Dog Carried Away the Shoes.

A local dispenser of refreshments employed at the P. K. missed a new pair of five dollar shoes last night and is wondering what became of them. The boys who understand the situation are having considerable fun with him and tell of how a well trained dog named Teddy belonging to one of the leading restaurants carried the shoes away at the order of his master, where they will come handy when the egg and potato markets become so high they will force the restaurants into bankruptcy.

—L. C. Durkee wishes to notify the public that he is now able to return to old business of shingling. Open for all jobs.

Mr. Dow Hobbles Out.

F. S. Dow, who had been laid up with a sore foot, caused by a nail puncture, is out and hobbling around with a crutch. Mr. Dow says it is not very entertaining business staying at home nursing an injury.
