

MANY OUT TO SEE EXHIBIT

Chamber of Commerce Display Closes and Awards Made to Exhibitors.

ADDRESSES EXCELLENT

Instructors From Oregon Agricultural College Entertain With Instructive Talks.

The Marshfield Chamber of Commerce room was the center of interest yesterday from morning until evening and was thronged with sightseers and admirers of floral and fruit displays.

President Kerr, Dr. Withycombe and Prof. Lewis arrived from Myrtle Point on the noon train and were present for the afternoon program.

Professor Lewis gave a long and interesting talk on fruit raising which was listened to eagerly by the fruit raisers of this section.

Dr. Withycombe's address was on dairying and since Mr. Withycombe is a farmer himself and understands this topic he interested his audience throughout his discourse.

Dr. Withycombe, in his speech, made the statement that the box of Gravenstein apples which took the first prize showed that Coos county can compete with any apple growing locality on earth.

The box of Gravensteins which was awarded the first prize and by reason of that, the Waite prize of twenty dollars, was grown by A. E. Seaman on his Coos River ranch which is near the head of navigation.

Floral displays could be grown here. There were those who said they had never seen better displays. An observer would have noticed great interest among the ladies at yesterday's exhibition.

Mrs. J. T. McCormac was specially helpful to the committee and arranged the floral display. In the evening the hall was jammed with people to hear Dr. W. J. Kerr.

Dr. Kerr, the new president of the State Agricultural College, does not believe the public and high school systems dovetail with the academics and colleges as they should and his statements as to what should be expunged from the public school curriculum bordered on the sensational.

The exhibits will be on display today and those who have not seen them should make an effort to drop in before they are removed.

WANT TO KEEP THE JAPANESE

Hawaiian Planters Opposing the Emigration of Orientals to Canada

Hanolulu, Sept. 16.—The Barnson-Hibberd steamship Indiana sailed from Honolulu for Vancouver September 6th with 200 or 300 Japanese laborers. The mission of the Indiana in taking away Japanese laborers is not looked on kindly by the plantation interests and every obstacle is put in the way of its securing passengers of this type.
