solves the problem.

Of course a natural cave, dry and spacious, would be better; but not having one handy, our friend made his own, and it's a dandy. It was tunneled back into the hill eighteen feet and made ten feet wide.

As much as possible the natural roof was preserved, and the structure was built of thick, squared logs, concrete being pushed in over the top and the roof outside being covered with concrete and packed earth. It is simply all heavy logs, except the board front, the ground floor and the inner end, which is earth.

A ventilator enters at the front, runs overhead to the rear, and to this the incubator heaters are attached by pipes for removal of all lamp fumes.

There is very little drip, the temperature is about right, air is good and just moist enough. The cave holds ten 150 egg incubators.

This cave reminds one of the entrance to a soft coal mine, and if you take a notion to build such an incubator convenience talk it over with an old miner--he is everywhere--and get his assistance and advice.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS

Q. I am an amateur photographer and have been interested in your pictures. Do you use film or plate, and how do you get such good pictures?

A. We use a plate camera (5 by 7) with A No. 1 lens and shutter. You must learn the trick by experience. It requires much patience, and you'll often be tempted to break that resolution not to cuss.

Q. I am a woman fancier and especially interested in your articles on poultry diseases. Postmortems are very offensive to me, however, especially examination and opening of the intestines. Perhaps you may suggest a way out.

A. Postmortem is not pleasant for any one. There is less gas, less smell, if performed early. Sprinkle the cavity and organs with a weak solution of carbolic acid. Open intestines and other parts in clear water in which some acid has been dropped. This kills smells and prevents poison.

Q. I live near the water and can get plenty of fish for my hens and ducks. Is it a good ration?

A. Fish is good for ducks in breeding season, but gives a fishy flavor to their flesh. If much is fed it will affect the flavor of eggs, and it is claimed mollusks and fish often transmit tapeworm to fowl.
