PLANNING A STATE CITY

Ideal Capital as Proposed Will Include All Public Institutions.

OWN ALL FRANCHISES

Landscape Gardeners and Engineers
To Layout Grounds—Sale of Lots for Revenue.

Muskogee, I. T., Nov. 2.—Shall the people of Oklahoma erect an ideal capital city in which would be grouped all the state institutions, or shall they be distributed all over the state in separate locations as a sort of pap to each section? Is a question that is now being agitated throughout the state.

Argument for the united plan presents the opportunity of building a city that would be the only one of its kind in the world, where every building and its surrounding grounds could be laid out on a plan of absolute permanency and with relation to its surroundings and its contemporary state institutions. This plan, it is asserted, would save the tax payers of the state $5,000,000 or $25 for each voter in the state.

For the other plan, it is argued that certain towns in the state would be given one institution each and the state would thereby divide its property and extend a certain state interest to the various counties where such institutions were located.

Residents of cities where there are hopes of landing some state building, favor the latter plan. The average citizen who has no favorite town, wants the state buildings centralized under the ideal city plan.

Ideal Capital at State Center.
Some of the strongest men in the state are working on the ideal capital city plan. They propose to have the state erect a non-partisan commission, which shall have entire charge of the work of building this city. It is proposed that the state will condemn two or three townships as a site, within fifty miles of the exact geographical center, and then let the commission select the most advantageous city location out of this prescribed area.

Expert engineers and architects would be employed to lay out the site and place the grounds for each building in a general scheme with the other institutions. Here would be located the state capitol, the penitentiary agricultural college, some of the experiment stations, school of mines and other institutions supported or endowed by the state.

When all the land necessary for the state buildings should be segregated, the remainder could be laid off in town lots and sold for residences or business.

Lots Pay for Building.
Conservative townspeople men say that in this manner the state could sell at the first sale $5,000,000 worth of lots, which would be available for the construction of the state buildings. By other plans the tax payers must pay for the buildings.

In addition to this, as the city grew, additions could be laid out and sold by the commission and the state would have a big income from these sales for many years.

In addition to the state buildings the commission would also control the municipal property. The state would own and operate a street car, light, water, telephone and other municipal franchise properties. As the streets are laid out, water and sewer mains, telephone and telegraph wires are to be laid under the streets in conduits and the streets once made would seldom have to be disturbed. In other words, as the city built, it would conform as near as possible to modern methods and requirements.

Question up to Legislature.
To carry this plan into effect it will be necessary for the legislature to call an election for the people to vote the needed power to a commission or other body to have charge of the proposition. It is believed that the first state legislature will consider such a call.

The enabling act provides that the state capital shall remain at Guthrie until 1913. This gives five years for a decision as to a permanent state capital. This would also give time in which this comprehensive plan of a model city could be carried into effect.

—Mr. D. D. Dobbins, of the Oregon Electrical Supply Co., will take the management of that concern at North Bend. Their office is located on Virginia avenue near Sherman. A telephone will be installed and every arrangement made to make it a complete and up-to-date store, and will be fully prepared to take care of your orders on short notice and bid on your work. His company has just made a contract with one of the largest supply houses in the country for the Coos Bay territory. When all the arrangements have been completed they will have the best equipped house of that kind between Portland and San Francisco.

With Mr. Dobbins' large experience in the business, backed up by the strong promise in Marshfield, there is not any doubt but what you get the best of supplies, the best of workmanship and prompt attention to business.

May Stay on Bay.
Mr. M. C. Davis, who has retired from the A Street Delicatessen, is as yet undetermined as to just what he will do, although several propositions have been presented to him. Whatever he determines upon it's a mighty good guess he will carry through right. He is a man of business and thinks the Bay presents opportunities that few places on earth can.

ELBERT HUBBARD GETS MORE ADVERTISING
Los Angeles, Nov. 1.—Elbert Hubbard of the Philistine fame, in a lecture here last night criticized President Roosevelt as "a man who needed a lot of education," despite what he has always done toward killing the practice of rebating.
"Any man who finds it necessary to go off and kill things when he feels like having a little pleasure needs a lot of education," said Hubbard.
