FRUIT JARS READY SELLERS

Demand Increases Each Year Says Local Dealer—Reason Hard to Explain

PLANT IS SALVATION

Good Ship Brings In Generous Supply of Green Stuffs and Fruits.

"It's a peculiar thing," remarked a dealer the other day, "but the sale of jars for canning fruits increases each year. You wouldn't think that possible, and I must say that I can't explain it. The natural conclusion would be that once a good supply of jars is laid in there would only be a slight demand to replenish the stock. But the trade is increasing every year. This year I laid in three times the amount of jars I had last year, sold every one, and could have sold three times as many if I had ordered them. It would make a pretty good puzzle question—where do the glass jars go?"

The coming of the Plant proved the salvation for the local market in the way of green stuffs and some varieties of fruit. For the last few days there has been a marked scarcity of these products on the market. It is said that the recent rains and the hail storm yesterday will cause a pronounced shortage of strawberries for a while. The strawberries which were ready for picking were bruised up, and it will be necessary to await the ripening of more, which will require some days. Cherries are now commencing to come in generously and the stock is unusually good.

LIKES COOS BAY THE BEST

After Traveling 3000 Miles Inland Dr. J. W. Ingram Has Seen Nothing to Compare

CHICAGO BALL GAME

'Twas Immense, but Failed to Arouse the Enthusiasm of a Home Game.

Chicago Ill., Editor Coos Bay Times: I wrote you from St. Paul, Minn., last night and trusted the mailing to a depot attachee, now I wonder whether or not it has as yet found its way into the hands of Uncle Sam's mail boys. I arrived in Chicago this morning, after a most pleasant and comfortable fourteen hours ride over the lines of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway. Their accommodations are all one can expect and their employes are always on the look out for your comfort. On the whole it has helped to melt away the long and tiresome trip of my first few days.

Through the state of Illinois everything happy of its own existence, the farmers appear prosperous and why not, when the years crops are so full of life and everything is growing as desired. Through your entire trip from St. Paul to Chicago it is one farm after another with a first class prospect for good crops and fair prices.

On reaching Chicago I was transferred to the Illinois Central depot on 12th street and as I wrote this short note of my pleasant trip I am able to look out over the lake and see the countless number of small sail boats as well as a few larger vessels, however, it only compares in a small degree, in the respect with Marshfield with her many pleasure launches. I much prefer Coos Bay and a trip up Coos River for an interview with nature to a sail on the lake with artificial beauties. Marshfield should be proud of her natural parks of pleasure and streams of enjoyment and past time.

A balloon ascension, an air ship flight and a base ball game are some of the amusements I witnessed during the afternoon while waiting for my train.

The balloon ascension was attractive nevertheless successful, the aerial flight of the ship was a failure, but the base ball game was immense. I thought of our boys and their games and it is all just base ball game and I must confess a home game arouses more enthusiasm in me than a Chicago game among strangers.

I expect to leave this evening for another all night's ride and then for a few days rest if one can call convention life rest.

Give my regards to friends and associates.

Yours,
J. W. Ingram.
