SITUATED AT GATEWAY

The Gateway City is the business center for the entire Northern Oregon Crop County district, and is the first town reached by the Oregon and Western Railroad. Since the Gateway City was platted in 1877, its growth has been steady and substantial. It offers to its residents the comforts of modern civilization. Numerous churches, progressive grade and high schools, well-stocked stores and a substantial bank, with the outside world, a city water system affording adequate fire protection and an abundance of pure water and soon to be installed, electric lights and power. A four-story mill manufactures a most excellent quality of flour, and numerous warehouses provide marketing and storing capacity for the products of the district.

Agriculture and livestock offer exceptional terest to the homeowner and the investor.
Present values are in keeping with production.

OREGON NEWS IN GENERAL

The City of East Central Oregon is an interesting case at the Present. Portland people learned a lot from the exhibits of many parts of the Pacific Northwest at the recently held fair. Agricultural possibilities were shown by many who were new to the wealth of the soil it offers them.
Two showy crop were of great interest, the show of the people. They learned that the show included a fine collection of high equality livestock as well as unusual. This fair is held every year in the United States.

They show what people are doing in Oregon agriculture and the state's great resources, and attract many to those lands and cities.

Oregon, which is one of the most progressive cities of the country, is keeping up its reputation by starting another newspaper. This time it is a fine work of a woman's club, where men of all classes can get good food and facilities will be provided for pleasant recreation and improvement.

That the Willamette Valley landscapes will supply the market in supplying as pleasant and refreshing drink for people of this state is what the prediction is now being made. It is being planned extensively and a great future for this delicious fruit seems assured.

Oregon manufacturers formed a state wide organization during a convention in Portland the past week that will, undoubtedly, be of much good. This time it is for the benefit of Oregon made goods. To this end the association will conduct a state wide campaign.

The Oregon Agricultural College will have the honor of organizing the First Governmental in the history of the farm work. Presi dent Kearn, recently returned from Washington, received the assurance that the city would be a coming annual for state wide work of this character. One organization among the lines was viewed favorably at the capital.

Tillamook County will soon start a new industry, the manu facture of milk sugar from large supply of which is avail able from the numerous cheese factories of that district. Funds for the erection of a factory have been appropriated.

The Oregon Purified Livestock Association, in session the past week, and it is recommended that the livestock sanitary bill be approved. The new bill is expected to provide for the appointment of a commission of five who shall make without salary or check the spread of livestock diseases.

The state legislature had an important meeting at the recent Oregon Land and Livestock Society, of which secretary, of Necie, also carried on the lion's share of prizes at the national day of farming. Every county will, have an exhibit at Portland, and other sections of the state where livestock is prac tioned had excellent showings.

Friday night before the legis lative committee of live stock breeders of Oregon at the Tillamook and Commercial Club. Dr. Jas Brown, director of the Oregon Agricultural College Ex periment Station, urged the need of a live stock sanitary board.

At present this work is div ided under two heads, with the result of very inefficient work, so far as the State Veterinarian's office is concerned," said Dr.
Brown.

"For this very reason, the State Veterinarian's office has been practically wiped out by chal ges in sections of Benton county, and the county rapidly extend ing itself in death dealing practices in being advised counties. It is a waste of means and effort to have a State Sheep Inspector and a State Veterinarian working under different administrations.
These offices, in the interest of economy and greater efficiency should consolidate and bring under the management of a single instituting a sanitary commission for Oregon. The live stock work of the college should receive better support.

The prize-winning products of Oregon Crop County are not limited to grain.
Under the methods of scientific cultivation by the farmer of today, the diversified crops of the American farm are produced like profusion and quality. Alkali, the thickest of farm crops, is an important factor in making the farmer's pride, and Cows, Fruit, Potatoes, and Vegetables of all kinds are rare and commodious. Potatoes and Live Stock thrive, and animal health ranks high.
