Members of the committee are working energetically to make the occasion a great success and there is prospect of a large crowd being in attendance. Music will be furnished by a three-piece orchestra and dancing will continue as late as the crowd desires.

Building Notes

The work on the Gateway Hotel, the new brick is progressing rapidly, although the inability to get certain materials is more or less delaying the construction. During the past week ten carloads of material that will go into the building have been received. Three of these carloads were lumber, three of pressed brick for the south and west facings, two carloads of cement, one of lime and one of iron for the glass front fittings. The walls have been completed up to the lower level of the windows, the floor joists have all put in and the work is now held up awaiting the arrival of material for the false flooring. This material is expected in a few days and from that time on there is expected to be no halt in the completion of the building. The work that has been done on the building thus far by the Bentley Construction company indicates that no expense is being spared to make the hotel one of the finest of its class and one that will be a credit to the whole of Central Oregon for years to come.

Construction of an addition to the Madras Flouring Mill has been commenced, which when completed and additional machinery installed will enlarge the capacity of the mill from a 50-barrel to a 75-barrel per day and also provide for additional storage room. The Madras mill has been enjoying a splendid business and while the present addition there will be more than the demand for flour at present calls for, Manager H. F. Dietzel says that by increasing the capacity of the mill he will be able to produce flour at less expense, and also has in view the future growth of the business.

Harry G. Key is having a neat cottage constructed on his property on south Main street, which will be for rent.

Attorney E. G. Bergland has had a small office building built just south of the post office, which he will occupy with his law office as soon as completed.

Fred Davis's harness business has outgrown its present quarters and an additional room has been built in the rear to accommodate the work shop and supplies.
