SIERRAS' POET DEFENDS CHINKS

Joaquin Miller Says Submissive Orientals Made Railroad Possible.

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 28.—Joaquin Miller, poet of the Sierras, delivered a lecture at California College last night in which he made a stirring appeal for the orientals. His subject was "Render Unto Caesar the Things That Are Caesar's," and he said, among other things, that but for the 100,000 sober and submissive Chinese there would have been no Pacific railroad in the nineteenth century. Poet Miller referred to the anti-oriental agitation on the coast and declared the Chinese and Japanese labor-out here a necessity.

—A. H. Eddy for plans and specifications of your new home.

BANDON NOTES

Bandon, Oct. 30.—Messrs. Wells and Seison, who have been prospecting in the auriferous black sands of the Pacific coast for some years, report the outlook below Bandon a very favorable one. They have panned sand running more than $300 per ton and it is in great quantities. The principal difficulty is in keeping the water from encroaching while going down for the gold bearing gravel which is generally quite a way below the surface. Mr. Wells left for Portland some time ago to purchase new machinery with which the firm expects to accomplish a revelation in the handling of black sand.

Quite a furor exists in Justice of the Peace George P. Toppending's court this week over an attachment case prosecuted by C. R. Wade for Langlois Bros. against the Bandon Commercial company, T. B. Wheeler for the defense, complaints, motions, demurrers, amended complaint, and more demurrers with all the attendant rulings, orders and entries, mark its way through the dockets. The trouble exists over the matter of costs; the amount in dispute having been settled at an early stage in the procedure.

The sale of Timon's mine at Lampa Creek is reported to have been made to parties presumed to be in the employ of the Southern Pacific.

Dr. Culin arrived in town yesterday, called in consultation on Mrs. Chris Rasmussen. Her condition is very critical.

Little Thomas White is reported as doing nicely, no complications having ensued as result of his accident.

The steamer Bandon is loading lumber at Cody's mill.

A new restaurant and chop house is building on the Hartman property on First street.

The crusade of the city fathers for improved streets and sidewalks is showing results in the improvement of Atwater street where a new plank tramway with sidewalks and railings takes the place of the worn out bridge way, and in Columbia avenue where the street has been graded to a standard that would be a credit to any city in the state.

Tells of Coos Bay.

(Salem Journal)

The obstacles of old settlers to fight has been overcome on Coos Bay. Dr. J. T. McCormac, a citizen of the bay, the past 30 years, is the president of the Marshfield chamber of commerce. While he has amassed a fortune for himself, he is willing to see and even help others do the same. He is not president in name only, but takes an active interest in the chamber of commerce work. Hon. Ira Smith, who once represented Polk county in the legislature, is the vice president whose public spirit and probity are recognized wherever he is known. The management of the Coos Bay organization is in the hands of an executive committee of nine, with Dr. C. W. Tower, a citizen of high standing, as chairman. The rest of the committee is made up of the wide-awake business men of the town.

Among the things accomplished by the Marshfield chamber of commerce the past summer is the raising of funds for a $75,000 hotel, an institution very much needed in Marshfield. The establishment of a free ferry connecting Marshfield with East Marshfield is under way and committees from the chamber are at work making arrangements for properly dredging the bay. Largely through the chamber of commerce sectional jealousy has been eliminated and the project of consolidating all municipal interests on the bay into one central government is now well under way. It is proposed to do this under the initiative, provided by the constitution.

The Marshfield chamber of commerce has a large hall on the ground floor in the business center of the town, and open house is maintained day and night. Here all newcomers are met and extended cordiality of the bay and given such information as desired. Many large business deals have their origin in the chamber of commerce headquarters. On Friday night of each week, public meetings are held and they are attended by 100 to 300 business men and new arrivals.

Times were never more flourishing on Coos Bay than now. Every hotel and rooming house and residence is crowded and the chamber of commerce is advertising a guarantee of tenants for 100 new residences to any one who will undertake to build them.
