THE OREGONIAN

The Oregonian of recent date contains an editorial which is designed to rebuke, in part, the newspaper press of this state, in so far as it has found fault with the Oregonian for what is claimed to be discrimination against the sections where the press is published. Coos Bay is mentioned as one of the sections whose press objects to the Oregonian's policy. Let the Oregonian correct its impression in that respect. The Coos Bay press has never found fault with the Oregonian. It has understood and understands that the old school journal which has for many years led the newspaper profession on the Pacific coast north of San Francisco, has never given any particular thought to Oregon except so far as it could be considered a tender to Portland. Nor can the Oregonian be criticized for that position. It was born to boost Portland. It is sustained by Portland and its life depends on Portland's supremacy. It could not be otherwise.

Coos Bay does not complain of the Oregonian. It has no more right to do that than Portland has a right to complain of Coos Bay papers. The Columbia river and its seaport belong to one section of this state and Coos Bay to another. It is not probable that either will help the other to any great extent. Portland is a great river port and is struggling to maintain twenty-six feet of water in its harbor channel, while Coos Bay is a seaport on the great Pacific ocean four hundred miles south of Puget Sound, two hundred miles from the mouth of the Columbia, three hundred miles from Portland by water, and is in a position where a little common sense and a small expenditure will give it forty feet of water in its channel and on its bar so that the greatest of the world's ships can reach it. There is no reason why Portland and Coos Bay should not help each other—Portland with its present great strength and Coos Bay with its prospects of a mighty future. The newspaper press of Coos Bay has no fault to find with the Oregonian.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

As the time draws near for the decision of that important question "Shall Marshfield have a four years' high school?" the people should take measure, not so much to reiterate the arguments in favor of the proposition, as to impress the date and necessity of final action on their minds. Nearly everybody is ready now to go and vote for the four years high school. Nearly everybody considers it inconceivable, that Marshfield, a city of five thousand people, should refuse to establish such a school now that the issue is squarely presented. Nearly everybody who pretends to be in the least progressive, would consider it a disgrace, which would make his heart sick and his cheek burn with shame, if the voters should happen to vote the proposition down. Everywhere on the bay and in all parts of Oregon the finger of scorn would be pointed at Marshfield.

Just there is the point of the present notation. That the high school is a necessity; that it will become an institution of great immediate benefit; that no other town of the size Marshfield has neglected to provide such a school; that it will be a burning shame and a disgrace if the school is voted down, are all conceded. But if the friends of the school who are taxpayers and qualified to vote do not attend the election, these arguments may be turned down and that shame and disgrace may be felt. Let it be remembered that the women who have property on which they pay a tax are all qualified to vote. Let them remember that the sacred cause of education is involved and that it is a question which affects their children. Every man who has taxable property in this school district and is otherwise qualified can vote and he should help to swell the totals which decide for the high school. Do not forget that Thursday evening is the time.

Street Car Conductor Shot. Seattle, Oct. 28.—P. C. Morrison, a conductor on the Interurban Electric road, was shot and painfully wounded this afternoon by Alfred Lamore, French Canadian, because there was no seat on the Renton car for him. The bullet struck Morrison behind the ear and lodged in his neck. His condition is not considered serious.

GABLER REPRESENTATIVE SELLING MANY PIANOS.

On His Trip to Pacific Coast—Making Some Excellent Connections on Tour—Good Orders.

E. T. Huller, the able representative of Ernest Gabler & Bro., who is now enroute to the Pacific Coast, is meeting with success all along his route and if trade continues as it has thus far, he will duplicate his record of a year ago. Tuesday last he sent in a carload order for the W. R. Haines Music Co., of Marshfield, Ore., and the shipment goes forward today (Saturday). Other cars were lately shipped to Droop & Sons, Washington, D. C., the oldest extensive retail dealers in the United States; Dyer & Son, Minneapolis; Hollman Bros., St. Louis, who have sold over 6,500 Gabler pianos in St. Louis alone. This is only a few of several car load orders sent in within the past two weeks, and bespeaks surely the popularity of the Gabler pianos. Mr. Huller has been out just a month and does not expect to return East for several weeks to come. He further reports that all the dealers in the West and along the Coast are enjoying a big trade.—Musical Journal.
