BOYAKIN ET AL.—Though the emboglio is none of our funeral and is being prosecuted to the infinite detriment of the Black republican party in whose interest Boyakin was, previously to the great deurement, imported into this county we cannot close our eyes to the turn tings are taking. Like the man that won the elephant in the raffle they have, by their course of action in every conceivable view of the case, got Boyaki on their hands, and now the trouble seems to be, how to get rid of him. Boyakin knowing the extent of his guilt in the premises, dares beard the lion in his den, which proves exceedingly annoying to those who, in his absence, pattered and made public charges of the gravest moment, doubtless supposing that their reputation would never be attempted.

It would seem that their policy now is to compromise Boyakin's influence by a systematic course of infamiation persecution and petty prosecution. But like the locusts of Egypt, Boyakin is staying with them and indeed seems to be becoming more resolute all while and determined to expose the injustice which he alleges to have been done him, and the community almost with perfect unanimity, are beginning to ask, why, if there was really one tittle of the guilt charged against Boyakin true, his accusers do not bring him to an account for it instead of the contrary, of studiously eschewing in all their present proceedings, any reference to their former allegations. The time of the disclosure of the great crime against Boyakin was very inauspicious, for him, as had there not been an important election to come off, the Black press of Oregon would have come to his relief. As it was, knowing that the charges would be used with telling effect, the blacks were compelled to try to out herod herod in the camp against him, to the end that his effect might to some extent be neutralized. By this means he got what he considered too much of a good thing, all told, and hence, having all to gain and nothing to lose, Boyakin is justified by correct philosophy, independent of any moral consideration in seeing the thing out. It is a family broil. When rogues fall out, honest men get their dues. We can afford to entertain the notion of the woman when the bear and her husband were fighting.

Depositions are being taken to day before J. T. Hembree Esq. in the Yamhill contested election cases.

—Some Abolition pupet in the Philadelphia Convention called Hon. C. L. Vallandigham a Black Republican eminary and got knocked down for his pains. Good for Val.

Advertisement. A Card.

I owe the public an apology for condescending to notice, and for calling attention to an article in this paper purporting to come from one Stiles but who in reality is simply the pliant tool of other parties in said article a great deal of low and vulgar language is used against me the vocabulary of words seems to have been ransacked and exhausted for names sufficiently terrible and sarcastic to convey their ideas of hatred and annihilation, this fellow Stiles seems to be terribly exercised over what he calls abuse of his fair name and impecuniate record, now if I have at any time said anything regarding this fellow that was not strictly true he has failed to come forward in his manhood and demand of me what is even his due, indeed it would be difficult to say anything out of place regarding this fellow whose drunken and outrageous on our streets is of so frequent occurrence and whose face no longer passes current at the Dayton Saloon for a drink of Red Eye as the Saddles and Brules there in pawn this day bear undeniable testimony and here I feel like stopping and again apologizing for noticing this fellow and these fellows incarnate by thus giving them this public notoriety

I will here briefly state to those unacquainted with the parties and the circumstances that called forth said article concerning me, that it is shamefully false without truth or foundation and is the work of a low dirty immoral political clique who infect this place and whose contaminating influence is severely felt in the no. of such community irresponsible men of desperate fortunes who have neither names nor character to lose

F. D. SEEBOLD
Dayton Aug 14 1866.

Respectfully dedicated to Ed Warn at McMinnville who exposed my private correspondence and who secretly and cowardly connived at the publication of said article concerning me by the author
