TO THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

There is a suggestion as to advertising the Coos Bay country which should be taken up by the two Chambers of Commerce and which refers to a feature which has been overlooked. It is fair to say that the idea has been in the mind of the able secretary of the Marshfield Chamber, and it is hoped that it will be urged by him and received by the Chambers with approval. And in this connection it is proper to say that the two Chambers should work together in having such advertising matter published as affects the prosperity of the Bay, generally.

What we refer to is the fact that the literature of Coos Bay, including the Call of Coos Bay; Mr. Snover's address on the Gravenstein apple, pamphlets on coal, on timber, on dairying, on vegetables, on agriculture generally, should be translated into the German and Scandinavian languages and sent to Missouri, Minnesota, Wisconsin and other localities for distribution. It is a fact that the Germans are more interested in fruit culture and dairying than most of the races and the Scandinavians make good farmers. Thousands of Germans are leaving the middle states and going to Wenatchee, to Yakima, to Hood River where they purchase five or ten acres of fruit land, paying almost fabulous prices for them, and then paying also large rates for water to irrigate the same land. The Coos Bay county is immeasurably superior to the countries mentioned or any district east of the Pacific coastal region, for many kinds of fruit and everything else. The German likes to read about these subjects in his own language. It is perhaps not known to the average Pacific coast American that the bulk of German immigration at this time comes from the provinces of Austria and consists of very well-to-do farmers who have given their attention mostly to fruit culture or dairying. Yet such is the fact. Large numbers would come to this coast if they knew its advantages.

The Scandinavian, whether he comes from Sweden, Norway or Denmark, ranks as among the best citizens the United States receives. Coos Bay is now particularly interesting to the Scandinavians of Minnesota and there is but little required to direct the flood of immigration here from that locality. The two Chambers should aid Mr. Lyons in advancing the idea and now is the accepted time. It should be remembered that the fall is the best time for such literature to reach Minnesota, Wisconsin and the two Dakotas. They dread the winter and "Are tired of the plains
With their snow blockaded trains,
And are coming where it rains,
Pretty soon."

MESSAGELESS WIRES.
The strike of the Telegraphers' Union continues to be the topic of discussion among local philosphers. That the lack of communication with the outside world is one of the greatest misfortunes which this age suffers, is not made any less unbearable by the recollection that even without the telegraph we are in better shape for news than our ancestors were a century ago. At least, we are able to get our mail and it comes to us on the swift trains or in the steamboats. A century ago our ancestors were happy and healthy without any of these modern conveniences, while most of us look forward to the insane asylum as our probable destination, if the efficiency of the telegraph service is not soon restored. Yet what have we lost? Apart from the disturbance of business, we are anxious to hear what is going on in London, in Paris, in Irkutsk, in Pekin, and Tokio. We want to know whether the cannabals have enjoyed a new feast; whether some fearful murder has occurred in Chicago, or what new form of cruelty has been tried on the weak and helpless, or on the trusting and innocent. Of course we need to know these things, but why do we consider it a calamity merely because we must wait for the fast mails instead of getting the same news by electricity at once?

We have fed and we feed on a form of sensationalism, which did not disturb our fathers. If the strikers should be discharged forever; if the offices should all be shut up; if no more keys should ever click again; we would still be better off than our fathers, but we would die of self-inflicted misery.

Funny! They are all alike. They want $3,000, but when you offer them $4,000, they refuse it. You offer $4,000 because you need it and will spend enough on it to make it worth $4,000, but the man who only wanted $3,000 won't let you make it worth $3,000, unless you pay him $5,000. Better let go when you get what you want and the city will have a better chance to improve. Then you can repeat your profit in another part of the plat.

Professor Frederick Starr, anthropologist, Chicago University, thinks the Japanese can whip America. He also calls attention to the fact that desertions continually occur from the army. There has always been a crop of professors before every war, in the midst of every epidemic, and after every flood, fire and earthquake, who have been bent on frightening us to death. And these professors are always found alive and well when it is all over.

Advices from many districts are to the effect that the fruit has been ruined by late frosts. From other districts it is learned that the apple crop has been badly damaged by codlin moths. Still from others it appears that there will be a short crop on account of hot weather. But neither frost, nor pest nor heat can ever hurt the certain crop which Coos Bay never fails to develop.

Mr. Bryan was a prophet of calamity in 1896. In 1907 he assures the people through the columns of his paper, the Commoner, that the volume of money has increased with the increased output of gold and that prices of commodities have raised in consequence. He tells us there can be no hard times ahead as long as money is increasing and prices are on the increasing hand.
