

Personal and Local

Judge Wilcox, of Redmond, was a visitor in Madras Tuesday.

James Keenan came in from his Willow Creek ranch Tuesday, attending to local business.

Mrs. J. Sears is spending the latter part of the week with her daughter at Cline Falls.

A. C. Sanford came down from Bend Monday to receive medical treatment from the local doctors.

J. Coyne, of Haycreek, was in last Friday attending to business matters.

Tom McCormack was called to Portland Wednesday morning on business matters.

Lex Long was in from Haycreek Friday attending to some business matters.

F. D. Wooley, salesman for the Pacific Hardware Company, was in Madras Monday, calling on his local customers.

J. H. Haner, the abstract man, of Prineville, was in Madras last Friday attending to local business.

J. Saxton and W. O. Ralston, were down from Culver last Friday attending to business matters.

John Martin, of Haycreek, made homestead proof before Commissioner Turner at his office Tuesday.

Malcolm H. Clark and Deputy Marshall Becker, of Portland, have been in Madras since Sunday attending to legal business.

Judge W. R. Ellis, of Pendleton, candidate to succeed himself in the national congress, was in Madras Tuesday, looking over the political situation.

Carlton L. Pepper, of The Dalles, republican candidate for district attorney of the seventh judicial district was in Madras this week in the interest of his candidacy.

William Boegli came up from the Cove Saturday to shake hands with the Madras voters. He is well known and liked in Madras, and will doubtless poll a good vote in this precinct.

G. W. McFarlane, of Redmond, candidate for county judge, was in Madras the latter part of last week, looking over the political field, and doing a little campaigning.

Sunday fishermen returned home without so much as a strike. The river continues muddy, and will probably not furnish good fishing for several weeks.

Miss Emma Grewell made commutation proof on her homestead situated near Youngs, before Commissioner Turner Tuesday. William Blair and James Hurt were her witnesses.

John Lockard has been driving the Youngs mail wagon this week, A. W. Craig, the regular driver having been called to Grizzly on business.

J. W. Weaver, former pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal Church, was in Madras Saturday and Sunday, and left here for Metolius, where he will take charge of the branch store of the C. O. M. Co.

The Madras State Bank moved into its new quarters Saturday, and was ready for business Monday morning. Contractor Rhoads has a force of men at work laying the concrete walk around the building.

C. B. Starina, of Mulberry, Kansas, who recently visited in Madras, has written back to friends that his neighbors are enthusiastic about the samples of grain and potatoes which he took back to show them.

Oscar C. Sathe, of Minnesota, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Ben Ashley. At the special Easter Services at the Methodist Episcopal Church last Sunday evening, Mr. Sathe sang a solo which added much to the attractiveness of the services.

Dock F. South, of Sisters, was in Madras the early part of the week, shaking hands with friends, and attending to business matters.

Miss Teresa Sheff, who has been spending the winter at Mrs. Crosby's, will go to Metolius Friday night, and will leave from that place Saturday morning to visit friends in Rockford and Hillyard, Washington, going thence to her home in Iowa.

Horace Addis, representative of Rural Spirit, a weekly Portland paper devoted to the interest of the stockman and farmer of the Northwest, was in Madras several days this week looking after business affairs.

Charles O. Pollard, candidate for the Republican nomination for county judge will speak in Madras Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. He was scheduled to speak here on the 7th, having overlooked the fact that that date was on Sunday.

Dick Dove, a former resident of Madras, now living at Bend, was a visitor this week. He has just returned from Summer Lake, where he took some of the government land that has been in demand during the past six months. Dick went along with W. F. Hammer, and son, of the Haystack country, all of whom took land in the same area.

TAFT IS FOR PRIMARIES

He Has Nothing to Fear From Popular Vote.

The Roosevelt campaign is making a strong bid for popularity by claiming that their side alone wants a popular expression on the Presidential candidacy. This contention is not well founded however, for there is no known instance where President Taft has opposed the Presidential preference idea, and he has always been willing to trust his own fortunes with the people.

He refused to advise the Republican National Committee what attitude to take upon this question and he even let it be known that he was willing to meet his opponents in any presidential primary where the voters would be sure of a fair vote and a fair count. Opposition to the primary in the Taft campaign is only based upon the absence of a law authorizing the primary in many states and the lack of any legal provision for the payment of expenses.

As the campaign develops, it appears that the more presidential primaries are held, the better it will be for Mr. Taft. This condition is now being generally recognized throughout New England. The Massachusetts situation is one rather favorable to the administration. Reports from that state are to the effect that Roosevelt killed himself by his Columbus speech. It was thought he would give Taft a strong fight in Massachusetts, but now it is doubted if he will get even a delegate.

The Taft campaign managers are not concerned because the Massachusetts legislature has passed a presidential preference law.
