

TAWNEY SPEAKS AT GETTYSBURG

Delivers Principal Memorial Address To Assemblage Of Thousands Of People

DUTIES OF STATES

Tendency of Late Years to Let National Government Assume Their Responsibilities.

Thousands of people gathered to hear James A. Tawney, chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, deliver his Memorial address at Gettysburg yesterday.

The program for the day had been carried through Tawney was introduced and spoke as follows:

The battle of Gettysburg, like those of Marston Moor and Runnymede and Bunker Hill, was fought to determine the proper bounds of political and civil liberty. It was fought to settle a purely personal issue. There is but one great problem in politics today, and that is the adjustment of the central power of the State or nation to the local self-government of the people.

In the early part of the nineteenth century there was fear and danger that the Union of the States was as a rope of sand and would fall apart, or rather that the States could not come together and forever remain together under one comprehensive system of local self and national government.

These undertakings which belong exclusively to the States or private interests to do and to pay for, but which have been authorized by Congress and must be paid for from appropriations made from the federal treasury, exceed the legitimate functions of the federal government as conceived by the founders of our political institutions and as declared by them in the Constitution of the United States.

I do not lead for State's rights. I plead for the right of the federal government to protect itself and its treasury against the encroachments of the States and private interests upon her powers, her duties and her revenues.

MEMORIAL DAY ON COOS BAY

Exercises At Marshfield Are Well Attended, the Masonic Opera House Being Crowded

BOATS DO WELL

Several Hundred Passengers Are Carried To and Fro Between the Two Cities.

Memorial Day was observed by almost every business house in Marshfield yesterday, and a great many of them unfurled flags at half mast as a tribute to the dead.

The members of Baker Post No. 8 of the G. A. R. met at the old Masonic Hall at 1:30, from which place they repaired to the Opera House.

The boats did a heavy business between North Bend and Marshfield yesterday, over 500 people being carried. Kelly had the Tioga running extra.

About every business house in North Bend closed and many flags were unfurled. The city presented a very quiet scene in the afternoon.

resort, may be compelled to assume practical control over the States and the domestic affairs of their people. In that case, with the vast and varied local and national interests of a hundred and fifty millions of people, how long would it be before the task and burden of government would be so complex, so stupendous that of its own weight our splendid system of government would fall.

The true reason for this dangerous tendency, or why the people are willing to let the national government perform and pay for so many things which properly fall within the obligations of the States and private citizens, lies in the fact that they do not realize that they are themselves paying for the things which the national government pays for.

I do not lead for State's rights. I plead for the right of the federal government to protect itself and its treasury against the encroachments of the States and private interests upon her powers, her duties and her revenues.

BITTER AGAINST THE PRESIDENT

Scathing Letter Is Written To Roosevelt By Deposed Governor of New Mexico

DEFENDS FATHER

Is Answer to One Written Litter Regarding Complicity In Development Company Scandal.

Albuquerque, N. M., May 30.—The Citizen, an afternoon paper, today prints the text of a letter from President Roosevelt to Former Governor Hagerman, who recently resigned the office of Governor at the request of the President.

The President in the course of the letter says Secretary Root has handed him a long telegram from Hagerman's father asking that action be deferred until Hagerman has a chance to answer the charges against him, explaining that the charges are well known to be unfounded and made by a party of freebooters to restore themselves to power.

Regarding the charges Hagerman's father makes, the President asks if the father will give him any facts against any one he will consider them if he has the power to do so.

Charges of a very grave character were made to me against your father himself in connection with his land transactions in the past. Whether they are true or not, I cannot say, because the preliminary examination showed that action on them would be barred by the statute of the State.

Hagerman in answer says the President's letter is a challenge and invitation which would be discourteous and cowardly to decline, although it offers the unpleasant alternative of a controversy with the President or submission to an impeachment of his integrity at the President's hands.

Concluding, Hagerman said: "But for your gratuitous and irrelevant assault upon my father, I should probably have been able to restrain myself from making any reply to your letter, notwithstanding it is easy to refute every suggestion of fraudulent or improper action you make against me.
