CHEF IS FINED IN MARSHFIELD COURT

Cook From Plant Iested Over Night In Officer Carter's Palatial Retreat. Steve Burke, a cook on the Plant, was placed in Officer Carter's asylum Tuesday afternoon after he had been drubbed into submissiveness by Carter. Burke had been making a show of himself on a public street and when requested to desist, showed fight and told the officer to go to hell, or some other seaport. Burke paid well for his stubbornness, and was fined $25 and costs by Judge Upton, who regretted the fine could not have been larger. The charge against him was "indecent exposure." Burke is known to be a quarrelsome character, as he was at one time located in Marshfield and cooked at a local hotel. He hadn't the wherewith with which to liquidate his indebtedness to the municipality, and F. S. Dow advanced the money for him, thus saving him the pleasure of working on the streets for a time.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO HAVE GOOD MEETING

The Chamber of Commerce meeting for this Friday night promises to be one of the most interesting that has been held of late. State Dairy and Food Commissioner Bailey is to make an address which should prove valuable to every person interested in agriculture. Mrs. Yeakum, who has a model dairy, is expected to be present and explain many things respecting the conduct of a dairy which will be beneficial to the dairymen of Coos county. Other important matters will be discussed and the meeting should be well attended. Ladies are invited to this gathering, since there are many who would profit by the talk.

CARELESS HUNTSMEN CAUSING TROUBLE

J. M. Davis, a farmer at the forks of Coos rivers, complains of the carelessness of hunters who go up and down the river in gasoline launches. Last week, somebody was shooting from a boat and killed a cow belonging to Davis. Farmers and other workmen in that vicinity have been frightened several times by having aimless bullets whiz past them while at work, and several have become so incensed that they are planning to detect guilty parties and bring suit against them.

FORTY ACRES OF EAST SIDE PROPERTY SOLD

W. W. Graves and R. L. Edmonston, of Portland, have added to their Coos Bay holdings, 40 acres of land adjoining East Marshfield and the Archer tract recently purchased by a local company. This deal was closed on Tuesday and the purchasers feel they have made a good buy.

STORY OF A CHICKEN AND HUNGRY CAMPERS

A good story is told on a party who were camping on Big Creek the past week. It seems the crowd became possessed of voracious appetites which the usual sea food would not satisfy, nor would the provisions they had with them. Some one with clerical connections thought of chicken, and it was agreed that chicken was the thing. Accordingly, an emissary was sent to a neighboring farm house where a good fat hen was secured for sixty cents. The usual work of preparing a chicken for the pot was quickly accomplished, and the bird was put on to cook. The party then wandered about for a time until it was presumed the chicken was well done and they then returned to the feast. They approached the precious pot with highest anticipations, and great was their dismay upon finding the pot empty or nearly so. The chicken had disappeared and in the pot was the sixty cents. The woman who had sold the chicken concluded she wanted it herself and so made the exchange, during their absence.

This boat, it is said will carry only passengers and express and will make only the principal stops up and down the river.

SLAYS HUSBAND FOR A BURGLAR

San Francisco, Aug. 11.—In the belief that he was a burglar, Mrs. Edward Farquhar shot and killed her husband about 9:30 o'clock last night at their home, 817 Twentieth street.

The couple retired at 8 o'clock and were sleeping in a room with their crippled son, who is twelve years old. Farquhar arose shortly after 9 o'clock and went out. Upon returning to the house his wife, hearing footsteps in the room adjoining, and believing they were those of a burglar, screaming at the top of her voice and snatching a revolver from the side of the bed, fired at the door in the direction whence the sound of footsteps came.

Farquhar was just turning the knob of the door when the bullet struck him in the groin, severing the femoral artery. He bled profusely and died before medical assistance could reach him.

The Undisputed Excellence of the Henry F. Miller and Sons pianos is due to the high artistic standard which has always been the principle of its design and manufacture, so that today the Henry F. Miller & Sons is synonymous with all that is excellent in piano-forte construction.

The best evidence of the permanent adherence to high ideals is the length of years most of the Miller representatives have had the Miller piano.
