Recently arrived steamers, says the Atlantic is full of ice, and this explains the mystery of the incessant rains from which the eastern seaboard and indeed the whole country, has been suffering more weeks than it is a pleasant thing to think of. It is probable that there has been a mild winter and early spring in the Arctic regions. This has caused open waters, which have borne into the Atlantic an uncommon quantity of ice. This great mass of ice, drifting into lower latitudes, is rapidly melting, and the vapors arising from it are too abundant rain-storms which have caused floods and more or less injury fill the vacuum thus constantly created by the summer heats.

If this explanation is correct we may have a continuation of the rains for some time to come-until the masses of ice are melted, or until the remains drift further south. It is not a pleasant thing to think that the disagreeable weather of the last few weeks may continue for some time to

A jail chaplain, finding a prisoner exhibiting, as he thought, signs of true religious conviction, gave him a Bible and afterward exerthimself to procure a commutation of his sentence. Succeeding in the latter effort, he informed the man of his approaching liberty. His gratitude knew no bounds. He called him his deliverer, and grasping his hand at parting, added: never want it again.
