PIANO SCHOOL.

—In introducing myself to the people of the Bay as a teacher of music on the piano, a word of explanation is probably necessary.

I began to learn the rudiments of music and learned to thoroughly understand the piano and harmony, when in my younger days; my preceptors being the master musicians of the greatest musical centers of Europe. Like them, I want as pupils only those who can and desire to learn, not wishing for a patron's money unless I can give full return for it.

Like those who taught me I teach music from the foundation, understandingly and thoroughly. No parent would think of sending children to a school teacher that would place a reader before a child unacquainted with the alphabet, but many of them are not so careful when it comes to starting their children out to gain a knowledge of music.

There are undoubtedly many teachers who are technically as good musicians, with this distinction; there are few who have ever studied the problem of How to Impart that Knowledge.

In the old country they have teachers who have classes where they teach that single point, "How best to impart the knowledge to others." I took this course after being through with my other studies. And therefore am fully equipped to render the very best of service. My price is Two Dollars a lesson. But to prove to you my faith in my own work I will give pupils, large or small, as beginners and first and second grades, for sixty days, lessons at one dollar an hour, and at the end of that time, if not satisfactory, I will give receipted bill to you without compensation to me.

Indisputable

After a Piano has been sold to the public for a continuous period of over fifty years and has not only been endorsed, but used by nearly all the leading musicians of the States as well as being in a great number of the public and private institutions and also in over fifty thousand representative homes there is little left to be said in its praise such are the indisputable facts about the
