"J. N." Prophetical.

The Montgomery Alectiser records the following recent prophetic utterance of J. N. Fies:

"I had Stevens will die in his bed in Washington city on the 12th day of Feb 1868, perfectly happy, but the negroes and whites will have a bloody fight at his burial."

"Ulysses Grant will be thrown from his buggy on Maryland avenue, on the morning of March 1, 1868, about eleven o'clock, his cigar will be driven d wa his throat and a portion of it enter his lungs, developing a disease from which he will never recover. He will never be president; Andrew Johnson will, but he will not long survive his re election."

"About dusk, on the 15th of July, 1868, Horace Greely will be attacked, near the corner of Hudson street, by an armed and negro, who will inflict serious wounds upon his head and face, including a severe gash in the right groin. He will recover, but will disappear in 1869 and never more be heard of."

"Samuel P. Chase will perish at sea, on his way to Savannah, some time in the spring of the present year. The republican party will regret his loss even more than Grant's."

"Before the year 1870, Charles Sumner will be driven from this country; and after many years exile in Africa, will return to Boston, where he will die at a great age. After his death a temple will be erected to his memory, and he will be worshipped as the god of beauty, purity and goodness."

"On the 16th of 1869—The bones of a London and this night be removed secretly to England for safety from the western mob."

"On the 4th of 1868—Great mourning throughout New England this day, for a man to be worn for six months, for the death of the good and great Benj. F. Butler, who died last evening in Sing Sing prison of cancer of the heart and lower bowels. He was imprisoned falsely for theft. Four negro females in various parts of Massachusetts will commit suicide for grief over this beloved man."

Conversation with Grant.

I found General Grant in the patent office examining some patent cigar holders.

"Good morning, Mr. Grant."

"Good morning, Mr. Head."

"Be you in the war office now?"

"I'm in the patent office now."

"Snake?"

"Yes; please give us a light. Be you going to run for the presidency, Mr. Grant?"

"I slew seventy thousand men in the battle of the Wilderness, Mr. Head."

"Yes; which side were the slewed men fit in, Mr. Grant?"

"Here he sat down so to smoke easier. That's all he said."

"Mr. Grant, folks don't know where you stand; do you?"

"He bit off the end of his cigar and replied:

"What loss did you bet on at the race the other day?"

"I lost a lockin' at him."

"Not the boss you'er tryin' to ride, old fellow? And hereby hangs a tale."

"He lit another snoot, and I said:

"Mr. Grant, we're sufferin' terribly down south; couldn't you and some other we men send us down some troops?"

"I will speak to Mr. Stanton, and if he hasn't anything for me to do in the office this afternoon, I'll get 1,000 cigars and take you out to ride."

I was satisfied by the above conversation that General Grant was a great man. I never had a man to grate more on my feelings than he did; he is a man more qualified as a man than Anna Dickinson ever was."

Our Debt

The national debt is increasing at the rate of $12,000,000 a month. That was the amount of increase for the month of January. It is estimated that the increase for the month of February will be still greater. Twelve millions of dollars a month is more than it cost the government to carry on the Mexican war. Thus, then, under the rule, it cost a great deal more to carry on the government in a time of peace, than it does, under democratic rule, in a time of war. With this monthly increase of national debt, the expenditures of the government in a time of prolonged peace, under a rate rule, are about $50,000,000 per month. Under democratic rule the expenses of a whole year were only seven in Buchanan's administration—$39,000,000. [Argus]

Warning.

The Intelligencer, in discussing the fearful progress of the military rule after asserting that Pretorian guards were being established all about Washington, and that they will be even placed at the executive mansion and in all the departments, so that as a signal given by Stanton, a coup d'etat may be accomplished, and the existing government overthrown, closes with the following note of warning: "This is the principle object for which we seek to direct attention from this point by a sham zeal for retrenchment, the more discussion of which costs more to the country than all their proposed economy."

"We warn the people of these wicked designs, so that they may be prepared to defend their rights and to preserve our institutions.

The time may be near at hand when it will be necessary to prove our patriotism by earnest tests, and to show to the world that we yet deserve to enjoy those liberties which a military conspiracy now aims to subvert and destroy."

A Plain Statement

"Before our connection with the Unionist, the publisher of the Record would be cancelled to succeed; then, the aid of contributors would obtain the concern together with the State Printing!"

—Daily Unionist.

In answer to the above, we will only say that, no longer ago than last week, the publisher of the Record was written to by some of the principal editors of the Unionist, whose claims, to the amount of a sum greater than the value of the Record, to see whether an arrangement could not be effected with him to take charge of "the concern," in order to give them a show for their money. A reposition of the financial condition of that establishment was sufficient to convince him that it would be the part of prudence to keep clear of any "entangling alliance" with an office on the verge of bankruptcy. Furthermore, he never had a desire to obtain the Unionist concern. We are satisfied with the Record and its prospects, and our aim will be to extend its circulation and increase its usefulness—in which we think we have the good wishes of the people of Salem.

Query: Does possession of the old worn-out material of the Unionist entitle a man to the State Printing? An early answer is desired. [Record.]

A STROKE AT GRANT.—The Revolution, an intense "loft" paper, goes after Grant and others as follows:

"The talk is that a certain officer called General Grant, a 'har' and a 'sneaky' that General Grant is drunk half of the time and has been seen steadily himself on another man in Pennsylvania avenue; that Stanton and Washburne have been engaged to him, and that he feels his degradation and don't look anybody in the face. The talk is that Jay Cooke goes in for killing General Grant and nominating Chase; that Chase don't get drunk, is a moral man and liberal to loan agents and national bank men. The talk is that the people are sick of all politicians; that they don't see a better temperance or more in Washington; that they want a fresh deal now."

These are some of the items that make up the God and-morality party. And this same temperance man is the temperance candidate of such temperance men as Logan and McDonald, and other great leaders. Will not several thousand "loft" New England preachers backed by the G. and M. of Oregon out with a partition to the Almighty to aid in pushing Grant and Logan's Claims? And if the Oregon branch cant—"Win it on the square they kick on from the South."

Joseph R. Grant, Esq., of Kentucky, the father of Ulysses, has commenced the publication of a series of letters in the New York Ledger sketching the boyhood of his son, and relating anecdotes illustrative of his character. This will be a popular and radical article, and the people may look for rare freaks of juvenile proserity. The story of George Washington's little boyhood will doubtless be obliterated from the pages of the school boys' primer—but in the light of late events, we just look forward with painful anxiety to ascertain from the pen of his father, whether the boy ever told a Lie.
